Poet Laureate

Max Ellison

Max Ellison Takes Part in Inauguration

Poet Max Ellison of Bellaire spoke at the inauguration of Gov. William Milliken and other state officers on the steps of the state capitol in Lansing Jan. 1

A former hog farmer who turned into a full-time poet following his retirement five years ago, Ellison recited his poem "Michigan" at the inauguration

Ellison, 56, has found to his amazement that there is more money in poetry than porkers

His first book of poetry, entitled "The Underbark", has sold almost 30,000 copies since publication in September of 1969

Ellison promotes the book personally, traveling across the country lecturing on poetry and reciting his own poems at colleges, universities and high schools.

He always carries a satchel filled with copies of "The Underbark" with him and they are eagerly snatched up by his admirers

Critics believe that Ellison's poetry, which smacks of such elemental things as earth, barns and bumblebees, could well fill a niche in the field of American letters that has been vacant since the death of Robert Frost.

Ellison, who wears a full beard and dresses in farm clothes, is a master showman, delivering his verse in a rich voice reminiscent of Burl Ives and Charles Laughton.

A native of Bellaire, Ellison attended the former Frog Holler School through the Fifth Grade and wound up his formal education with the Tenth Grade at Bellaire High School.

During the Depression he worked on horse farms in Kentucky

World War II found him with the 1st Cavalry Division in the South Pacific.

After the war, Ellison bought and leased farmland near Plymouth, Mich., and went into hog-raising on a large scale. Fluctuations in the hog market in the early 1960's, however, induced him to give up farming and return to his hometown

Ellison and his wife Florence, a social worker for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, live in a modest, red brick house on a tree-shaded corner lot in Bellaire, a tiny Antrim County community.

CHICKAWAGO LODGE, a landmark on the Marion Center rd south of Charlevoix, is reopening as a mecca for snowmobilers and other out doorsmen under the ownership and management of Tom Newton

Landmark Lodge Hopes To Lure Snowmobilers

The Chickawago Lodge on Marion Center-rd. south of Charlevoix is reopening for business with an eye toward the snowmobile trade.

Owner Tom Newton, formerly of Allen Park, has moved into the rustic lodge with his family and already has started a snowmobile rental service.

By this weekend, Newton hopes to have the lodge dining room refurbished and ready for business. The 13 sleeping rooms already have been carpeted and redecorated and are ready for occupancy.

Located on 80 acres of rolling land, the lodge was built in 1928 by Seeley and Linton Realtors who had hopes of turning it into another Belvedere Club or Chicago Club, Newton says.

However, the Depression intervened and Chickawago Lodge never actually got off the ground financially.

Newton, a former Detroit area insurance man, bought the property 14 years ago in hopes of turning it into a all-season vacation resort.

"My 14-year-old dream is finally coming true," he said Sunday.

Newton hopes the lodge will become headquarters for Charlevoix snowmobilers who will run out on their machines to have dinner in his rustic dining room.

He also envisions snowmobilers, skiers and other sportsmen from southern Michigan making Chickawago Lodge their home away from home.

In addition to snowmobile rental, Newton is a franchised dealer for the Canadian-built Snow Prince snowmobile.

In the spring, he plans to erect a storage building for snowmachines adjacent to the lodge.

Newton and his wife, Carol, have six children, Thomas, 13; Beth Ann, 11; Robert, 9; Brenda, 7; Mary, 4; and Patricia, 3.

Medusa Adds 240 Acres to Area Holdings

Medusa Portland Cement Co. Monday completed the purchase of a 240-acre tract of potential quarry land in Charlevoix Township southwest of the present plant.

The sale was confirmed by Fred W. Cohrs, manager of Medusa's Charlevoix Plant.

The land was purchased from the Branch Corp. of Birmingham for an undisclosed price.

Cohrs said the company has no plans for using the land in the near future.

But he said that if the same general geological conditions prevail as at South Point, the site eventually could be mined for limestone.

The property lies in Section 32 of the township and is bounded on the north and west by the Jordan River State Forest, on the east by property owned by Oscar Ward and on the south by property owned by Ward and Ken Sweet.

The land does not include any Lake Michigan frontage, as does the plant site, which was purchased by the company in 1917.

The acquisition brings Medusa's holdings in Charlevoix Township to just under 1,200 acres, including about 950 acres in the present plant and quarry site.

Cohrs said the offer to sell the property was made by the Branch Corp which has held the land for many years.

The land actually was purchased in the name of the Crescent Stone Co., Medusa's real estate division.

Cohrs reiterated that the company has no plans to use the land in the near future.

"I think the people of Charlevoix are better off if we have the land, than if someone moved in and developed it," he said

Local sportsmen for years have urged the state Department of Natural Resources to pick up the land as an addition to the Jordan River State Forest, but the DNR never had sufficient funds. The tract is considered a prime hunting area.

Medusa, which completed construction of the Charlevoix Plant in August of 1967, is one of the major land owners and tax payers in the Charlevoix area.

The company paid $483,615.86 in property taxes last year on a state equalized evaluation of $12,837,200.

Hanna Reviewing Plant Modifications

City Superintendent Thomas Hanna told the city council Monday night that he planned to meet Tuesday with representatives of the engineering firm, McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor to review modifications in plans for Charlevoix's proposed waste water treatment plant before new bids are asked.

The original low bids for general construction and electrical work were rejected by the council as too high.

Hanna said the changes will not effect the basic function of the plant but are simply ways to save money. As an example, he said the engineers have worked out a different kind of roof structure which should prove to be less costly.

Hanna said he hopes new specs can be ready within a week and that the new bid opening can be held as early

SKIERS DOUBLED

The number of skiers using Michigan slopes has more than doubled in the last 10 years, according to the Michigan Tourist Council. During the 1969-70 season, Michigan attracted a record 350,000 skiers, as compared to 150,000 during 1959-60. Pre-season estimates indicate the 1969-70 record will be surpassed during 1970-71 winter season.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

No. 356 2

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan praying for a judgment in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said complaint will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the February term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix in the County of Charlevoix State of Michigan, on the 1st day of February A.D. 1971, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a judgment will be taken and entered as prayed for in said complaint. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said judgment the lands described in said complaint for which a judgment of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such judgment, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a.m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the county of Charlevoix State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if on such second offer, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness the Hon. Charles L. Brown, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Charlevoix County this 14th day of December A.D. 1970.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX.

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, Act No. 126 of the Public Acts of 1933, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, and the description of all lands in said county which are delinquent for any installment of taxes under the provisions of Act 126, P.A. 1933, as amended.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non-payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent and (d) $3.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned;

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non-payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays:

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended;

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained;

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land, or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Leaders Plan Horse Show

Leaders of the Tri-County (Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan) 4-H Saddle Horse Committee met at the 4-H building in Petoskey Dec. 15 to discuss changes in show regulations and to plan events for the coming year.

New officers elected at the meeting were Frank Gruler, president; Bob Montgomery, vice president; and Carrie Edson, secretary.

The group discussed:

–The possibility of having 14 trail obstacles in shows, allowing three for tie-breakers.

–Expanding the number of age groups in the 4-H Fair Horse Show, because of overcrowding in the 13 to 18-year-old class.

–The possibility of awarding 16 trophies for show.

–And securing two judges for the fair, one familiar with 4-H judging and the other an open class judge.

The latter proposal was adopted.

Bob Montgomery and Michelle Fettig said their club, the Sans Souci 4-H group of Petoskey, is planning its third horse show June 27.

as Feb. 15.

Fate of the entire project rests on whether or not the state will extend the Dec. 31 deadline for the awarding of construction contracts, in order to be eligible for state and federal funds.

To date, Charlevoix is the only city in the state to apply for an extension, according to Mayor William Fochtman.

In other business the council:

--Discussed a new state law extending the terms of present city officers until Jan. 1, 1972, with a primary election Aug. 3 and a general election Nov. 2. At the next meeting the council will decide whether to go along with the state, or "opt out."

--OK'd a taxi license for Oscar and Dorothy Ward.

--Purchased a Ford police package at a price of $2,325, with trade-in. Erber Auto was low bidder.

--Learned that the city's union negotiator, Darrel Jacobs, will be in the city Jan. 13 to 15 in an effort to work out a contract with representatives of the Communications Workers of America, which represents city employes.

Mayor Fochtman appointed Aldermen Conrad Klooster, Roger Westenbroek and Robert Gill as a committee to review dock regulations and rates and Aldermen Nathan Boss, Westenbroek and Gill as a committee to study capital improvements to the city's electrical system.

Lake Shipping Is Down Some, But Still High

Shipments of bulk commodities on the Great Lakes during November totaled 15,448,057 net tons, Oliver T. Burnham, vice president and secretary of Lake Carriers' Association reports.

This volume is about 1.7 million tons less than the all-time record for the month which was shipped last year, Burnham notes.

Iron ore shipments totaling 6,275,978 gross tons reflect continuation of the vigorous pace of the iron ore trade. The tonnage is the second best for the month since 1964, and cumulative tonnage for the season, 71,310,630 gross tons is the second best since 1957.

Coal shipments for the month total 5,124,203 net tons. For the season through November, 46,244,121 net tons, the best forwarded since 1967.

Grain shipments of 3,294,759 net tons were the second highest for the month in history. The cumulative total of 21,988,825 net tons for the season, through November 30, is also the second highest.

Total shipments in bulk commodities, thus far in the navigation season, totaled 148,100,851 net tons; the highest since 1966.

COOKING MADE EASY

1971. You've changed. We've changed.

Change. That's what it's all about this year. And that's what we mean by putting you first.

These are uneasy times.

There are major concerns. About pollution. About safety. About the economy. About your hard-earned dollar. We know.

For the past 10 years Chevrolet research people have questioned thousands of people on every subject from rising taxes to the size of the glovebox in their cars.

We've found that price and maintenance costs, trade-in value and quality have become tremendously important.

Your car has to work. It has to last. And each new model must have more built-in value.

At Chevrolet, we understand.

You want meaningful change. And our aim is to give that to you, as you'll see in the 1971 Chevrolets.

Caprice. The biggest, most luxurious Chevrolet ever. A complete change.

Bigness in itself is nothing.

But if it allows you to lengthen the distance between the front and rear wheels (which we did), then you've got something.

You've got a smoother ride.

The idea in the 1971 Caprice was to give you the looks and comfort of a six- or seven-thousand-dollar car, without asking you to pay anywhere near that much for it. And above all, to build in as much dependability and security as possible.

So we changed the body structure for 1971, too. We made it stronger. And we made it quieter by putting a double layer of steel in the roof.

Caprice, as you can see below, is a lot of luxury at a Chevrolet price.

Vega. The littlest Chevy ever. It wasn't changed from anything.

Before building Vega, we read everything we could get our hands on about little cars. We talked to owners. We studied little cars up one side and down the other and, literally, tore them apart. We found out what made them tick, or why they didn't tick.

What ticked were gas economy and dependability. What didn't were underpowered engines, cramped quarters and getting blown around in the wind.

In our little Vega, everything ticks. It's not just another little car. You didn't want that. It's one little car that does everything well.

GAA Widens Recreation Opportunities for Girls

By MARIANNE MOSORYAK

The Girls' Athletic Association (GAA) is a voluntary organization open to all high school girls who care to participate in recreational activities.

Mrs. Paul Osterberg, advisor of this program, is working locally, without outside affiliation. If the program is popular the club will join the Michigan Girls' Athletic Association (MGAA) next year.

The purpose of this association is:

1. Promote participation in a wide variety of physical activities for high school girls, (individual, dual, group, and team.)
2. Promote sound programs to meet the needs and interests of all girls in physical activities at the high school level.
3. Promote student leadership in the development and perpetuation of girls' athletic associations.

The program is now running a bowling program on Monday nights for six weeks at the Paul Bunyon Lanes in Charlevoix. The cost is 90 cents for two games, including shoe rental.

Other activities planned for the year are volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, track and field, and a variety of winter sports such as skiing, snowmobiling and ice skating. Special invitational play days and fun days with groups from other schools are being planned.

A point system will be in effect for those girls who participate in various activities. The point system will be used to determine who receives awards for the 1970-71 school year. Awards will be made in the spring.

The officers for the 1970-71 school year are: Annette Hansen, president, Denice Wagner, vice president; Ann Carey, secretary; and Bobbie Sladek, treasurer.

Debaters Place Third

By Sandy Gigg

Friday, Dec. 11, at 10 a.m., the high school debate team left to compete in the First Annual Frostbite High School Debates Invitational at the Kellogg Community College in Battle Creek.

Three categories, Novice, Junior Varsity and Varsity, could be entered with a limit of three affirmative and three negative debate teams for each school. Charlevoix entered the novice, and junior varsity categories taking, as a whole school, taking third place in both.

In the novice division Suellen Kayner took second place superior certificate with Bill Moore, Nikki Ballard and Trudie Goldstick taking excellent certificates. In the junior varsity division, Rindi Luedke and Cathi Baldwin received excellent certificates.

Sixteen high schools including Charlevoix were present at the invitational. Other schools receiving trophies were Battle Creek Central High School, third place in varsity; Marshall High School, recent place in novice, First in junior varsity and second in varsity; Milford High School, first in novice; and Toledo Whitmer High School, second in junior varsity and first in varsity.

Library Is Getting More Newspapers

By Louann Mason

The high school library is now receiving more newspapers such as the "Christian Science Monitor," the "Wall Street Journal," and the "New York Times" (Sunday Edition).

These periodicals should be of value to all students especially those in English, journalism and social studies classes.

The "Christian Science Monitor" has special features on education, art, music and is known for its impartial coverage on both national and international news.

The "Wall Street Journal" contains full coverage on economics, business, and industrial news as well as world wide news.

The "New York Times" contains coverage on all world news with addition to its special sections on business theater, as well as the magazine section and book review section.

Michigan Ranks High In Many Fruit Crops

Everyone knows that Michigan ranks first among the 50 states in the production of tart pie cherries.

But we don't do too badly compared to other states when it comes to such other fruits as apples, grapes, plums, sweet cherries, peaches and pears, according to the Michigan Crop Reporting Service.

Although Michigan's tart cherry growers had a bad summer in 1970, we were still number one producer in the nation with 80,000 tons, compared to a national total of 121,500 tons.

Michigan was third in the nation in the harvesting of apples, plums and grapes. The apple crop weighed in at 750 million pounds, plums at 10,000 tons and grapes at 60,000 tons.

Needless to say, California ranks first among the grape-growing states, producing 89 percent of the nation's 3,101,930 ton harvest.

We ranked fourth in the production of sweet cherries, with 20,000 tons; sixth in peaches, with 75 million pounds, and ninth in pears, with 17,500 tons.

Because of freezes in early May and poor pollinating weather, Michigan's fruit production was off about two percent in 1970, but we still managed to hold our own nationally in this important segment of the agricultural economy.

Nice going, for a primarily industrial state.

Letters to the editor

Church Misnamed In Courier

December 16, 1970

To the Editor and Staff of the Charlevoix Courier:

Dear Friends:

On page 11 of the December 16th, 1970 edition of the Charlevoix Courier I read this statement: "I object when anyone, even a member of the John Birch Society, calls me Mr. Cox when my name is Mr. Clock. Let's get our facts straight, Mr. Mathias".

I would like to give you a few straight facts:

Some time ago you carried a story in the Courier about the death of a man who had served as Pastor of the above named Church, namely, the late Rev. Mr. Stoppels. You stated that he had served as Pastor of the Christian Reformed Church of Charlevoix. Let me inform you there is no such Church. Please look at the letter-head on the top of this page.

About two weeks ago you carried a story in the Courier about the meeting of the Weight Watchers, stating that they were holding their weekly meetings in the Fellowship Hall of the Christian Reformed Church of Charlevoix. Again let me inform you there is no such Church. There is a Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix. See letterhead above for name and address.

Last week I called your office and told the lady who answered the phone that I had a news item. I mentioned that I would write it if she wished, but she volunteered to take the information over the phone. I told her that the combined Choirs of the COMMUNITY Reformed Church and the Atwood Reformed Church were rendering a Cantata in our Church (Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix) on Sunday evening December 20th. I further told her of the above mentioned mistakes of writing of our Church as the Christian Reformed Church of Charlevoix instead of correctly calling us the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix. And she graciously promised to correct the mistake. Yesterday I was amazed to read in the paper that the Community Church of God and the Atwood Reformed Church combined Choirs are presenting a Cantata on Dec. 20th. Just how confused can a situation become?

You like your name to be used correctly. I like my name to be used correctly. You like the name of your publication to be used correctly. I like the name of my Church to be used correctly.

Have a Merry Christmas.

Yours for Accuracy,
(The Rev.) A.F. Mansen

(Editor's Note: Sorry.)

Who Recalls Tessa Demmon?

Dear Bob,

Is there anyone from Charlevoix who recalls a person named Tessa Demmon who owned the lot at the end of Michigan Avenue which is now owned by the Ockrants? This would be around 1902.

If anyone has any information regarding the Demmon family or regarding the original house built here, please contact Edith Gilbert, 510 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix.

Sincerely,
Edith Gilbert

'Beasts' Out To Destroy Round Lake

About this time each year, the city of Charlevoix is invaded by huge beasts who come from another world. Their mission is to destroy Charlevoix's most precious possession-Round Lake. These huge beasts have little or no trouble at all accomplishing their destruction, and so return year after year and go unnoticed by most people.

Over the years, I have tallied every bit of information I could get my hands on as to the description and habits of these awful creatures. I am now ready to pass it on to anyone willing to listen, in hopes that maybe something can be done.

As to what they look like, although the stories differ, most of them agree that they are various shades of red and orange, with bright yellow or red eyes which flash in the dark. They have huge mouths which they use to capture their prey and then carry it away.

As to their habits, the stories tend to agree more. They crawl about the streets of Charlevoix early in the morning and late in the evening, devouring anything in their path, with their flashing eyes pearing into the darkness. Once they get their mouths full they carry their loot, which consists of dirt, salt, snow, broken limbs, and anything else that happens to fall before them, and take it down to the banks of the once beautiful Round Lake, where it's stored. At least they'd like us to believe that they're sorting it. What really happens is they leave it lay until Spring, and then the warm Spring air melts the huge piles of junk right into Round Lake. By the time this happens, the huge beasts have long left the city, only to look back and chuckle about another successful year in Charlevoix.

Glenn Cunningham

Takes Hat Off To Debaters

Dear Bob:

I had the pleasure, on the weekend of 11-12 December, to accompany the Charlevoix High School debate teams to Elk Rapids and Battle Creek in their competition with other schools of the leagues.

The citizens of Charlevoix can be rightfully proud of these fine young people who represent their community. In spite of the fact that this is only the second year of debating in the High School under Mrs. Constance Ford, our teams came back with the third place trophies in both of the two categories in which they competed and 8 out of 10 top speaker awards.

One might shrink at the prospect of chaperoning 10 teenagers into restaurants and motels for 2½ days, but these young folks could not have conducted themselves better than they did and still be considered healthy.

The promotion of the debate teams was one of the best decisions the school board ever made. I sincerely urge more adults to enjoy one or two of the local debates. It is a challenging spectator entertainment to decide for yourself the better argument between two teams of enthusiastic young people.

In any case, three cheers for teachers like Mrs. Ford and citizens like her debate students.

Sincerely,
Don Luedke

Clockwise

To the Rear, March

By BOB CLOCK

Believe it or not, there are few things in life more frustrating than not being able to move backward whenever the fancy strikes you.

In fact, I've come to the conclusion during the past week that man and his institutions would be better off if they would shift into reverse from time to time, just to give them a wider view of the world and perhaps change direction if the road ahead looks as though it may be heading nowhere.

These lofty reflections resulted from a messed up clutch-transmission system which developed in our family jalopy on a trip home from Muskegon last week.

We stopped for gas in Baldwin and when we left the station I noticed the clutch wasn't working properly. Although I jammed it right to the floorboard, I had trouble shifting from one gear to another.

"Just the clutch cable," I told Judy wisely from the depths of my engineering ignorance as I pulled onto the highway and headed north. "I'll take to the garage in Charlevoix when we get home, and have it tightened."

But as we approached Traverse City, it became increasingly apparent that we would never make it to Charlevoix so I headed directly for the VW garage.

We came to a grinding, sickening halt at the corner of Cass-ave. and South Airport-rd. and there we sat.

After a frantic call to the garage from the lobby of a stamping plant (a wonderfully noisy place to telephone from) and another frantic call to Triple A, we were finally lifed aloft at the rear of a wrecker and were towed ignominiously two miles to the garage. Seven dollars and 50 cents, please.

We abandoned the car to the mechanics and spent the rest of the afternoon examining the new 1971 models and talking price with the salesman. We even took one vehicle out for a road test, just to break the monotony.

By 5:30 p.m., our bus had been reassembled, but there was one major flaw in the works: It wouldn't shift into reverse.

The garage crew took it back inside for another go-around but the problem was too much for their accumulated years of automotive know-how.

"Well, I'll just take it as it is," I told them. "Point me north and I shouldn't have any trouble."

Since then, the car has spent a day at a Charlevoix garage without results and I have an appointment to take it to a second garage in Petoskey this week.

In the meantime, I have come to love and respect my reverse gear with a passion.

Have you ever tried to push your car bodily out of a driveway, only to ram repeatedly into snowbanks on both sides?

Or have you ever tried to pick parking spaces downtown so that you won't have to shift into reverse to get out?

Or have you ever had to drive 15 miles out of your way just because there is no place to turn around without backing up?

I have, and it's no fun.

All of which has put me in a philosophic frame of mind, and I am beginning to take a curmudgeon view of all the forging-ahead we do in the name of progress.

Wouldn't the economy be a lot healthier if we could shift into reverse for a few years and try to get prices back to where they were before inflation took hold?

Wouldn't it be great to turn back the clock to a time when our stature as a nation wasn't predicated entirely upon how many nuclear weapons we have in our atomic arsenal?

Wouldn't it be beautiful if we would march backward for 50 years and retrieve all of the smelly pollutants we have pumped into our waterways?

If we backed up far enough, we might be able to find a new road leading to a brighter destination for ourselves, our country and all mankind.

A reverse gear in working condition would do us all some good.

Let's Flip

By Jim Fitzgerald

It is a crying shame that the Great Coin Flip show never got on the tube. It could have revolutionized the TV industry. Heck, it could have changed the world.

Football fans will remember the terrible suspense of Dec. 20. If Detroit, New York and Dallas all won their games that day, Detroit and Dallas would tie for the 4th spot in the championship play-offs. League officials ruled the tie must be broken by a flip of the coin.

There simply wasn't room to squeeze a tie-breaking game on the tube, unless it was substituted for Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve. Some officials wanted to bump the Mass but wiser heads prevailed. "It would make Notre Dame mad," one official said, "and they might start paying their players more to stay in school then we pay them to turn professional. Our recruiting costs are too high now."

Another official came up with the answer. "There's five minutes late this Sunday afternoon when there's no football on TV. It comes right after that game where the winning TD is scored by a quarterback wearing shaving cream and just before the 194th rerun of the 1967 Packer-Oriole game," he said. "Five minutes is just time enough to flip a coin to decide who wins, Detroit or Dallas."

Zounds, what an idea!

George Halas, league president, was lined up to flip the coin. An ingenious point system was devised to determine whether the Lions or Cowboys would make the call while the coin tumbled in the air. A sponsor was signed and the TV time was announced. It was estimated that 16 trillion people would catch the Con Flip program, including five billion via satellite.

But then the lousy Los Angeles Rams beat New York and no coin flip was necessary. One of the world's most wondrous stages had been built but there was no one to tap dance on it.

But think what might have been...

The great minds of TV would have boggled as 16 trillion people held their breath over flipping half-dollar. "Manny, we gotta get us a coin flip show," TV executives would quickly say to each other. "How about Doris Day playing two out of three with My three Sons?"

Soon the tube would be clinking in prime time. At first, only the most simple ties would be settled by a flip. Howard Hughes, man or myth? Kent State, murder or maneuvers?

Audience participation would be encouraged. Domestic arguments would be flipped away while trillions watched. Heads they go to her mother's for Christmas, tails they go bowling. Ann Landers would forsake the drudgery of column-writing. She could make more money hosting "Let's Make a Flip, the TV Program With a Heart, a Head and a Tail."

But the TV audience would not accept this Pablum for long. They would demand higher and higher stakes. If football games and household quarrels and political stalemates can be settled by flipping a quarter, why not...

That's right, folks. Smuckers Jam presents the Paris Peace Talk Flip. Heads, all the U.S. troops come home for good, right now. Tails, they come home anyway but their places will be taken by all congressmen, diplomats, bureaucrats and other politicians who have never been shot at. These new troops will be led into battle by General Nixon and Corporal Agnew.

Onward and Upward and no two out of three.

Why No Humane Society?

Dec. 22, 1970

Dear Mr. Clock:

Charlevoix is a beautiful town with so many fields of culture, progressive citizens, an excellent library, dandy Police and Sheriff's Departments, smart shops, etc.

But why is there not a Humane Society for Charlevoix County?

While not living in this county, we have friends who report that many animals do not receive adequate care, especially in winter.

All animals should be housed in a shelter with four walls and large enough to stand in.

There should be a good solid floor, high enough to keep out snow and water. Plenty of clean straw and a covering over the door is necessary.

Also see that all animals are allowed exercise every day, and plenty of food and water.

Can anyone respect others who show cruelty by starving, kicking, cursing, beating and tieing animals too closely or confining them in dirty littered enclosures?

Perhaps the 4-H Club, Boy Scouts, the Women's City Club and the schools could work on this project, as it is a great education as well as a Christian motive toward making a better world.

For Progress,
K.S. Burgger

Re: Midnight Blaze 2 Dec. 70

Dear Mr. Clock:

It has been a long time since "Charlie" Marshall and I sat together on the front bumper of the old Dodge. Still I felt a sense of proudness as I read your tribute to the C.V.F.D. and a job well done.

May I extend my best wishes for the coming year to a fine team of dedicated men and their families.

Dakota Inn Still Swings, Reader Says

Dear Editor:

I am a subscriber of your nice paper and read every line. Am a former resident of Ellsworth and know Charlevoix very well, too. I just want to inform you how I enjoyed the Clockwise article, "The Song Is Ended", and want to mention as of three weeks ago had a lovely German dinner at Dakota Inn. There usually is a line at the door waiting and all the old German songs are still being played and, let me tell you, sung by the crowd.

A beautiful article.

'Bah, Humbug' To Yule Bulb Snatchers

Dear Editor:

During the holiday season I realize there may be people that are wanting. I, for one, try to be charitable even at other times of the year. But to the person who practically cleared by Christmas tree of outdoor bulbs, I wish to say "Bah, Humbug!"

If these people would knock on my door and ask for a string of lights or a few bulbs, I would do my best to help. But to deliberately "steal" them is something else. At Christmas time our street gets darker and darker as people are disappointed in decorating and having things molested. I, for one, will not take the time again to decorate outside, which is too bad because I love to ride during the holiday season and see the lights.

I only want whoever took the lights to know they are being watched closely.

Too bad to write a note of disappointment instead of one of thankfulness during the holy holiday season.

Sincerely,
Billie Smith

Fran Says Thanks For Color TV Set

Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Mi.
Att: J. Robert Clock, editor

Dear Bob,

My Christmas and the months ahead have been made brighter and happier by a gift from my friends...a beautiful color television set. The gift was accompanied by a card that was signed simply "Your Friends".

Because I have been refused a list of the many friends who must have been a part of what I have labeled "Project: Surprise", I'd like to use your "Letters to the Editor" column to acknowledge this wonderful gift. It was truly the spirit of Christmas that prompted all of you to be a part of it. I want to say thank you to each and every one of you for the gift and for thinking enough of me that you wanted to perform this thoughtful and generous deed. I especially want to thank the Methodist Youth Fellowship and its adult advisors, Kelly and Sharon Wilson, the 'Parents' of "Project: Surprise". I know they must have spent countless hours on it. Their efforts are appreciated.

Again, many, many thanks to all of you. May your kindnesses to me be rewarded a thousand-fold through the years for each of you. And may 1971 be as bright and beautiful as the picture on my new television set!

Gratefully,
Fran Martin

Modern Man Spawned During the Renaissance

Leonardo da Vinci lived his life on the far frontiers of the human intellect as an artist, architect, scientist and mathematician.

The illegitimate son of a peasant girl came closest to fulfilling the Renaissance dream of a universal man.

In the 15th century, the prophetic genius designed a parachute, planned model cities, and invented a submarine, snorkel and diving suit for underwater saboteurs.

ALTERED MAN'S VIEW

Leonardo and the other towering figures who changed man's way of looking at himself and the world dominate the pages of the National Geographic Society's new book, "The Renaissance: Maker of Modern Man."

National Geographic Associate Editor Franc Shor sums up the succession of fascinating characters who marched across the stage of history to make way for modern times: "Above all in the lives lived to the fullest by its remarkable men and women, the Renaissance revealed the West's cultural capabilities."

In thriving city-states, princely rulers vied with one another for the services of a Petrarch or a Michelangelo. Such geniuses as Fra Angelico, Donatello, Botticelli, and Brunelleschi helped the powerful Medici family turn Florence into an Athens on the Arno.

VENICE FEARED

Aloof, self-centered Venice became the most formidable and hated power in Renaissance Italy. But rival statesmen also admired "the longest lived republic history had seen" for surviving civil strife, tyranny, and invasions.

Merle Severy, editor of "The Renaissance" points out that Venice's "shipyards won respect, her ambassadors were unsurpassed, her arts eagerly sought; Emperor Charles V would have his portrait painted by none but the Venetian master Titian."

POPES RULED

Rome, too, flowered magnificently in the Renaissance. The popes were vicars of Christ as well as temporal rulers of the Papal States which extended from Rome to Ravenna. Few kings were their intellectual equals, and few kings could dominate a reception by sheer presence and power of personality as did Pius II, Alexander VI, Julius II, and others.

Rome and the clergy encountered strong criticism as the Reformation, spearheaded by such powerful figures as Martin Luther and John Calvin, climaxed centuries of sectarian agitation.

The new individual thinking of the times flourished in the France of King Francis I. His court glittered with scholars, writers, and artists.

Professor Paul Murray Kendall, a noted biographer, describes Francis I as the personification of the warmth and gaiety of the Renaissance, "its love of living and love of learning, its joy in beautiful objects, its frankly sensual delights."

Sonar Hunts B-52 on Lake Bottom

Nine Airmen Die in Crash

The grim task of locating the wreckage of a giant B-52 bomber which crashed, burned and sank in Lake Michigan last Thursday night is underway this week about 11 miles northeast of Charlevoix.

The plane, which crashed while on a routine training mission over the Bay Shore Radar Bomb Scoring site, apparently carried nine crew members to their death, although the Air Force must wait seven days before it can officially declare the men dead.

Hope that there might be some survivors flared briefly Sunday when an object believed to be a canopied raft was sighted in Lake Michigan off Pentwater.

However, the object turned out to be a boat fender shrouded with ice.

Crewmen aboard the ill-fated plane were identified by the Air Force as John M. Simonsky, 39, Lewiston, Mont.; Maj. Donald F. Rousseau, 37, Morgantown, W. Va.; Maj. Gerald W. Black, 32, Flushing, N.Y.; Capt. John E. Weaver, 27, St. Louis, Mo.; Capt. Joel G. Hirsh, 26, Western Springs, Ill.; 1st Lt. Douglas Bachman, 25, Highland Park, N.J., 1st Lt. Dennis D. Ferguson, 25, of North Ridgeville, Ohio; T/Sgt. Jerry M. Achey, 33, Ocean City, Wash.; and Lt. Col. William D. Lemmon, 38, of Porterville, Calif., the pilot.

The search for survivors began seconds after the big bomber plunged from the sky about 6:30 p.m. Jan. 6 while on a simulated bombing mission.

Col. Fred Davison, commander of the Radar Bomb Scoring unit at Bay Shore, said the aircraft was within seconds of completing its run when the ground station suddenly lost radio and radar contact.

On shore, dozens of civilians reported seeing a gigantic fireball far out on the lake, followed by an explosion that sent a towering column of flames several hundred feet into the air.

Mrs. Charles Bleha, who lives on Pa-Ba-Shane Trail on the Lake Michigan shore north of Charlevoix, said she had just walked into her unlighted bedroom when she noticed a strange orange glow through a window facing the lake. She looked up to see the fireball on the lake, followed by a fiery explosion.

Mrs. Bleha said at first she thought a tanker was burning or that the Medusa Challenger had caught fire.

Dozens of similar reports were received by local police and sheriff's deputies.

In Charlevoix, the fire whistle was sounded in the mistaken belief that there was a fire somewhere in the North Point area.

Dick Martin of Charlevoix said he was driving north of U.S. 31 for a pancake supper at the Rod and Gun Club when he noticed a orange glow in the sky that seemed to keep growing.

He doubled back thinking that a home at North Point was in flames.

Mrs. Robert Miller was just leaving her car at the Frank Zednicek home on Central-ave. for her weekly ceramics class when she saw the glow in the sky. She thought there had been an explosion and fire at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

Within minutes, the Air Force confirmed that one of its planes was missing and search efforts were launched immediately by the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station and the Coast Guard Air Station at Traverse City. Several local fish tugs also headed north in the search for survivors and wreckage.

The first vessel on the scene was the Coast Guard's 40-footer out of Charlevoix. She returned about 11 p.m. with several pieces of wreckage.

About the same time, a helicopter landed at Charlevoix Airport bearing scraps of wreckage.

State Police, acting on orders from the Air Force, imposed strict security measures at the airport and no pictures were permitted.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew rushed to the scene as soon as a crew could be assembled and assisted in the massive search and rescue operation for the next two days.

Sunday, the Air Force announced that a private salvage company, Ocean Systems, Inc., of Reston, Va., had been contracted to search for the main wreckage of the B-52.

The Sundew returned to the scene Monday to help with the work and the icebreaker Woodbine out of Grand Haven was expected in the area Monday evening to assist.

Navigational equipment sensitive to within three feet at 10 miles will be used by surface vessels to locate the wreckage, which is believed to be in 175 feet of water.

A sonar system capable of detecting objects one-foot square on the bottom will be used for a more precise search and television will be used to scan the area for bits of wreckage too small to register on sonar.

A spokesman for Ocean Systems said the company cannot estimate how long it will take to complete the search, because of uncertain weather conditions and lack of knowledge of the size and scattering of the debris.

An Air Force Board of Inquiry, composed of AF experts from across the country, convened at Bay Shore Friday night and was still in session Monday.

Col. Davison reported Monday afternoon that life

COVERED WITH ice and snow, 40-footer assigned to the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station returned home Thursday night about 11 p.m. bringing the first remnants of the ill-starred B-52 which burned and sank off Bay Shore. Nine airmen were believed killed in the crash, but no bodies have been found.

CHS Will Add Soup, Sandwiches to Menu

The Charlevoix Board of Education agreed Monday night to supplement the Stewart sandwich program at the high school with several a la carte items at the request of students and parents.

Starting about Jan. 25, the sandwich, chips and dessert lunch will be supplemented with soup and cold sandwiches.

Supt. Robert Miller said it will be necessary to phase out the school's present weekly lunch ticket program when the new items are added.

Student Council President Kay Fiedorek and Vice President Bruce Meggison told the board that many students have not been satisfied with the Stewart sandwich program.

The board also agreed to adopt a new dress code, approved by the Student Council, on the request of Miss Fiedorek and Meggison.

The new code states simply: "Dress and personal grooming must be appropriate for the type of school activity concerned and may not disrupt the educational process. Students must comply with the set State of Michigan health standards."

Principal Vane Smith said that the new code, in effect, will allow the wearing of jeans–of all colors–to school.

He added that the state health department requirement simply means that all youngsters wear shoes to school.

The board also:

–Heard a report by Miller that the district will be in a financial bind if the state Legislature cuts state aid payments in its drive for economy. He said he already has learned that the February state aid payment will be late.

–Paid general fund bills of $17,922.36; materials center bills of $4,312; and library fund bills of $1,347.72.

–Set 1971-72 tuition at $210 for grades K through 6 and $245 for grades 7 through 12, up six percent from last year.

–Learned that an adult class in welding will begin Monday and that a class in ceramics will begin Tuesday. A second class in welding may be held Tuesdays if an instructor is found.

–Learned from an attorney for Mrs. Helen J. Pick that she has no intention of selling her property near the elementary school.

–Heard a report by business manager Harold Kaufman that he is negotiating with Honeywell and Powers Regulators for heat controls at the Middle School.

–Hired Deborah Ann Jehle, a U of M graduate from Birmingham, to take over Mrs. Janis Dietrick's fourth grade class. Mrs. Dietrick is going on maternity leave.

–Heard a request by Miller that the school district look into the hiring of consultants well in advance of any future construction program.

–Heard a suggestion by board member Richard Donaldson that the board send a delegation to Grand Rapids in the spring to survey what is being done experimentally in the field of performance contracting. Under the program, an outside educational company takes

Birthrate in County Leveled Off in '70

The Charlevoix County birthrate is down dramatically from what it was in 1965, but it appears to be leveling off at about 130 babies a year.

According to figures released by Charlevoix County Clerk Clarence Rabach, 131 births were recorded in the county during 1970, compared to 132 in 1969.

In 1965, the county counted 202 births, Rabach said. The figure dropped to 179 in 1966, rose to 198 in 1967 and then sank to 144 in 1968.

At the other end of the scale, the county clerk's office recorded 141 deaths in 1970, compared to 126 in 1969.

The 1970 figure includes 118 deaths in rural Charlevoix County (which includes Charlevoix Hospital, located in Charlevoix Township); two in the city of Charlevoix itself, nine in Boyne City, eight in East Jordan and four fetal deaths.

Rabach reports that 168 marriage licenses were taken out in the county in 1970, compared to 164 in 1969.

The clerk's office also noted that there were 37 divorces granted in Charlevoix County last year, including six in the first quarter, 11 in the second quarter and 10 each in the last two quarters. The divorce figure was up slightly from the 33 divorces granted in 1969.

Dems to Meet

Charlevoix County Democrats will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the City Hall to elect delegates to the state convention.

Dimes Drive Starts

The March of Dimes campaign is under way in Charlevoix, according to Mrs. Clem Wagner, community chairman.

Money raised will be used to fight birth defects by providing funds for research.

Proceeds also will be used to guarantee continued help for Charlevoix County residents who have birth defects or who are crippled and need artificial limbs, braces or medical care.

Local community chairmen working with Mrs. Wagner will be Mrs. Jean Prebble, East Jordan; Mrs. Richard Fish, Boyne City; Mrs. Sevella Wasylewski, Boyne Falls; and Miss Jan Gifford, Walloon Lake.

Mc Cann Leaves Medusa

Capt. Edwin McCann of Charlevoix, skipper of Medusa Cement Company's self-unloading cement carrier, the Medusa Challenger, has been relieved of his duties because of health reasons, the company has announced.

Robert Secrist, director of sales and services for Medusa, said in Cleveland last week that no successor has been named as yet.

A native of Beaver Island, Capt. McCann has sailed on cement boats all his life.

He joined Medusa in 1967 after serving many years as skipper of the Galster, owned by the Penn-Dixie Cement Co.

The Galster was converted into a barge and McCann moved to Medusa which had recently bought and refurbished the Challenger as a cement carrier.

The Challenger wound up the 1970 shipping season Dec. 26 and is in Manitowoc, Wisc., for the winter.

Secrist said Medusa has purchased a second freighter, the McCullough, from the Interlake Steamship Co. He said the McCullough will be converted into a self-unloading cement carrier, like the Challenger. Both vessels are 550-feet long.

ANDREA BROWN, a fourth grader at Charlevoix Elementary School, examines one of the encyclopedias she received from the Detroit Free Press for a question she submitted to the "Tell Me Why?" column. With her is her teacher, Mrs. Vincent Chew.

Wins Set of Books With Gold Question

One of Mrs. Vincent Chew's Fourth Grade students at the Charlevoix Elementary School has done it again!

Andrea Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Brown of Charlevoix, won a complete set of "The New Book of Knowledge" encyclopedias thanks to one of Mrs. Chew's annual class assignments.

Mrs. Chew has her write questions are submitted to the Detroit Free Press for the newspapers daily "Tell Me Why?" column.

Children whose questions are used are awarded sets of encyclopedias.

Andrea's winning question, submitted last fall, was: "Why is gold valuable?"

The question hasn't been answered in the paper yet, but Andrea received her set of encyclopedias during the Christmas holidays.

Andrea is the third of Mrs. Chew's students to have a question used in the newspaper in the past few years.

Mrs. Chew says the books are worth about $200.

Constance Geer, W.H. Figard Wed

Constance Nan Geer of Charlevoix became the bride of William Henry Figard of Grand Rapids in a candlelight ceremony Jan. 2 at the First Presbyterian Church in East Jordan, the Rev. Chandler Benton officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dennis, 602 Bridge-st., Charlevoix. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. Figard of 2151 Tenway-dr., S.E., Grand Rapids.

Approximately 125 guests witnessed the ceremony, which took place before an altar decorated with red and white carnations and red roses. The pews were marked with red and white carnations.

Given in marriage by her brother, Ronald Geer of Charlevoix, the bride wore a gown of tissue crepe. Jewels and miniature Venise lace appliques adorned the high-neck bodice and edged the bishop sleeves in a sunburst effect. A pearl-entwined cording accented the Empire waist, from which the train fell. A headband of jewels and Venise lace secured her ballerina-veil of illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and greens.

Soloist for the occasion was Jason Snyder of Boyne City.

Cheryl L. Finkbeiner of Middleville, Mich., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan I. Lakies of Charlevoix, Ruth Ann McDonough of Middleville and Marcia M. Menold of Hesperia.

Miss Finkbeiner wore a candy-pink dress of tissue crepe, with metallic Venise lace trim on the high-neck and bishop sleeves. She wore a matching bow headpiece and carried a long-stemmed red rose. The bridesmaids' gowns were light green and identical in design.

Best man was Theodore Vonk of Grand Rapids. Bernard Buller of Pontiac and Fredrick Stevens and John Gately, both of Grand Rapids, served as ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Dennis wore a light blue knit coat ensemble with black accessories and a corsage of light red roses. Mrs. Figard wore a bright pink knit dress with matching pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Charlevoix VFW hall, hosted by the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Neff of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hoffman of Petoskey were MC's.

Both the bride and bridegroom are seniors at Western Michigan University and plan to graduate in April, 1971.

Girls Brave Elements for VB Tourney

By Donna Warner

On Dec. 7, the weather was cold and the roads were slippery. The 16 girls from Charlevoix did not let this bother them because they were eager to play in the Invitational Volleyball Tournament at Gaylord.

The tournament involved ten schools from Northern Michigan. These teams were: Atlanta, Gaylord, Petoskey, Petoskey-St. Francis, Boyne City, Mancelona, Johannesburg, Harbor Springs, Gaylord-St. Mary's and Charlevoix.

Each school played nine games, for a total of 46. Each game consisted of six minute halves, three minute breaks, 12 minutes per game, and give minutes between games.

At the end of the tournament, Gaylord and Boyne City played a playoff game in which Gaylord won. The finishing results showed Gaylord first. Boyne City second and Johannesburg third.

LEVI WALKER jr. finds it's a full-time job promoting the Atlanta Braves. With him on a recent visit to Charlevoix were his wife, Mary, daughter Gwyn, 7, and son Darryl, 2.

Former Charlevoixan Beats Drums for Braves

How does a fellow go about promoting baseball during the off-season, when snow lies thick on the ground and the temperature hovers around zero?

It's no trick at all, if you love the game and if you live in a country where every male from kindergarteners to dottering grandfathers–has played the game at one time or another.

And it's particularly easy if your name is Levi Walker jr., and your full-time job is "mascot" and public relations man for the Atlanta Braves baseball team.

"This time of year I do a lot of talking and listening," Walker says. "The subject of baseball is sure to come up sooner or later."

A former Charlevoixan with both Chippewa and Ottawa blood in his veins, Walker has been chief drum-beater for the Braves ever since he joined the club in 1969.

During the regular season, Walker dresses in Indian regalia and does a victory dance on the pitcher's mound at the beginning of every game at Atlanta Stadium, which has a seating capacity of 51,000.

When he is not at the stadium, Walker is on the move, boosting the club in talks before youth, civic, church and fraternal organizations all over the South.

"It's surprising how many youngsters in the South have never seen a real Indian before," he laughs.

Walker attended Charlevoix Public Schools and St. Marys School as a youngster, moving to the Indian Boarding School at Harbor Springs for two years of high school.

He completed his high school education while serving with the U.S. Army in Ft. Benning, Ga., from 1961 to 1964.

He also learned to love the Deep South.

In 1963 he married the former Mary Kelly of Atlanta and following his discharge form the Army stayed in Dixie as a plumber's helper, worker in a corrugated box factory and as an insurance salesman for Western and Southern Insurance Co.

In 1967 he decided he would like to do public relations work for the Atlanta Braves and kept trying for the job until he was finally hired two years later.

In his spare time, Walker works with Indian groups throughout the South in an effort to raise their standard of living and at the same time retain the distinctive features of the Indian culture.

Walker, his wife and two children, daughter Gwyn, 7, and son Darryl, 2, were called home to Charlevoix last week to attend the funeral of his father, Levi Walker sr., who died unexpcetedly Christmas Day.

Sterilization Book Is Now Available

Facts about voluntary sterilization for men and women are explained in a booklet made available today by Planned Parenthood-World Population, according to Mrs. Gustav Uhlich of Petoskey.

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, president, said that although the national non-profit organization traditionally encourages the use of contraceptives for family planning, "sterilization offers, for those who desire it, a medically approved and most reliable method of preventing pregnancy."

The booklet graphically describes the surgical procedures, "vasectomy" for men and "tubal ligation" for women, and explains the effects of the operation. It does not advocate sterilization, Dr. Guttmacher emphasized, but meets a need for factual information on a subject which is widely misunderstood.

An introduction to the booklet states that "Millions of couples in the U.S. use effective birth control methods to delay or prevent pregnancies. But once they are sure they have as many children as they want, many look for a surer, easier way to avoid accidental pregnancies. One virtually certain way is sterilization."

The booklet is being made available locally by the Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood Association. For a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Gustav Uhlich, East Mitchell Road, Petoskey, Michigan 49770.

Sen. Davis to Work On Appropriations

Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-Gaylord) has been named a member of the highly influential Senate Appropriations Committee, the second important honor paid to him even before the convening of the 1971 session of the legislature.

Earlier, the Senate Republican caucus had elected the former member of the House of Representatives to the position of Senate Republican whip.

"I am delighted at being chosen a member of the Appropriations Committee in my first year as a state senator," said Sen. Davis, who succeeds Thomas F. Schweigert of Petoskey as senator from the 14-county 37th Senatorial district. As a representative, Davis had represented six of those counties and part of Kalkaska.

"I know from my knowledge of the workings of the House Appropriations Committee that such an assignment means long, hard hours of committee work in addition to the floor work during session and the many duties of a legislator.

"But being a member of the committee will enable me to provide valuable service to the people of the 37th Senatorial district."

It is considered an unusual honor to be named to the prestigious Appropriations committee as a freshman senator.

"We are happy that Sen. Davis has accepted his heavy responsibility, said Sen. Robert VanderLaan, senate Republican leader.

"It will mean a heavy work load but Republican senators in caucus felt that his conscientiousness and keen understanding of state government problems while a member of the House warranted his being named to this top committee."

Doctor Says County Women Need Family Plan Help

The use of family planning services showed a significant increase in Charlevoix County during 1970, according to the Michigan Department of Public Health.

But says Maternal Health Chief Dr. Charles Berger, "Use is still small compared to the need. The evidence in Charlevoix County indicates a potential of 397 women who need family planning help from public health sources."

He pointed out that this discrepancy between need and use is not uncommon in any new health care service, as demonstrated by the early history of vaccination programs. "To some extent," he said, "it is first a matter of getting the word out, but it is also a matter of correcting misconceptions about the program."

Dr. Berger acknowledged that this might be particularly important with respect to family planning services. From a public health point of view, he said, "The absence of family planning is a significant factor in a wide range of severe health problems. They include increased fetal and infant deaths, premature births, physical and mental retardation, malnutrition, battered and neglected children, and abortions.

He noted, "When a woman has pregnancies too close together, or when a family grows merely by accident, instead of wisely and on purpose, there is a very real threat to physical, emotional, and social health." He said he observed that as this understanding increases, so does the use of family planning services.

Family planning does not merely mean how not to have babies. It also includes services for women who wish to have children but have been unable to. It means how to plan for spacing of pregnancies--for healthier babies and healthy mothers–and includes physical examinations, Pap smear tests for cancer, counseling, and–where appropriate–a variety of contraceptive methods, including vasectomy.

Dr. Berger called attention to the fact that family planning services are now provided for in all instances where it would be a financial hardship for the family to afford help from private physicians, as well as in cases where private family planning help isn't readily available in the area.

"In most county family planning programs in Michigan, private physicians are paid to provide the actual service, after the patient has been referred by the local health department," he said. "It is a cooperative effort to make a major–and relatively new–public health service available to everyone in the state. All anyone has to do to find out about family planning help in Michigan is contact their local health department or public health nurse."

Michigan Parks Set New Camp Records

Attendance and camping figures for state parks in Michigan soared to new highs in 1970, totaling more than 20 million day-use visitors and upwards of 462,000 camper families, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

Both records were reached by mid-November, the latest period through which turnout totals have been tabulated by the DNR's Parks Division in Lansing.

Attendance and camping counts through that point eclipsed last year's final figures for state parks – 19 million day users and 409,000 camper groups. Compared with totals for mid-November of 1969, attendance was up nearly 8 percent and camper use showed a 13-percent gain.

As of Nov. 15 of this year, state parks had hosted nearly 11.9 million day users in southern Michigan, 6 million in the northern Lower Peninsula, and 2.2 million in the Upper Peninsula. Those figures ran ahead of the year-ago pace in all three regions.

At the same point in 1969, daily attendance for state parks stood at 10.8 million in southern Michigan, 5.7 million in the northern Lower Peninsula, and 2.1 million above the Straits.

By the middle of last month, state park campgrounds had also attracted more families than they did during the entire 1969 season. As of then, their number of issued camping permits had climbed to 204,000 in the northern Lower Peninsula, 153,000 in southern Michigan, and 105,000 in the Upper Peninsula.

Camping permit totals through the same period in 1969 numbered 182,600 at state parks in the northern Lower Peninsula, 131,500 in southern Michigan, and 93,600 in the Upper Peninsula.

While state parks in Michigan have accommodated camper families in record numbers this year, they have been forced to turn away more than 86,000 of these groups for lack of facilities. This represents a 14-percent upturn in camper turnaways over last year at this time.

As of Nov. 15, this year's turnaways of day-use groups were down 26 percent at state parks. They totaled 42,200.

This year's record turnout of daily visitors and campers at state parks is also reflected by an upswing in 1970 sales of motor vehicle entry permits. Through mid-November, state park users had purchased 407,300 annual permits, a 15-percent increase over a year ago. Sales of daily permits than were 8 percent higher, numbering 421,200.

Holland State Park stands out this season as Michigan's attendance leader, with 1,072,736 daily visitors. Next highest for 1970 are Grand Haven State Park with 908,211 day users; Waterloo Recreation Area with 894,947; Warren Dunes State Park with 872,993; and Yankee Springs Recreation Area with 772,365.

Straits State Park ranks No. 1 in campers with 16,048 groups. Tahquamenon Falls State Park is running close behind with 15,635 camping families. Rounding out this season's Top Five for camper group totals are Waterloo Recreation Area with 14,225; South Higgins Lake State Park with 14,103; and Ludington State Park with 13,711.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bogart have left for a trip through Florida.

Mrs. Edd Potter visited relatives in Flint during the holidays.

Five New Patients At Grandvue Facility

Five new patients entered Grandvue Medical Care Facility in December. They are:

Moses Cooper and Elmer Coblentz of Boyne City; Florence Fox and Robert Daugherty of Charlevoix; and Hattie Kaake of East Jordan.

Deaths this month were: Gruce Dutcher and Moses Watson on Dec. 1, Mary Gray, Dec. 6; and Charlotte Williams, Dec. 12.

Mrs. Betty Robertson and Mrs. Marian Sutliff attended a meeting in Frankenmuth, Mich., on Dec. 3. This was the day of the "big storm," but they arrived home safe in spite of it.

Dr. Jerrian VanDellen, Dr. John Savory, and Dr. Robert Martin were here on December 8 for the monthly Utilization Meeting. Also visiting this day were Richard Tillen and Robert Allyn of the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix. Allyn is the new Social Worker.

Little by Little, we are preparing for Christmas. Our Santa and his reindeer are out in the yard, our Christmas tree is up, the Nativity Scene is in its honored place, and each door has a pretty Christmas decoration on it. Christmas cards decorate the walls in each patient's room, and there is a happy feeling throughout the hospital. Even Santa Claus paid us a visit on Dec. 12, and brought candy for everyone. And then, much to the enjoyment of pateitns and staff alike, Mrs. Bowerman brought her morning kindergarten class out on Dec. 17 to sing and perform for us, and Santa came again with a present for each patient. The children were adorable and did such a good job of entertaining us. Thank you, boys and girls, and Mrs. Bowerman, too, for thinking of us.

We have a new color TV in the West Wing dayroom now, which was purchased by Grandvue Auxillary. Many patients are enjoying the new TV, especially in the evenings.

The Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix gave a birthday party Dec. 12 for those patients having December birthdays. Honored guests were: Albert Manglos, Mary Lenosky, Christine Alcox, Mabel Stanton, Blanche Taylor, Charlotte Gee, Florence Cameron and Tressie Boyer.

We were very happy to have the Benzie County Board of Social Services pay a visit ot our Facility on December 14. Attending from Benzie County were Mrs. Gladys Baatz, Mrs. Victoria Lamming, Mr. Waldo Hibson, and Mr. Joe Deacon.

The Charlevoix County Board of Social Services held their monthly meeting at the Facility Dec. 16, with all Board members present.

A big Welcome Back" to Dr. VanDellen, who has returned to East Jordan after several weeks in Australia.

Mrs. Watkins is entertaining her little granddaughter, Christy Young of Ann Arbor, this week. Christy enjoys staying with Aunt Joni and new cousin, Damon, during the day while Grandma is at work here.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you who have so generously given of your time and talents here at the Facility this year, and to wish you all a Merry Christmas and a most happy New Year. We would also like to thank you for the tremendous response to our plea for nylons these past weeks. We really appreciate your getting these nylons to us, and because of your generosity, we will be able to finish our dolls for Christmas. Thank you all!

Roy Meyers has returned home from Charlevoix Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen DeFoe and several friends have returned to their home in Lansing after spending the New Years holiday in their local summer home and enjoying some snowmobiling.

Cindy Ouderkirk has returned to her college work in Springfield, Mo., after spending the holiday vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ouderkirk.

Everyone in our community was shocked and saddened to hear of the sudden death of Allen Harris, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Harris. Mr. Allen died last Dec. 30 in his home in Ambler, Pa., from a sudden heart attack. He spent many summers here as a small boy, and also with his wife and children. He will be missed by his many local and summer friends. Members of the family have our sincere sympathy.

Mr. and Mrs. Klon Johnstone of East Jordan were guests on Christmas at the home of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kemp. They also entertained their grandchildren, Rodney and Gary and Cindy Rubingh of Mt. Pleasant, during the holidays.

Everything has settled down for the usual winter's nap. The lake is frozen the fishermen are catching some nice perch and the fish shanty village is taking shape. The ferry has closed until around the first of April. Then we will again hear the familiar and welcome sound of its chug chugging across the channel once more.

Human Element Lost In Crash of B-52

Lt. Col. William B. Lemmon, 38, Porterville, Calif.

Maj. John M. Simonsy, 39, Lewiston, Mont.

Maj. Donald F. Rousseau, 37, Morgantown, W. Va.

Maj. Gerald W. Black, 32, Flushing, N.Y.

Capt. John E. Weaver, 27, St. Louis, Mo.

Capt. Joel G. Hirsch, 26, Western Springs, Ill.

1st Lt. Dennis D. Ferguson, 25, North Ridgeville, Ohio.

Tech. Sgt. Jerry M. Achey, 33, Ocean City, Wash.

1st Lt. Douglas Bachman, 25, Highland Park, N.J.

They were men we never knew, and most of them came from pinpoints on the map we never heard of.

But ever since Thursday night, the families of these men and their hometowns have a grim connection with the town we like to call Charlevoix-the-Beautiful.

The nine men made up the crew of the ill-fated B-52 bomber which crashed, burned and sank in Lake Michigan off Charlevoix during a routine training mission over the Bay Shore Radar Bomb Scoring site.

To date we are afraid that the details of such a spectacular occurrence have overshadowed the fact that nine American servicemen have perished in our midst, just as surely as if they had been shot down over North Vietnam by enemy fire.

Dozens of Charlevoixans can give an eye-witness account of the fireball that lit the night sky when the plane hit the water, and the ensuing explosions that sent a fountain of flames hundreds of feet into the air, "turning the snow orange."

And we have been impressed with the speed and thoroughness of the search and rescue efforts carried out by the U.S. Coast Guard and the Air Force.

We can even be excused for being relieved that the giant B-52 did not crash into Consumers Power Company's nuclear plant at Big Rock Plant, the nearby Lexalite Plant or the city of Charlevoix itself.

But, somehow, the human element in the tragedy has been missing, as it often is in times of enormous calamity.

It would be idle to blame the nine deaths on America's unceasing efforts for military superiority. We know, regretfully, that we must remain strong to survive.

It would be equally inappropriate to attempt to justify the deaths on grounds that the training mission itself was only a prelude to more death and destruction abroad.

But we can use the crash of the B-52 to strengthen our determination that the people of the United States will one day live in peace and concord with our neighbors around the world and that the era of the B-52 and its deadly cargoes will soon be relegated to the history books.

In the meantime, it would be fitting for Charlevoix County to erect a bronze marker on the Lake Michigan shore at Elzinga Park as a memorial to the nine men who died there in the service of their country.

Such a marker would also serve as a reminder that no spot on earth, even the peaceful, pine-scented shore of northern Lake Michigan, is immune from the death and destruction of war.

Drop in Traffic Deaths Shows We're Trying

During 1970, Michigan experienced the largest year-to-year reduction in traffic fatalities in the past 32 years.

State Police report that on the basis of provisional year-end fatality reports, the death toll in the state was down 13.4 percent — 334 fewer lives than were lost on Michigan roads in 1969.

The last time there was a greater reduction was between the 1937 and 1938 years.

Nonetheless, the 1970 death toll was 2,153, the seventh year in a row that Michigan topped the 2,000 mark.

Across the country, the highway death toll was down an estimated two percent, "the first significant drop" since 1957 according to one federal official.

Traffic safety experts agree that the cause of the decrease cannot be pinpointed. Some argue that the recession, coupled with the long General Motors strike, were responsible, yet the number of cars, the number of drivers and the estimated mileage traveled in Michigan increased in 1970.

Others believe that the number of drinking drivers decreased, although the state reports that the annual consumption of alcoholic beverages increased during the year.

We would like to think that better roads, safer cars, the wider use of safety belts and better trained drivers are responsible.

Every driver in Michigan should make a personal resolution to help improve the state's driving record in 1971.

Peace Symbol Controversy 'Unnecessary'

CHARLEVOIX COURIER
111 Bridge St.
Charlevoix, Mich. 49720

Dear Editor:

It is my belief that the current controversy over the use of the peace symbol by the youth of Charlevoix is unnecessary and uncalled for.

Perhaps at one time this symbol was representative of communism and anti-Americanism, but now it symbolizes something very beautiful and that is the hope of peace. We are proud of this symbol because it shows that we care what happend. We are not "strange" or anti-American, instead we are the future leaders of this country. Is it so wrong, then, that we look forward to world-wide peace for our children and not the war-torn world that we now live in?

The peace symbol is not just a local fad. In Brazil, for instance, the peace symbol with a pair of lips at the bottom, representing both Love and Peace, is being used. Youth all over the world are concerned with our future. Can you show me such a co-ordinated effort among our adults?

Yes, the peace symbol now has a different meaning. Let me bring your attention to another symbol that had its meaning changed. At one time the cross represented a place where thieves, murderers, and scum were crucified to be punished for their wrong doings. Now, that same symbol represents Truth, Love, Hope, and Salvation. It is the Crucifix. Let it be.

Thank you;

Suggest Rink On Ferry-ave.

Mr. Bob Clock, editor,
Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich. 49720

Dear Bob:

The city fathers ignored petitions, signed by 300 citizens, asking that the city not build coho boat ramps at Ferry-ave. and destroy over 100 feet of swimming beach, and a large area of picnic grounds, which were used joyously by our own citizens. Since they have built it, they have been in trouble with Lake Charlevoix, waves and storms, which have already cost an additional $10,000, as I understand it, and with the prospect of it costing them many more dollars.

Why not turn this monstrosity into a winter recreational area by flooding the parking area and allowing skating, etc. At the present time we have the rink on the old school grounds, in the center of the valley, and residential district. The music they play is so loud that it disturbs many of the residents for a block or so in all directions. All this could be shifted to the Ferry-ave. site and would disturb no one.

Most of those using the rink have to come by car, anyway, so that would be no hardship. The warmup shanty could be taken to Ferry-ave. as easily as hauled to the school grounds. Also the old power plant building could be turned into a warmup place.

Again, the children want the city to close Burns-st. for a hockey rink. This should never be done. Why not contact the Community Reformed Church and see if they would let the city flood their baseball grounds for the winter and give easy access for the children and folks on the North Side?

Reader Wants Weather News In Newspaper

Editor,
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Mich. 49720

Dear Sir:

For many years we have been summer residents of the Charlevoix area and for the last three or four years we have subscribed to the Courier.

We thoroughly enjoy receiving each issue because we feel it is our town, too.

Lately, we have been spending time early in the spring and late in the fall in your area and this year we plan to spend our first Christmas vacation there.

With each issue we receive, we eagerly look forward to news of your weather and find out best information in Mrs. Alexander's column of the Ironton news.

It seems that unless there are 80 mph winds or something equally as spectacular, there is no news column devoted to such.

I do not intend this to be critical of your paper. (We laughed together over Fitz' column "Dummy's a Champ" and have enjoyed many, many other articles.)

However, it would seem that "weather" is newsworthy and there are many people interested in your snowfall, rain, high and low temperatures for the week, etc. We certainly are. I should think the local people would also be interested. Just a small item each week would satisfy us—and I'm sure many of your out-of-town subscribers and I imagine many of the local subscribers as well.

We will appreciate any consideration you might give this matter.

Sincerely,
Marianna Rudolph

We'll Take Charlevoix

Every time I visit Detroit, I am haunted by a vague fear that I will like what I find "down below" and be sorry that Judy and I pulled up stakes five and one-half long years ago and moved to Charlevoix.

Last weekend was no exception.

We left Charlevoix at 5 p.m. Friday and five hours later we arrived in the Detroit suburbs, dazzled by the lights, the traffic and the hordes of people still on the streets, shopping and nightclubbing.

And I'll have to admit it was exciting, driving down familiar streets but not recognizing the occupants of another car on the road.

Saturday morning, I picked up a copy of the Detroit Free Press and learned that the U.S. unemployment rate had reached six percent—a nine year high—and was immediately puzzled. If the economy is in such a mess, where was everyone going so frantically the night before? Surely they didn't have any money to spend.

Then I glanced out the big picture window at the rear of my father's home and couldn't believe my eyes. In years past, all you could see from the window was a broad valley, bisected by Deer Creek, and on the opposite bank untrammeled acres of vacant land.

But not any more.

On the opposite bank I could plainly see all kinds of new buildings, some completed, some still under construction.

"What's going on, across the valley?" I asked my father.

"Condominiums," he answered. "Acres of 'em. And apartments. They're going up everywhere. Builders have discovered they can put more people on less land."

During our travels around Detroit we were surprised to find that the condominium and other multiple dwellings are making big news in the construction business. We saw literally hundreds of them, compared to only a handful of single-family units.

Saturday morning, we paid our first visit to Hudson's Westland, which has to be one of the nicest shopping centers in the world.

Unlike Northland and Eastland, Westland shops are all under one roof and wise shoppers check their topcoats and galoshes in the first convenient bank of lockers. You can walk from shop to shop in your shirtsleeves, without ever going outdoors.

We were surprised that Westland was as crowded as it was, what with the failing economy and all.

"They don't have any money to spend," I told Judy, confidentially. "They're just windown shoo

"They don't have any money to spend," I told Judy, confidentially. "They're just window shopping."

Then she pointed out to me a young school girl buying a trinket with a $100 bill.

Although Christmas is long past, all of the sales clerks and cash registers seemed to be going full tilt.

We dawdled at Westland until noon so we could have lunch at the American Coney Island, a branch of the American Coney Island on Lafayette-st. in downtown Detroit. The hot dogs were just as delectable as I remembered them, and the chili sauce was just as hot and indigestible, but the decor was a lot more up-to-the-minute than the downtown shop. The only other difference is that at Westland you are served by young girls who holler out your order in English. Downtown, the waiters are men and the predominant language is Greek.

Back on the street, we were amazed at the Saturday afternoon traffic and it was hard to imagine where everyone was heading in such an awful rush.

How does Detroit do it in the face of rising inflation and a sagging economy?

I don't know, unless you look at the employment figures in reverse and realize that 94 percent of the working population is still gainfully employed.

By Sunday morning we were ready to return to Charlevoix. The big city has it's charms, but we were yearning for a glimpse of open land, a pine forest or two and the sight of a horizon that doesn't fade off into a blue haze of factory smoke and auto exhaust.

Heading north, we noticed that the haze didn't end until we reached Standish, an indication that big city air pollution is a problem that is not confined to big cities alone.

We arrived back in Charlevoix Sunday afternoon, convinced all over again that northern Michigan is still one of the best places in this big world to call home. And we'd like to keep it that way.

Medals, Anyone?

By Jim Fitzgerald

Two dogs were recently awarded Bronze star medals "for meritorious service" against hostile forces in Vietnam, Aff, arf, said Sandy.

The magnificent hoax was pulled off by some soldiers to demonstrate that the wholesale awarding of medals has cheapened their value to the point where a true hero is reluctant to accept one. Military brass hats exchange medals like peanuts, competing to see which can wear the most ribbons on his manly chest. The generals also like to see their rugged faces reflected in the medals hanging on their troops. Everyone knows the dumb enlisted man couldn't earn an award without the inspiring leadership of General Chicken who phones brave orders to the front from his penthouse foxhole.

I remember how it was in 1945...

After over 2 years in the army, I ended up at Camp Polk, La., still a buck private. I was made an assistant to a colonel who was also a chaplain, in that order. My main job was to drive him once a week to the other side of camp where he gave patriotic-Christian sermons to the Negro soldiers who were not allowed in the camp's main church unless they were carrying brooms.

"I can't have any buck privates working for me," the colonel said. Overnight I became a corporal. Three months later I was a sergeant.

One day it was announced there would soon be a big parade and ceremony at which a visiting general would pin medals on deserving enlisted men.

"Write yourself up for a Legion of Merit," the colonel ordered.

That was the highest award given for outstanding service performed under non-combat conditions.

"Can I get that for changing my typewriter ribbon faithfully every week whether it needs it or not?" I asked him.

"You can think of something better than that," the colonel grumped. "I've never had an assistant who didn't win a medal and I don't want to start now."

Right here, because there are still people around who remember, I'd better admit I was a lousy chaplain's assistant. The awful truth is that my nickname around camp was The Drunken Padre. When the chaplain thought I was out posting church notices, I was actually drinking beer in the sergeant's club or shooting pool in the day room. My being assistant to a chaplain was generally regarded as similar to Al Capone being secretary of the treasury.

I really didn't care much about getting a medal. All I wanted was a discharge which was due in a few months. So I put pickled tongue in cheek and wrote how I had most distinguished myself at Camp Polk, thus earning the Legion of Merit.

That winter it had been ordered that every jeep in camp switch to winter tires. They meant switch tires, not wheels. You had to get a crowbar, or whatever, and pry 4 tires off the rims, they pry 4 others on. That was work which I was unaccustomed.

There were something like 1,500 jeeps in camp. By Christmas, 1,499 had switched tires. My jeep was the lone exception. The chaplain never noticed because he always looked up, straining to see how many officers in heaven out-ranked him.

This shirking was not accomplished easily. I had to drive the other way whenever an MP vehicle came into sight. I had to park behind trees. Most of all, I had to procrastinate skillfully whenever the motor pool captain wanted to know when I was going to change those!?!?&+? tires. I usually told him I'd do it tomorrow but today I had to drive the chaplain to chapel.

"I'd change them now but I don't want to interfere with every soldier's right to worship as he sees fit," I would explain. Captains never argued with generals or God. The tires were never switched.

Unfortunately, the colonel didn't agree that this devotion to dereliction was worth the Legion of Merit. He dropped my write-up into his sinner file and never mentioned the subject again.

And I hadn't thought about the colonel for 25 years, until I read about those two dogs getting Bronze Star medals. If they had been his dogs, it wouldn't have been a hoax.

Onward and Upward.

Now I Know I'm Home Again

(The following was written by Charles Moore, of Livingston County, soon after he returned from fighting in Vietnam-Editor).

You know you're really home from Vietnam:

When 23 hours later you bounce off the jet liner and the over-blast of hot, humid air has been changed to a mild, even chilly California sea breeze.

When the entire family meets you at the airport, wife and mother crying, children squealing, and your 'grownup' baby simply staring. When dad just grins and looks you over as if he were inspecting a prize head of stock.

When mother says how skinny you are and then tries to fatten you up overnight with creamy pies and chocolate cakes. When you lie and answer "no" to your kid brother's question of "Did you kill any Charlies'?"

When the preacher makes you stand on Sunday morning and goes on and on about how the "Lord watched over you."

When old ladies come by, squeeze your hand and murmur, "God bless you."

When teenagers stare in awe and admiration and older men tell you about how they fought 'their' war.

When civic groups consider you the expert on Vietnam and schedule you for numerous speaking engagements.

When you get your first pay check minus the 'combat' and 'separation' pay, and prices seem to have soared at least 150 percent.

When the first time a car backfires you hit the ground, then grin sheepishly as passers-by shake their heads at the 'local drunk.'

When your sister, who used to hang on to dolls, now hangs on to long-haired boys and her free hand always seems to be holding a transistor radio blaring the new 'in-music.'

When granddad says, "Let's go fishing, son!'

When granddad says, "Let's go fishing, son!" and you discover he's bought a complete new set of fishing gear just for the occasion.

When you try on your civvies and find that the trousers are at least three maybe four inches too big around the waist.

When you no longer remember how uncomfortable were the jungle fatigues or how heavy were the 20-pound flak vest and 30-pound pack.

When finally, after many unsuccessful attempts, your baby will let you hold him without crying.

When you notice the new gray hairs your mother has, the new wrinkles lining her face, and you make sure to hide the limp caused by the VC punji stake.

When someone says "Let's go swimming" and you prefer to sit under the air-conditioner. Or when you have to put on a muffler and coat because the temperature dropped to a 'freezing' 65 degrees.

When you see the rioting, looting and protesting; when you watch young men burn their draft cards and others burn the same flag you helped raise in such places as Dak To, Ashau, Khe Sanh, Tay Ninh, the DMZ...when you sometimes wonder if anyone cares.

Whey your baby, who called your photograph "da da" but didn't know what to call you, now hugs your neck tightly while whispering "nitey nite da da."

When the stifling heat, the dark jungle, the mud, the boredom, the intense fear and dying, all become dull memories. When you suddenly realize the absence of roaring helicopters and incoming or outgoing artillery fire.

When in the quiet evening you're alone with your thoughts, and you think how lucky you are and perhaps say a prayer of thanks.

When your eyes become misty as you think of Larry, Bill, Bob, Walt...who will never come home.

Then you know you're really home from Vietnam.

STATE OF MICHIGAN IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX.

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, Act No. 126 of the Public Acts of 1933, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, and the description of all lands in said county which are delinquent for any installment of taxes under the provisions of Act 126, P.A. 1933, as amended.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non-payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent and (d) $3.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned.

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule of the next annual tax sale for the non-payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land, or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Dated: December 9, 1970

State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State

Frank Benson Commissioned ROTC Officer

Eight Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) students at Central Michigan University, including Frank D. Benson of East Jordan were commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Army during ceremonies Friday, Dec. 18, in the CMU auditorium.

Keynote speaker was Dr. John C. Hepler. CMU professor of English, who is a recent recepient of a 1970 Freedom Foundation Award.

The award, presented annually by the Foundation, a non-sectarian organization headquartered in Valley Forge, Pa., honors Hepler for an article he published in "Army Magazine" explaining the contribution of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps to the national defense posture.

The ROTC program is a major source of commissioned officers for the U.S. Army. It provides an opportunity for young men to obtain training and experience in leadership and to prepare themselves for an army commission while studying for their baccalaureate degrees.

Since the first commissioning ceremony at CMU in 1954, more than 500 Central Michigan graduates have received U.S. Army commissions.

Benson is a senior majoring in history at CMU.

Library notes

New titles to start the New Year include some thought-proving and timely books which will appeal, not only to our home-from-college patrons but for everyone who enjoys current, well-written, informative non-fiction.

"Nixon" by Earl Mazo and Stephen Hess is one of the best political biographies of the century according to the Boston Globe. No figure in American politics has been more prematurely written off, generously praised and criticized, and passionately voted for or against than Richard Nixon. This new book sets out to explain the man behind the victory. The authors are well-qualified to handle the subject. Earl Mazo has been the national political correspondent for the New York Times and is presently on the staff of Reader's Digest. Stephen Hess is a political historian who has written several highly acclaimed books.

"Thirteen Days" by Robert F. Kennedy is a memoir of the Cuban missile crisis. It is an extraordinary historical document and an extraordinary human document, as well. It is remarkable not only for its inside story of the first great crisis of the atomic era but also for its moving revelation of the relationship of two men–President Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev.

"Eisenhower, the President Nobody Knew" is an insider's appraisal of the Eisenhower administration and a portrait of the President in action. The author, Arthur Larson, has unique qualifications, having served as special assistant to Eisenhower and as his chief speech writer. The book is filled with illuminating anecdotes about Dwight Eisenhower and the men around him.

"Marx" is a massive and profound biography about one of the mighty figures of all time. We live in the age of Marx--a thousand million people, nearly half the world, are ruled by governments that claim to follow his teachings. He died in obscurity 85 years ago, yet the enormous influence of his ideas has created a legend that hides the real man. In these pages, Karl Marx, the man, appears, and he has little in common with the legend. He engaged in stock market speculations; he seduced his wife's maid and fathered an illegitimate child; he enjoyed visiting expensive spas and consorting with the rich and privileged; he exploited those around him–his wife, his children, his mistress, his friends--with aristocratic ruthlessness and revolutionary brutality. Marx's life is inseparable from his work, for few thinkers have so directly affected the course of history. Robert Payne, the author, also has written, "Forever China," "The Three Worlds of Albert Schweitzer," "The Gold of Troy" and The Life and Death of Lenin." He has been called a literary phenomenon of astounding industry and versatility. The book has a fine section of photographs.

Fire Victims

NEW YORK–Fire tends to victimize the very old and the very young. The Insurance Information Institute notes that the highest death rate by fire is among persons 65 years of age or older; the second highest rate among children under 5.

Joan Nelson Cited for Phys. Ed. Role

Miss Joan Nelson, a native of Charlevoix and a member of the faculty of the Ferris State College department of health and physical education, is one of two recipients of the Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreational annual honor awards.

Miss Nelson was cited for the award because of the direction she has given the women's intramural program at Ferris combining it with her teaching and for her participation in state-wide sports days for college women.

At Ferris she also has served as faculty advisor for two fitness programs for the Ferris Dames, wives of students.

A past president of District II of the Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Miss Nelson has for the past five years been editor of the MAHPER Journal. She also serves as lifetime sports coordinator for District II.

Miss Nelson attended elementary and high school in Charlevoix. Miss Nelson served as a swimming instructor and water safety director in Charlevoix for 10 years.

She has taught in Barryton and Grand Rapids Lee high schools before her appointment to Ferris in 1962. She holds the bachelor and master's degrees from Michigan State University and has taken graduate work at several other universities including the University of Oslo, Norway.

MISS JOAN NELSON, a former resident of Charlevoix and present faculty member at Ferris State College, receives honor award from Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation from Dr. Herbert Peterson, director of athletics at Ferris.

Two Law Officers Attend 'Breathalyzer' Course

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputy James McCallum and Charlevoix city Patrolman Richard Wells were among 70 law enforcement officers in the Traverse City region who attended a "Breathalyzer" operator's recertification program in December.

The program was conducted by the Michigan Department of Public Health in cooperation with the Department of State Police and Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center. Northwestern Michigan University was host.

This is the third year in which Breathalyzer operators, previously trained at Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center, will be required to attend a one-day recertification program in order to retain their qualified status.

According to Dr. Robert Howenstein, assistant chief of the State Crime-Detection Laboratory, the total program will involve over 1200 active operators throughout Michigan and will be held at various sites across the state.

The program is being conducted by the Michigan Department of Public Health in cooperation with the Department of State Police and MSU's Highway Traffic Safety Center on Dec. 15-16.

From January to October, 1970, 510 persons were arrested for drunk driving in the 7th State Police District (Traverse City Region). Of those arrested, 410 tested out drunk or impaired, 16 were legally unimpaired and 84 refused to take the Breathalyzer test.

Under Michigan's Implied Consent law, persons refusing to take the Breathalyzer test, will invoke an automatic suspension or revocation of their driver's license from 90 days to two years.

Jerry Stemler, course director and highway safety specialist for the Highway Traffic Safety Center, has stressed the fact that recertification, on an annual basis, will assure that Breathalyzer operators will maintain their high state of proficiency through these one day refresher programs.

Capt. John Amthor of the Safety and Traffic Division, Michigan State Police, will provide special officers who have received extended training in Breathalyzer operator procedures to assist with the training programs.

Milton Hagelberg, MSU regional director of Continuing Education at Northwestern, is coordinating the program.

Charlevoix, Michigan

Gentlemen:

Whereas, the economic development of Northwestern Michigan depends in large measure on the adequacy of primary roads eminating from the major centers of population and industry to the South (it should be noted that most of the Counties in this area, are considered economically depressed by the Federal Government), and

Whereas, the State Highway Department has recognized this necessity by its plan to convert US 31 and US 131 into four lane highways, simultaneously, with the desirable ultimate result of providing two major north-south arteries, serving Western Michigan, and

Whereas, the concurrent development of two major roads seems illogical to this Board for the following reasons:

1. The accident rate will continue to be far greater than if one of the two roads were expeditiously completed and a major share of the north-south traffic in Western Michigan diverted to it,

2. Economic development in ALL of Northwest Michigan will be far slower than if one of the roads were given priority. Thousands of much needed tax dollars, will be lost to the State and Local Communities.

3. The attraction of tourists and industry alike to Northwest Michigan will show no major improvement until at least one of the major roads is completed.

4. The Development of the Sleeping Bear Sand Dunes area into a National Park will increase the danger of travel by road and further emphasized the immediate need for at least one four lane highway leading into Northwest Michigan,

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners urges the State Highway Department to reconsider present policy of developing US 31 and US 131 simultaneously for both safety and economic reasons. All available funds should be used to complete one route, no matter which one, to provide safe access to and from Northwest Michigan. Economically, all areas in Northwest will benefit from the early completion of one route, not just the towns along the route chosen, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That after due deliberation and study it appears that US 131 should receive the higher priority based on the higher year around volumn of traffic, a higher accident rate, greater economic impact plus the fact that it is the most direct route north with the resulting, lower construction costs, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to Governor Milliken, Senator Davis, Representative Friske, the State Highway Department, US 31 and US 131 Associations and all County Boards of Commissioners along both proposed routes, the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission, and the Economic Development District.

Signed: Harry Tompkins, Barney Milstein, John Kujawski, Committee.

Resolution adopted.

RESOLUTION LAMPREY CONTROL

Moved by Commissioner Tompkins and supported by Commissioner Kassin that the following resolution be adopted:

Gentlemen:

Whereas, Sea Lamprey predation upon Lake Trout in the Great Lakes has increased alarmingly, and

Whereas, increased evidence of lake trout scarring by lampreys is mounting, and

Whereas, Michigan has a multimillion dollar industry in jeopardy, and in particular our Charlevoix County area and the resulting economic and recreational impact would be severely impaired.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners urgently request the financial aid, and any other assistance required to keep this prolific predator in check, be Increased and jackets, a portion of a life raft and assorted pieces of wreckage had been recovered by the surface and air craft, but that no bodies have been recovered.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to Representative Ruppe, and Senators Griffin, and Hart, State Senator Davis, and State Representative Friske and the Counties of the State of Michigan.

He had high praise for the Coast Guardsmen who took part in the search and effort efforts.

The B-52, which left Westover AFB in Massachusetts about 1:30 p.m. Thursday, was making a routine pass over the Radar Bomb Scoring site to test the proficiency of the bomb crew.

According to a 1965 AF manual, planes enter the flight path over Bay Shore from either the east or west. The eastern approach is called "Ice Age", the western approach "Ski Land." The planes turn over Lake Superior, cross the Upper Peninsula and approach Bay Shore from the north.

According to the manual, the day altitude of approaching planes is set at 500 feet and the night altitude at 800 feet, although Col. Davison says altitudes vary depending on weather conditions.

Josh Barnes, president of Lexalite Corp., located on the Lake Michigan shore about four miles south of the crash scene, figures that if the plane were traveling 500 miles per hour, it would have crashed on land if it had stayed in the air only 11 seconds longer. Lexalite is located next door to the atomic plant.

Divers Sift Wreckage

Weather Hampers B-52 Crash Probe

Hard-hat divers from Louisiana and Florida were expected to arrive in the Charlevoix area Monday night to take part in efforts to retrieve wreckage of an Air Force B-52 bomber which crashed, burned and sank three and one-half miles off North Point Jan. 7.

Col. Robert Saye, public information officer for the Accident Investigation Board probing the crash, said that the divers probably would make their first descent Wednesday morning.

He said the water temperature in the area is just above 32 degrees but that the divers will be protected by wet suits.

Col. Saye said the divers, who will come from Morgantown, La., and points in Florida, are civilians under contract to Ocean Systems, Inc., a Virginia-based salvage company assisting the Air Force in the investigation.

The men will work off the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Woodbine, out of Grand Haven, Mich., which has been in Charlevoix since last Tuesday evening assisting in salvage efforts.

The cutter Sundew, whose home port is Charlevoix, has been in the Straits of Mackinac all week breaking ice.

The Woodbine has served as a floating platform for the Ocean Systems salvage crew who located the pieces of wreckage by means of sonar and have attempted to examine it with underwater television cameras.

Peter Johnson Seeks Recount

Attorney Paul Brown of Petoskey confirmed Monday that Peter C. Johnson of Boyne City, the Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives from the 106th district in the November election, will ask the House this week for a recount of all paper ballots in the district.

Johnson lost to his Republican foe, Richard Friske of Antrim County, by a margin of 637 votes, Brown said.

He added that Johnson will present a petition asking for the recount to Tom Thatcher, clerk of the House. It is then up to the House to arrange a recount of the 90 paper ballot precincts at a cost of $5 a precinct. The cost will be borne by Johnson and his supporters.

Brown says he hopes the recount can be completed by the end of January.

The Democrats feel many votes were miscounted because of a three-way race between Johnson, Friske and Republican write-in candidate Glenn Law jr. of St. Ignace.

THE U.S. COAST GUARD cutter Woodbine, stationed at Grand Haven, has been in Charlevoix the past week assisting in efforts to examine the wreckage of a B-52 bomber which crashed and sank in Lake Michigan off Big Rock Point Jan. 7. The ship serves as a platform for salvage experts who are attempting to examine the wreckage via television.

Pilots to Avoid Big Rock Point On Bomb Runs

Romney Wheeler, assistant director of public relations for Consumers Power Co. in Jackson, Mich., says the company has received a letter from the Air Force, via Rep. Gerald Ford, saying that "every attempt will be made to exclude the Big Rock Point nuclear plant by the requested 12.5 miles" during AF bomb scoring runs over the Bay Shore site.

The letter was dated Jan. 7, the same day a B-52 bomber crashed in Lake Michigan off Bay Shore while on a simulated bombing mission.

Col. Fred Davison, commanding officer of the bomb scoring site, said the off-limits air space near the nuclear power plant poses no great problem in the scoring of bombing runs.

He expects that when low level flights are resumed following investigation of the crash that the approach corridor will be redesigned.

The AF letter was in response to a Consumers Power request on Dec. 18, 1970, that bombers steer clear of Big Rock Point.

Church Elects Officers

The First Baptist Church of Charlevoix elected new officers at the church's annual meeting Jan. 11.

Elected deacons for two years were John Powell, Leonard Dubey and Allen Walton. Remaining in office are Larry Watkins, Richard Baker and Mike Wheat.

Elected two-year trustees were Bob Holecheck and Jerry Wagoner. They will serve with Ruby Davis, Bob May and Fran May.

Elected deaconess for two years were Rose Mae Holecheck, Dorlah Williams and Carol Baker. Evva Smith was elected to a one-year term. Marilyn May continues as deaconess.

On the board of Christian education for two years will be June Riley, children; Aileen Wagoner, adults; May Smith, missionary and stewardship; and Fran Ward, leadership (one year). Also on the board are Chairman Gennie Watkins and Youth Representative Marion May.

Own Pay Hike Hit By Friske

State Rep. Richard Friske (R-106th District) says he will make every effort to defeat the proposed pay increase authorized for him and his fellow legislators by the State Officers Compensation Commission.

"In view of the present financial condition of the state, if given a chance, I will vote against the proposal," Friske said.

"I want to make it clear that I am not saying that the recommended salary is not proper compensation for the size and scope of the job, but I do feel that the timing is bad.

"I would ask the people of the 106th District, and all of Northern Michigan, to support me in this effort by writing their elected representatives urging them to vote against the proposed pay raise at this time.

"The state is suffering from grave economic setbacks of last fall. Governor Milliken has called for no new taxes in 1971 coupled with wiser use of existing revenues. He has also set an example for all of us to follow by turning down his own pay raise for six months.

"I am not being noble in making this decision, just practical. For any elected official to accept a pay raise while the state is in such an economic situation without attempting to defeat it, he would just serve to further dampen the public's faith in its government," Friske concluded.

Lachman Re-elected President of Chest

John Lachman, manager of the Hoskins Manufacturing Co. plant, was re-elected president of the Charlevoix Community Chest at the annual organizational meeting Jan. 11 at the city hall.

Serving with Lachman will be Tom LaBlance, Vice president; Mrs. John (Sally) Lignell, secretary; and Mrs. Edward McNamara, treasurer.

At the meeting, certificates of achievement were presented to representatives of the three Charlevoix schools for their cooperation in the 1970 campaign.

Receiving the awards were Mrs. Charles Meier of the Elementary School, James Jensen of the High School and Mrs. Lucy Martin of the Middle School.

Industrial awards went to Freedman Artcraft Engineering Co., Medusa Portland Cement Co., American Mold Engineering, and Hoskins Manufacturing.

Elected new directors at the meeting were Mrs. Donald (Barbara Berlage), Jack Grubaugh and Mrs. Virginia Hoffman. They succeed E.D. (Pat) Hawley, Mrs. Charles Berg and Mrs. John Fratrick. The terms last three years.

Tom LaBlance, campaign chairman for 1970, reported that the drive topped its goal of $21,000. He had high praise for the special gifts and professional divisions which exceeded their quotas.

We'll Vote in February, April---For Time Being

The City Council voted Monday night to "opt out" of a new state law changing the time of municipal elections from spring until fall.

The council's action means that Charlevoixans will vote for city officers February and April, just as they always have.

However, the council said it can see advantages to the fall election, plus a longer term for the mayor, and asked City Attorney John Michael to come up with recommendations by the next council meeting.

The city primary will be Feb. 15 and the general election April 5. Three races have developed. Andy Essenburg is opposing William Fochtman as mayor; Robert Wise jr. has filed for Second Ward alderman against Robert Gill; and George Richardson has filed for Third Ward alderman, opposing Clifton F. Sundberg.

In other business, the council:

–Heard a report by City Superintendent Thomas Hanna that new bids on two phases of the sewage plant project will be asked Jan. 23, with opening Feb. 23. The original bids came in about 25 percent over the estimated

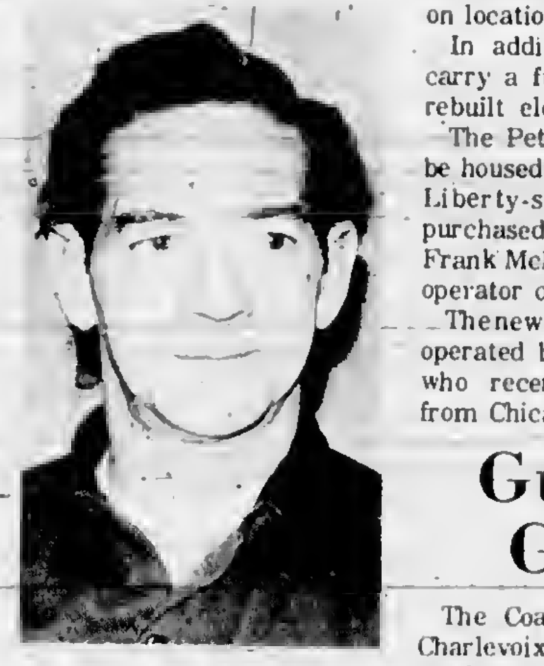
2nd Shop Opened By Browe Electric

Browe Electric of Charlevoix has opened a second shop in Petoskey called Browe's Commercial Electric, according to Ted Browe, proprietor.



Denver Jacksou

The Petoskey shop will specialize in industrial and commercial electric service, offering the latest in electric motor rewinding and repair.

Browe says the new outlet is fully equipped for in-plant or on location service.

In addition, the shop will carry a full line of new and rebuilt electrical equipment.

The Petoskey business will be housed in a building at 406 Liberty-st. which Browe purchased last summer from Frank McNamara, owner and operator of the Home Dairy.

The new service shop will be operated by Denver Jackson who recently moved north from Chicago.

A veteran of 15 years in the electrical service and equipment business, Jackson studied electricity at Arsenal Technical High School in Indianapolis and later completed the electrical course offered at Coyne Electrical Institute in Chicago.

While employed by Keck Electric Corp. rewinding electric motors and making industrial service calls, Jackson attended the University of Illinois where he studied automation and automatic industrial control.

Jackson later served as general shop foreman for the Joliet Equipment Corp. in Joliet, Ill. He not only supervised the electrical equipment rebuilding plant but also had charge of design and construction of specialized industrial motor control.

He also has worked in the maintenance department of Ceco Corp. and as preventive maintenance superintendent of International Nichol Corp.'s steel tubing division at Fairbury, Ill.

Guard Discontinues Group Charlevoix

The Coast Guard's Group Charlevoix, administrative headquarters for CG stations and lighthouses in northern Michigan since the mid-1940's, will be discontinued on or before March 1.

Word of the reorganization was received by Lt. Donald D. Luedke, commander of Group Charlevoix for the past three years.

Lt. Luedke said under the reorganization plan, all Coast Guard units in northern Michigan will come under the supervision of Group Sault, headquartered at Sault Ste. Marie.

The move means that Lt. Luedke, CWO Henry Brunet and six men serving under them at group headquarters in Charlevoix will be reassigned.

Lt. Luedke said the move is being made in the interests of greater efficiency.

"Under Group Sault, there won't be any duplication of paper work," he said.

He said probably an even more important reason is that the duties of the group headquarters have increased enormously in the past few years, particularly since the Coast Guard has been placed in a position of policing pollution violators for the federal government.

"We would either have to increase our staff or be absorbed by a larger headquarters," he said.

Group Charlevoix has served as administrative headquarters for lighthouses at Lansing Shoal, Gray's Reef, and White Shoal in Lake Michigan and Martin's Reef, Spectacle Reef, Poe Reef and Thunder Bay Island in Lake Huron.

Land bases include stations at Charlevoix and St. Ignace, the sub-unit on Beaver Island and land lights at Alpena and Cheboygan, as well as several unmanned facilities.

Members and friends received a Christmas letter from their former minister, Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Mitchell, who now make their home in Billings, Mont., where he is in charge and most active in the church work of the First Church in that city.

It has been three years since we have heard from them and changes and interests have taken place in their family as in all others.

Billings is where the movie "Little Big Men" was made a year ago and depicts the Custer battle from the view point of the American Indian. It was premiered in that city before the holidays and thousands of Indians were there celebrating the event. They felt it a wonderful experience to share with these proud wonderful people some of their culture and feel it is sad to realize how much of it they have lost because of greediness hate and fear of men. If we could only open our hearts for better things and leave behind forever the Custer battlefields throughout the world.

This most interesting and welcome letter is posted on the bulletin board in our church for everyone to read.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lambdon and son Jeoffrey and two friends of Detroit were guests this past weekend of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Williams and other relatives.

N.C. Christensen and Robert Stowe have been busy repairing the Church pews the past few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pearl, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knudson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pearsall of Charlevoix enjoyed a Safari with their snowmobiles over the hills and through the woods to Norwood last Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Harmun brought their snowmobiles over to church last Sunday morning and spent the afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Saunders and family entertaining them with snowmobile rides over the Saunders farm and countryside.

Sonny and Jeannie Williams have a new two stall prefabricated steel garage that includes a shop for Sonny. It was erected next to their home.

Lake Charlevoix froze over Tuesday night. As far as one can see as there is not a ripple of water to be seen. Drove to East Jordan Thursday and there are no fish shanties out. There is too much snow to tell the thickness of the ice.

But there are five shanties near the ferry and fisherman can be seen sitting out partway to Hemingway's Point. They are catching some nice perch but what cold winds they endure for this winter sport.

Jordan C of C Plans Dinner

The East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual dinner meeting Saturday, Jan. 23, at 6 p.m. at the East Jordan Sno-Mobiler clubhouse on Alba-rd.

After the dinner, financial and activities reports will be given and three new board members will be elected.

Guest speaker will be Richard Paul of Detroit, a representative of the federal office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Tickets are on sale at the Northwestern State Bank, the office of attorney Madeline Dinu or from President Thomas Wiltjer or Secretary Ginny Carey.

Area Students Plan Government Day

Charlevoix High School will be the site of this year's annual Senior Government Day to be held Monday, Feb. 22, for six Charlevoix and Antrim County schools, according to Charles Crosser, assistant superintendent of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

At a recent planning session 40 senior class representatives and government teachers met in the conference room of the First State Bank, Charlevoix, to formulate plans and designate responsibilities.

Nelson Green, Charlevoix government teacher, and Crosser will serve as co-chairmen.

Former state treasurer, D. Hale Brake, led the planning session and will serve as moderator on Feb. 22. Brake presently is director of the Education Division, Michigan Townships Association.

Each year approximately 50 resource people from local and state units of government are invited by the seniors to meet in a day-long program designed to give a better understanding of governmental activities and problems.

Section meeting topics selected for this year are: Conservation, Law Enforcement, Selective Service, Courts, Legislation, Township Government, Education, Mental Health, Welfare, Juvenile Problems and Roads and Streets.

Taking part in the government day planning session were:

Charlevoix: Nelson Green, teacher; Nikki Ballard, Kris Brady, Ronald Bindi, Robert Donaldson, Kathy Egler, Charles Elzinga, Mari Goss, John Kerner, David Kimble, Linda Ormsby, Rick Potter and Devvie Smith.

Ellsworth: Jack Gebott, teacher; Helen Hoeksema and Dianna Penfold.

East Jordan: Ed Wodzinski, teacher; Kamila Cherry, Maureen Cihak and Ross Tisron.

Central Lake: Ernest Anger, teacher; Rick Aenie, Fella Bothwell, William Bump, Paul Erickson, Debbie Graves, Valma Hoeksema and Judy Kruse.

Boyne City: Maurice Dixon, teacher, and Roderick Place, assistant principal; Patti Brown, Darrell Hardy, Susie Lentz, Tim Moody, Linda Nelson and Dennis Tomkins.

Boyne Falls: Miss Nancy Hellman, teacher; Jolane DeNise and Kathy Hausler.

The Beaver Island Community School was not represented at the meeting but is expected to participate in the program.

Beaver Island Kids Start Flying Club

By Betty Welke

A new club has been formed on Beaver Island. The young people are putting an eye to the sky while putting their minds to study.

The "Beaver Island Flying Club" has a membership of 15 teenage boys and girls. They meet every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in the school under the leadership of Bill Welke, a licensed flying instructor.

Club officers are Dan Gillespie, president; Frank Solle, vice president; Audrey Wojan, secretary; James Wojan, treasurer; Karen McCafferty, commerce secretary and reporter; and Julie Gillespie, public relations.

Other members of the club are Jeff McGlocklin, Mark Welke, Richard Gillespie, Jim McCafferty, Carl Welke, Launie McGlocklin, Doris Kenwabikese, Tom McDonough, and Mike Green.

Dues are 25 cents a week and the goal of every member is to be able to "solo."

The club is presently setting up a study curriculum and members hope that through donations and fund-raising activities they can scrape together enough money to buy study materials.

But all is not classwork for the Beaver Island Flying Club.

Last weekend several members went aloft in Welke's plane and their instructor hopes that every member can log some "air time" every month, weather permitting.

Letters to the editor

January 15, 1971

Mr. Bob Clock, Editor
Charlevoix Courier
111 Bridge Street
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Sir:

I am writing to express agreement with the letter written by Mrs. T.J. Kirche regarding the growing number of naive idealistic Americans who are being duped into wearing the broken inverted cross, "the witches foot", a symbol of Satan, and which, most appropriately, has been adopted by the Communists as one of their favorite "peace" insignias.

When this "mark of the beast" is worn, the person wearing it is, usually unknowingly, giving a form of aid, comfort and encouragement to an enemy which is continually reaffirming their intentions to overwhelm the free world by the use of Nuclear Extortion, external encirclement and internal demoralization. These dupes are supporting "peace" all right–the peace of the slave or the grave--Communist "peace"–which has so far brutually enslaved one-third of the world's population, living on 25 percent of the land area of the earth, and has horribly murdered from 60 to 90 million peace-loving human beings in the process.

It makes on difference whether a person agrees with the information above or even understands it; for sometime within the next 3-5 years the Tyrants of Communism will be strong enough militarily, politically and psychologically to confirm, thru Nuclear Extortion, or a massive–and overwhelming first strike missile, attack, what I and others have written concerning Communist "peace".

Patrick Henry said, "Gentlemen cry, 'peace, peace'–but there is no peace" because the endless wars in which our nation has become involved were fought to attempt to slow down the Communist timetable for bringing their "peace on Earth".

I know from long experience that the idealistic intellectuals, the uninformed appeasers and the unilateral disarmers will not be convinced until we get the "15 minute warning", if then, but perhaps some of the dupes might have their eyes opened to the hellish program of slaughter and enslavement which comes to those subjected to the Marxist Lenin "peace" represented by the "witches foot".

If people want peace, I suggest they wear the American flag pin–the only symbol that means peace on earth, good will to men–thru strength with justice.

Sincerely,
Thomas L. Ramsey

State Wants Fixed Span Over Saginaw

The U.S. Coast Guard has received an application from the state Highway Department seeking approval of plans to reconstruct the present Genesee-ave. double-leaf bascule drawbridge across the Saginaw River, replacing the drawspan with a fixed span over the navigation channel.

With the present bridge, the channel has a horizontal clearance of 85.4 feet between piers, unlimited verticle clearance when the bridge is open and 20-feet clearance when the bridge is closed.

The reconstructed bridge will offer 88-feet horizontal clearance and 50-feet verticle clearance.

"The decision as to whether or not approval of the bridge plans..will be granted must rest primarily upon the effect of the proposed work on present and future navigation of the waterway," said Rear Admiral W.A. Jenkins, commander of the Ninth Coast Guard District.

Adm. Jenkins' office (1240 E. Ninth-st., Cleveland, Ohio, 44199) will receive protests or comments on the proposed bridge reconstruction through Monday, Jan. 25.

MAD SCIENTIST SOLVES PROBLEM OF COLD FEET

He invented an amazing product called WARM POWER and virtually eliminated icy, cold, clammy feet from the face of this land. Remember last winter and those two lumps of ice that passed as your feet? Well, no more numb noonies, no more frosty tootsies. As Americans, we can hold our feet high, for the world in winter is now our footpath to happiness.
Simply spray WARM POWER all over your bare feet before going outdoors. Let it air dry a moment. Then put on your normal winter outerwear: 5 to 10 minutes later your feet will feel toasty warm and stay that way for hours — even in sub freezing weather. Seems incredible? Believe us, it works. Only $2.50 for about 30 applications.
WARM POWER. Just ask for it by name. Try it . . . or the mad scientist is gonna getcha.

Library Notes

Now that the busy holiday season is over, people are getting back into the reading groove, but we notice that time is still a precious commodity, and the requests from our patrons are for slim books. "Please recommend a good story that won't take long to read."

And so, since the five-pound "Gone With the Wind" volumes are no longer in fashion, we'd like to recommend some lighter weight books which can be enjoyed in a brief evening.

At the very top of the list is the new book by Per Olof Sundman "Two Days, Two Nights. The Swedish author has been widely translated in many languages, but this is his first English translation. It is certain not to be the last. This is a first-rate book, and it would be impossible to read the first page and not continue until the end. It is the story of a manhunt in northern Sweden for a homicidal maniac, and the slim book deals entirely with a school teacher and a policeman who take part in the search. This is not a violent or brutal book, but it is so full of gripping suspense and the writing–simple, pure, uncluttered--is so beautiful that we recommend it to everyone.

"Loblolly" is a novel with a southern accent by Frank G. Gilbreth, jr., There are only 214 pages in this slim volume. It is the delightful story of two Northern-reared children, orphaned in New York, who are forced to move in with their grandmother and live in Charleston, S.C. This is a droll tale with the lighthearted and warmly humorous flavor we have come to expect from any book written by Mr. Gilbreth.

Kingsley Amis has Anthony Powell described as the most brilliantly amusing novelist in England. Peter De Vries considers him "my favorite author". Now we have another of his intricately woven spider's webs of high comedy, "Casanova's Chinese Restaurant" is the fifth novel in Mr. Powell's series about English society. There are 227 pages in this fast-paced, witty book about London in the thirties. Each page is witty and full of fun. The entire book is a delightful pasttime.

"Don't Come Back Without It" by Gael Greene is dedicated to the author's parents and the dedication reads: "To my parents, because this book could never have been written if they hadn't finally cut off my allowance, forcing me to earn a living." A list of the chapters will further intrigue the reader. Chapter 1--Schizophrenia Is a Two-Way Street. Chapter - 2--Vice Couldn't be Nice. Chapter 3–Innocents Abroad, and How I Corrupted Them. Chapter 6–Please, Mr. Hemingway, May I Have the Next Dance? and Chapter 9–Marijuana, Who Needs It? Just Pass the Potato Pancakes.

There doesn't seem to be much more to say to introduce a completely delightful book. Unfortunately it is limited to 214 pages which go all too quickly.

STATE OF MICHIGAN IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX.

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, Act No. 126 of the Public Acts of 1933, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains, the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, and the description of all lands in said county which are delinquent for any installment of taxes under the provisions of Act 126, P.A. 1933, as amended.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non-payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent and (d) $3.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned;

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid; delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays.

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended;

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained;

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land, or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides;

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Scouts to Take Part In Klondike Derby

Boy Scouts from five counties in northern Michigan will converge upon the Inland Lakes School and Burt Lake State Park near Indian River on Saturday, Jan. 30, to participate in the annual Klondike Derby of the Scenic Trails Council's Northern District.

An estimated 500 adults, leaders, and Scouts from troops in the counties of Antrim, Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, and Otsego are expected to attend.

A Klondike Derby is an annual wintertime event in Scouting whereby Scouts are given an opportunity to test their skills in such varied events as: first aid, use of maps and compasses, shelter building, survival techniques, signaling, pioneering, ropework, plant and animal identification, and so on. Scouts are organized by patrols and are graded not only upon their skill in any event, but also on their patrol spirit, teamwork, and cooperation.

Each patrol of Scouts is equiped with a Klondike sled of their own making which is patterned after the dog sleds used in the historical Klondike gold rush. The members of the patrols act as the "huskies" in pulling the sled from one station to another. The stations are given colorful Alaskan names and are staffed by adult and boy members of the Order of the Arrow, Scouting's Honor Society, who act as judges.

Registration will begin at 11 a.m. on Saturday, and the Derby will begin at noon. Each Scout and Scout leader registering will receive a patch, and a snack at the conclusion of the Klondike. A special item on the menu will be "slum-gulligun", a mixture of several kinds of soup. The public and Scout parents are welcome to come and enjoy the activity.

Klondike Derbies are a part of the Scouting program of the Scenic Trails Council, which covers 18 counties in northern Lower Michigan. The Scenic Trails Council is a member agency of all northern Michigan United Funds.

Martin's Clings To Lead

By Dave Novotny

League-leading Martin's stayed on the top shelf in Charlevoix Independent Basketball League play last week, defeating the First State Bank 79 to 71.

In the only other action, powerful Andy's handed Medusa a 74-51 defeat.

In the first game, Martin's jumped to a 20-13 lead in the first quarter and stayed in front 40-32 at the half.

In the third quarter the Bankers out-scored Martin's 20-10 to take a 52-50 lead going into the final quarter, but Martin's came from behind to win.

Norm Ostrum led Martin's with 30, followed by ageless Leroy Buchanan with 22 and Hank Wagner with 11.

The State Bank was paced by Gary Stutzman 25, followed by Norm Probert with 14.

In the second game, Andy's took a first quarter lead of 17-15 and stayed in front the rest of the game. At the half it was 40-27 and 54-40 after three periods.

Alpena, Petoskey Slated for Weekend

Charlevoix Red Rayders defeated Boyne City Friday night, 64 to 43, but lost to St. Ignace Saturday, 92 to 73.

In the game at Boyne City, Charlevoix's Bruce Meggison suffered badly torn ligaments in one knee when he jumped for the basket and fell. The injured leg was placed in a cast over the weekend, probably sidelining Meggison for the remainder of the season.

Charlevoix out-played the Ramblers from the start, with quarter scores of 23-12; 40-19; 49-33 and 64-43.

High scorer for Charlevoix was Bill Carey who rang up 18 points on six field goals and six free throws out of eight attempts.

Following were Tim Carey, 14 points on six FG and 2 FT; Jerry Pease, 9 points on 4 FG and 1 FT; Larry Potter, 8 points on 2 FG and 4 FT; Roger Crain, 7 points on 2 FG and 3 FT; Dave Swanson, 4 points of 2 FG; and Bruce Meggison and Kevin Swanson, 2 points each on FG.

High man for Boyne City was Keith Hausler who scored 11 points on 5 FG and 1 FT. Following were William Anzell, 9 points; Alan Newville and Bob Spencer, 5 each; Fred DiMartino and David Korthase, 4 each; and Duncan Hall, 1.

Saturday's game was just the reverse, with St. Ignace leading all the way. Quarter scores were 23-12; 49-29; 68-45; and 92-73.

Bill Carey scored almost one third of Charlevoix's total points. He was credited with 25 on 10 FG and 4 FT. He was followed by Larry Potter, 17, on 8 FG; Kevin Swanson, 14, on 7 FG; Jerry Pease, 9, on 4 FG and 1 FT; and Roger Crain, 8 on 2 FG and 4 FT.

Scorers for St. Ignace were Lester, 28; Donovan, 24; Savard, 18; Powers, 10; Bomla, 8; and Shimkovitz, 4.

This weekend, the Rayders will meet Alpena in Charlevoix on Friday. On Saturday they will play the Northmen in Petoskey.

What Do You Do in the Winter in Charlevoix?

Skate and Ski, Ski and Skate

"What do you do in the winter in Charlevoix?" is the question most frequently asked the natives by summer visitors.

The answer, so far as Charlevoix's young people are concerned, is "Skiing and skating."

Lofty Mt. McSauba at North Point invites skiers afternoons, evenings and weekends.

The ice rink at the Middle School is open every afternoon and evening until 9 p.m.

Can you think of a better way to spend the winter?

What If B-52 Hit Nuclear Power Plant?

Ever since the big B-52 bomber crashed into Lake Michigan off Big Rock Point the evening of Jan. 7, many Charlevoixans have been edgy about the possibility of another bomber crashing into the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant, owned and operated by Consumers Power Co.

And not without reason.

Although the atomic age is 25 years old, we still don't know much about radiation contamination and what exactly would happen to the Charlevoix area in the unlikely eventuality that a bomber should happen to nose-dive on the Big Rock plant.

Rumors are rampant that the entire area would be uninhabitable for thousands of years, that countless lives would be lost and that property values would drop to zero -- as if that would even matter in the wake of such a calamity.

The worriers have a right to be concerned.

The problem centers around the fact that the Consumers plant and the Air Force's Radar Bomb Scoring site at Bay Shore are practically neighbors, located only a few scant miles apart on the Lake Michigan shore.

And both facilities have proved to be a boon to the entire area.

We cannot think of a finer, cleaner method of producing electric power in a resort area than by nuclear fission, operating as it does without coal piles, stack gas and fly ash.

Likewise, the air base has provided a year 'round shot in the arm to the local economy. The airmen and their families live off the base, they shop locally and they have proven themselves to be good friends and neighbors.

But the present bomb scoring runs over Bay Shore come too close to the Consumers Plant for comfort.

Happily there is an answer to the dilemma.

On Dec. 18, Consumers Power Co. asked the Air Force, via Rep. Gerald Ford, to see what could be done about moving the bomb scoring runs 12½ miles east or west of Big Rock Point.

In a letter dated Jan. 7 — the day of the crash – an unnamed Air Force colonel in charge of congressional liaison informed Ford that "every attempt will be made to exclude the Big Rock Point nuclear plant by the requested 12½ miles."

Unfortunately, word apparently hadn't filtered down to Westover AFB, because the bomber that did crash that evening was well within the 12½ mile limit.

According to Col. Fred Davison, commanding officer of the bomb scoring site, the new limit will provide no hardship in scoring bomb runs, since sensitive equipment at the base can pick up aircraft as far away as the Upper Peninsula.

He fully expects that when low-level flights are resumed following investigation of the crash that the approach corridor will be redesigned incorporating the new 12½-mile limits.

Although the Big Rock Point plant was built to withstand all kinds of natural and man-made catastrophies – including an earthquake and tornado occurring simultaneously as well as the head-on crash of a 707 — Consumers officials have been anxious to have the bomb scoring runs rerouted for the past three years - - just in case.

We trust that the Air Force will follow through on its promise to redesign the bomb scoring corridor. Then we will all breathe a little easier.

Rep. Richard Friske Reports From Lansing

By Richard Friske
State Representative
106th District

The Michigan Legislature, with 29 new faces and a continued power split, opened the 1971-72 session last week. The major item of business, of course, was Governor Milliken's State of the State message before a joint House-Senate session in the House chamber.

In addition to hearing the Governor's assessment and recommendations for the coming year, we also took care of organizational business. The Legislature is now in recess pending the outcome of several election recounts. Once these are settled and the membership officially established, we'll return to session later in the month to begin considering legislation.

Governor Milliken outlined the state's needs in his State of the State message, with emphasis on what he terms high priority programs. Included are the need for improving programs in environmental control, transportation, education, crime and drug control, housing and governmental reform.

But while stressing the need to continue the search for answers to these very serious problems, he has asked that this be done within existing revenues.

I find this a most refreshing approach. I believe that we can have continued economic growth and meaningful programs without spending increases. I know that the taxpayers in my district join me in saluting the Governor's request that there be no tax increase this year. I firmly believe that we can begin to restore the taxpayer's faith in his government by tightening our governmental belts, while still making every effort to provide needed services.

All of us who have a family or who budget our earnings know that when the revenues are down, we take steps to live within our means, cutting back if necessary. I am pleased to add my support to the Governor's request that we follow just such a program during 1971.

Great Lakes Shippers Have 2nd Best Year

For those of us who are looking for signs that the economy is on the upswing, there is good news from Vice Admiral Paul E. Trimble, president of the Lake Carriers Association.

Adm. Trimble announced in Cleveland last week that shipments of principal bulk freight commodities on the Great Lakes totaled 209,531,517 tons during the 1970 navigation season--the second highest tonnage on record year.

The volume was exceeded only in 1966 when shipments totaled 210,127,881 tons---only 0.238 percent more.

Adm. Trimble said the principal factors attributing to the near-record operation were larger shipments of iron ore from eastern Canada into the Great Lakes, high-level export shipments of grain and a peak movement of stone.

Shipments of all three commodities increased over 1969, although the United States shared only marginally in the grain trade. Canadian vessels by far the greater volume.

Of course, the economy depends on other factors besides Great Lakes shipping, but from Charlevoix Adm. Trimble's figures appear as a healthy plus-sign on the Lake Michigan horizon.

Sees Threat In Bombers Over Plant

Jan. 10, 1971

Editor,
Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich.

Dear Sir:

In 1967, I worked for a brief six-month period at Big Rock Point for Consumers Power Co. (associate engineer). In November, 1967, the company magazine, "Consumer Power News", published a letter of mine regarding the SAC bombing runs on Big Rock Point. Your newspaper, the Dec. 6, 1967, issue, wisely expressed concern about the hazards of radioactivity contamination in upper Michigan that would occur if one of the planes crashed into the plant.

I learned from someone who works at Big Rock that the Air Force has continued to make low-level practice bombing runs on the plant and he remembers such runs as recently as three weeks ago. (The practice is so commonplace he hadn't remembered whether any planes passed over within the last three weeks.)

From this information, I strongly suspect the B-52 that crashed near Charlevoix was heading for (or near) Big Rock Point. It saddens me to think that the AEC and DOD (Atomic Energy Commission and Department of Defense) don't mind taking chances with the lives and property of people living in northern Michigan from the standpoint of radioactivity contamination.

Would you be kind enough to send me the issues of the Courier in which the plane crash is discussed? Enclosed is $1 to cover expenses. Also, if you would like to discuss the matter with me, please feel free to call on me. Phone 614-486-5417.

Sincerely,
Richard E. Webb

Groups Thank Coupon Savers

Dear Friends:

The Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Community United Methodist Church Group of Bellaire wish to express our great appreciation and to acknowledge the receipt of the Betty Crocker coupons.

We are most happy to be a part of this project to obtain a portable cardiac defribillator for Munson Hospital in Traverse City. In each year to come it will save many lives of people who have heart attacks on the road or in their homes. It can be taken anywhere.

We have only four months to meet our goal of 525,000 coupons. As of this date, Jan. 11, 1971, we have collected 170,000 coupons. We still need 355,000 more. All out-dated coupons are good.

Due to General Mills discontinuing Betty Crocker coupons for life saving devices as of May 31, 1971, we do not have the 18 months that we were supposed to have. We only have until May 31, 1971. They have to be all in the mail by that time. Remember the deadline, May 16, 1971, on all pickups. There are boxes in several stores in all towns.

We thank you for your help and interest.

The W.C.T.U. and the Community United Methodist
Church, Bellaire, 49615

Let me tell you about when I was drafted.

Not that it really makes any difference, in view of the millions of young Americans who have been drafted in the past generation, but my particular induction took place 20 years ago this week and I wouldn't feel right letting such an inauspicious anniversary slip by without comment.

I was through high school and four years of college and had finally landed my first full-time newspaper job as a reporter, advertising salesman and printer's devil on the Cass City (Mich.) Chronicle. The job paid $40 o week and I had the world by the tail.

Then my induction notice arrived.

I wos ordered to report to Ft. Wayne in Detroit at 6 a.m. Jan. 17, 1951, and join the Korean War.

I quit my nice Cass City job the first week in January and moved back to Southfield with my parents in order to take in all the farewell parties, although I am sure my friends would have celebrated whether I had been there or not.

The morning of my induction was cold, raw and wet. We all got up at 4 o'clock to celebrate my last meal at home as a civilian. By 5 o'clock we were on the road and by 6 a.m. we were knocking on the gates of Ft. Wayne.

My good friend from high school, Eddie Billings, was to be drafted the same day and we met the Billings family outside the gate. Ma was pretty good until she met Mrs. Billings and then they both started to cry.

Eddie and I shook hands with our fathers and kissed our mothers. Then I kissed Mrs. Billings and Eddie kissed Ma, but that only made them cry more. I didn't think much about it at the time, but I guess our draft laws are harder on mothers than just about anybody else.

After our goodbyes, Eddie and I picked up our bags and walked through the gate to be swallowed up by the vastness of the induction center with about 300 other raw recruits.

I think that was probably the longest day of my life, a real introduction to the Army's long-standing policy of hurry up and wait.

There was a last minute physical to take, in case you had developed carbuncles or something since your first exam. The Negro fellow just ahead of me sounded like a sack full of broken glass when the doctors asked him to jump up and down and they sent him home. I never found out how he did it.

And there were reams of forms to fill out, including one asking who you would like to leave your $10,000 insurance to in the event you didn't come back.

After a grubby lunch in the Ft. Wayne mess hall we all filed back to the induction center for the official induction ceremony. We stood in tattered ranks, still in our civilian clothing, certainly the most disorganized crew ever to enter the armed forces.

An officer read us some kind of pledge about defending the United States and when he finished we all were supposed to take one step forward, signifying our formal entry into the Army. As I recall, we all took that one step except a few fellows in the back row. They were marched off for private consultation in another part of the building and we never saw them again.

Now there was nothing to do but and wait and speculate. We weren't told when we would leave, where we were going or how long it would take us to get there. Troop movements, as you'll recall, were always very hush-hush in the old days.

About 5 o'clock we boarded olive drab Army buses and were taken to the Michigan Central Depot. There, we were ordered to double-time through the cavernous depot to a waiting train. Midway, the Salvation Army had set up a booth and as we jogged past we were each handed a sack lunch, an apple and a cup of super-heated black coffee that raised blisters on the roof of the mouth.

Once aboard the train, we began to relax, although we couldn't find the club car and we still didn't know where we were going. One very strong rumor had it that we were heading for Ft. Sheridan, Ill., but we didn't know for sure until the next morning when we woke up on a railroad siding outside Ft. Sheridan.

The next few days are a blur. The weather was cold and wet. We were issued Army uniforms but nothing fit. My overcoat had a Gettysburg campaign patch on the shoulder. The meals were lousy. The barracks was crowded and noisy. The KP was endless. And morale was low.

A few days later our group split for basic training, part going to Ft. Polk, La., where it was nice and warm, and the rest going to Camp McCoy, Wisc., where the temperature plunged to 53 degrees zero that winter.

I went to Camp McCoy, but even basic training in that frigid clime was sheer bliss compared to my first few days under Uncle Sam's protective wing.

Mind you, all this happened 20 years ago during the Korean War. It is terrible to think that it is still going on today, and for all our trouble the world is still no better off than it was a generation ago. In fact, it's probably a little worse, if anything.

Calling Dr. Welby

By Jim Fitzgerald

The doctors in my favorite town have dropped out of the Blue Shield insurance program because, they say, they want to charge their patients more money than Blue Shield will allow.

At first glance, such unsentimental greed would appear shocking enough to knock Dr. Marcus Welby's assistant off his motorcycle.

Frankly, I didn't know doctors charged money for their services. I am a fan of Dr. Welby on Channel 7, The Bold Ones on Channel 4, and Medical Center on Channel 2.

These doctors work almost exclusively for poor people. Their customers are usually ragged and always black, Mexican or semi-illiterate Appalachian Caucasian. Most often, these unfortunate patients have bad coughs and dizzy spells which are diagnosed between the 1st and 2nd commercials – "We won't know what it is for sure until we've run a few tests."

It's a brain tumor. Elaborate surgery is performed successfully and another healthy body is returned to the ghetto.

Not once have I heard one of those fine doctors say, "That'll be $1,102,50, Jose." And whenever Jose mumbles something about being broke, the doctor always says, "Don't worry about it, Jose. Just invite me to your daughter's wedding and give me a glass of homemade wine."

So, when I heard why our doctors have quit Blue Shield, I phoned my friend, Dr. Redblanket, who recently retired and moved into a big-city hotel which he owns (the hotel, not the city, I think). "What's this nonsense about doctors charging money to save lives?" I asked him. Just last night I watched Dr. Welby, with needle in hand, chase a man 55 miles up a mountain to give him a shot and prevent a VD epidemic. Welby, didn't charge that man one cent."

"That's only on TV," my friend the doctor explained. "In real life, Welby wouldn't have made that mountain call unless he was accompanied by a nurse equipped with a stopwatch, adding machine, and 15 different Blue Cross forms, each to be filled out in triplicate.

"Doctors are no different than editors or butchers," he continued. "They've got to make a living. After all, if doctors didn't make money, who would lease Chrysler Imperials and build apartment houses?"

"Ok, I'll agree with that," I said, "but our doctors seem to be doing fine. I know one who owns his own island. I think it's Rhode Island. So how come they're quitting Blue Shield and raising their fees?"

"It's really not the money, it's the principle," my friend said. "Blue Shield is unfair to your doctors. It requires them to charge less than is charged by the big-city doctors, just 20 miles away. This is discrimination and everyone knows discrimination is a bad thing. Why should a lousy 20 miles mean that some doctors can get richer than other doctors who work just as hard? The metropolitan doctors will buy up all the islands, for gosh sakes."

"Well, it still sounds greedy to me," I said. "I don't think Dr. Welby would care if the doctors in the next town were making more money. And besides, there are advantages to living in a small town. The people are friendlier and the homemade wine is better."

"Welby, Schmelby," Dr. Redblanket snorted. "The Medical Society should do something about those dumb TV shows. They're giving the public a false image of the medical profession. Doctors like money just as much as the next guy and you'd better believe it."

"Ok, I believe it," I said.

And I went right down to the basement and told my coughing kids they might as well stop stomping the grapes.

Claims Theft Of Sled Beats Bulb Snatching

Dear Sir:

While some are mourning over the loss of a few light bulbs, let me remind them that in the same neighborhood one large sled, used two or three times, was filched from in front of their house under a bright light. The sled of a little boy selling a few papers that needed it when the snow came.

Don't criticize the large cities. This one is just as bad. I hope the clown that took my grandson's sled breaks his neck on it.

The sled of Jeffrey Jarvis and a bag of popcorn and my old hat to the man from Pontiac that wants the Humane Society here. And why not? We've nothing else.

Thank you,
Mrs. Albert Staley

P.S. I dare you print this one.

Spiders Spin Odd Webs Under Influence of Drugs

It may not surprise anyone familiar with today's drug culture, but scientists have found that spiders on dope aren't very productive.

Like their human counterparts, freaked-out spiders go through the motions with erratic results.

A spider given one hallucinatory drug apparently felt bigger than it was, and spun a web with widely spaced strands. Researchers concluded it had delusions of grandeur.

DRUGS TESTED

Laboratory tests to study the effects of drugs are the latest way that spiders help man, the National Geographic Society says.

While their primary function is ecological--keeping the world's insect population in check--spiders have served many other uses throughout history.

For centuries, cobweb poultices were placed on wounds to stop bleeding. The webs are made into handbags by South Pacific islanders, and spiders add protein to diets in Southeast Asia.

Painting on cobwebs, a painstaking process that required delicate brush strokes, developed into an art form in Austria in the 16th and 17th centuries.

WEBS VALUABLE

The cross hairs of surveyors' transits, gun sights, microscopes, and other instruments have been made from fine strands spun by black widow spiders.

Cobwebs are sacrosanct in the wine cellars of Cognac, France, where spiders devour worms that otherwise would bore into the oaken casks in which brandy is aged.

Indians in Panama are grateful to spiders who cover their huts with webs that keep out insects. Only doorways are cleared of webs.

For the past decade, researchers have been using spiders to learn more about mental illnesses, brain functions and drugs.

BLOOD CHANGES PACE

Spiders given blood from schizophrenic patients in Los Angeles proceeded to spin bizarre webs; if the patient was catatonic, the spider might not spin at all.

Fed tranquilizers, spiders in Canada skipped spinning the longest, most difficult radial strands of their webs. Spiders on morphine took three hours to complege webs they previously had spun in 20 minutes.

High on LSD, spiders in North Carolina energetically turned out useless, free-form webs. And on marijuana, webs became rectangular instead of circular in another laboratory.

STROKES SIMULATED

Scientists in New York simulated the effects of "mild strokes" by using a laser to burn away pinpoint areas of spiders' brains, then measured lost coordination by the irregularities of their webs.

Medical use of spikders has not always been so scientific. In the Middle Ages, spiders worn in a bag around the neck were believed to cure whooping cough.

An old cure for asthma called for swallowing a ball of spider webs. A cold sufferer was advised to catch a spider and confine it in a box, and the cold would wane as the spider waned.

Since some spiders can live half a year without food, they may have outlasted their captors.

High winds and roily water, however, have hampered the investigation. The wreckage is in about 200 feet of water along a 1,200 foot path.

"By this time next week we should have some idea of what caused the crash," Col. Saye said optimistically Monday afternoon.

The plane, which carried nine crewmen to their death, crashed into the lake during a simulated bombing run near the AF Radar Bomb Scoring Site at Bay Shore.

One of the crewmen, Maj. John M. Simonsey of Lewiston, Mont., was promoted posthumously to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Robert Bergmann, who lives on Old U.S. 31 about six miles from the crash scene, was thrown to the floor by the explosion and a window in his home was broken.

Storm Halts Search

Because of high winds, blowing snow and bone-chilling temperatures, the Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine stayed in port Tuesday, calling a temporary halt in efforts to determine why the AF B-52 crashed and burned in Lake Michigan off Charlevoix Jan. 8.

For the past week, the cutter had been transporting divers to the scene of the crash about four and one-half miles offshore between Charlevoix and Bay Shore.

Earlier, the Woodbine was used as a floating platform for salvage experts from Ocean Systems, Inc., to locate the wreckage on the lake bottom.

Monday, Capt. Gregory Van Pelt, public information officer for the AF investigation team, reported that nothing that would indicate the cause of the crash has been brought to the surface to date.

He said it would be "a

Worst Blizzard Roars Into Town

Drifts Block Roads

Driven by 45 to 50 knot winds, the winter's worst blizzard roared into Charlevoix Monday night, blocking highways with four-foot drifts and causing temporary interruptions in electric power.

Charlevoix schools and all schools throughout the area were closed because of drifting snow.

Visibility in many areas, particularly along Lake Michigan, was reduced to zero.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Philo Sumner urged motorists to avoid driving between Charlevoix and Petoskey on U.S. 31 if at all possible. The highway as practically blocked by drifts and stalled cars near the Ed Shanahan farm and it was impossible to see more than two feet in the blowing snow.

Jack Fitzgerald, engineer-manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, reported that all side roads were closed that it was unlikely that his men would even begin to get to them before Wednesday.

He said all equipment was out in a massive effort to keep primary roads open.

Boyne City-rd. east of the Argonne Supper Club was closed several hours early Tuesday by drifts and stalled cars but the road was reported open by 11 a.m. It was closed again later in the day.

City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna also called in the city plows after they had made one pass through Charlevoix. He said they would stay in until the wind

CHARLES GRAMMEY, 34, of Atlanta, Mich., escaped injury early last Wednesday morning when his trailer home behind the Harrison Warner farm at Norwood Corners caught fire. The Charlevoix Fire Department answered the call, but the trailer burned to the ground. Grammey, who worked for Warner, said he awoke and saw flames around the space heater. The Fire Department answered a false alarm later the same day on Carpenter-ave.

Antrim Adds Snowmobile to Sheriff's Gear

Antrim County Sheriff Bryce Petrie and his deputies have joined the snowmobile crowd.

The sheriff's office recently acquired its first snowmachine and rescue sled, as authorized by the county Board of Commissioners.

The snowmobile is equipped with a two-way radio and the sled has been outfitted with a stretcher and first aid kit.

Sheriff Petrie says that the equipment will be used for rescue or assistance to persons injured or ill in otherwise inaccessible locations.

"With the popularity of snowmobiles growing by leaps and bounds, there is a definite need for such equipment," he adds.

The unit will be used by law enforcement officers in answering the increasing number of complaints about snowmobiles in operation and in checking the county's many summer homes that are victimized by burglars and vandals during the winter.

JORDAN STUDIED

Experts Look for Signs That River is in Trouble

An early warning system to prevent deterioration of Michigan streams and rivers could soon be on the way.

Michigan State University scientists are studying the biological changes that indicate a decline in the water quality of the Jordan, Red Cedar and AuSable Rivers. These biological changes, if identified, could provide water experts with the early warning system needed to head off serious degradation.

"In each case, we intend to look at the total composition of the aquatic community," notes Niles Kevern, chairman of MSU's Department of Fisheries and Wildlife. "The number of species present is very important because those organisms less tolerant of deterioration start to disappear as soon as water quality diminishes."

Funded by the U.S. Department of Interior's Office of Water Resources Research, the project is a cooperative effort between the MSU Department of Fisheries and Wildlife and Isntitute of Water Research.

The MSU researchers will also investigate the effects of degraded water on the reproductive potential of selected fish species. This will be difficult to measure, however, since several years' data are needed on such items as age of populations and number of new fish spawned each season.

Human population influences on each of the streams will be recorded, from the headwaters of the Jordan River, which has no resident population, to the AuSable, which has small towns and cottages, to the Red Cedar, which has a sizable urban development along its banks.

Nutrient loads, pesticide levels, amount of heavy metals in the streams, and property values, will also be considered.

"We're going to try to evaluate, economically, the value of water quality," says Kevern. "We want to find out how much people pay for the use of waters suitable for canoeing, fishing, camping, and other recreational purposes.

"The information we compile can be applied to upgrade water quality standards anywhere in the nation. At present, the standards established by the various states can only be set at levels where evidence indicates damage to the environment. More research could result in upgrading or modifying these standards."

According to Kevern, the study now in progress will last another two or three years.

Township Air Code Wins Wide Attention

Charlevoix Township's new air quality code amendments, adopted last fall, are receiving nationwide publicity, according to Oscar Stroud, township supervisor.

The latest request for a copy of the amendments has come from Ronald E. Stewart, assistant city manager for the city of South Portland, Me.

In a letter mis-directed to the Charlevoix city clerk, Stewart said he had learned about the stringent new code via an article which appeared in the Wall Street Journal Dec. 23.

The new code requires industries to install monitoring instruments in their stacks to measure discharges of impurities, levies a fee on industries, based on their emissions, to help enforce provisions of the code and establishes a township air quality control board, representing the township, industry and the community at large.

The Charlevoix Township ordinance specifically limits discharges from the Medusa Cement Co. stack to levels the company says are possible with its electrostatic precipitation equipment.

Stroud says he has received requests for copies of the amended code from other municipalities in Michigan, including the state capital.

HILLIARY SHACKFORD of Ski and Shore Properties, Inc., of Bellaire, which is opening a Charlevoix office in March, has been elected president of the newly reorganized Antrim Charlevoix Board of Realtors. Mrs. Lucille Cunningham of Belding Real Estate, Charlevoix will serve as vice president. John Reynolds, of the Belding firm, is secretary treasurer. The group was re-organized this month after Emmet realtors dropped out to form their own association. The Antrim-Charlevoix board has a potential membership of 30 realtors and salesmen.

AERIAL VIEW shows work in progress at the pumped storage hydroelectric plant at Ludington, a joint venture of Consumers Power Co. and the Detroit Edison Co. The plant and reservoir have been designed to have a minimal effect on the natural environment of the area. Located on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Ludington, the facility is scheduled for completion in 1973.

AT LUDINGTON RESERVOIR

Consumers, Edison Strive To Save Natural Beauty

A major effort to preserve the natural beauty and provide recreational facilities at a production site is being undertaken near Ludington by Consumers Power Co. and The Detroit Edison Co.

The two utility companies are preparing a 1.8 million kilowatt pumped storage hydroelectric plant on Lake Michigan, four miles south of Ludington.

When completed in 1973, the plant will provide electricity at times of peak demand to the Michigan Electric Power Pool. Consumers Power and Detroit Edison are the principal pool members, which draws power from Consumers' Big Rock Point nuclear plant near Charlevoix, among others.

In a "Report to the Federal Power Commission on Environmental Quality Control," the firms describe the efforts being made to maintain the natural setting of the area and to "utilize in a very positive manner those elements of the project that can serve as an asset to the environment."

An environmental quality control team was assigned to inspect the site and all proposed routes for 345,000-volt transmission lines leading from the plant. Electricity produced at the facility will be carried on the Power Pool's integrated system to serve customers of both companies.

The control team consisted of a forester, a project engineer and a landscape architect from Consumers Power's Environmental Quality Control Committee. The team used as guidelines the independent recommendations of a consulting firm of landscape architects which had made earlier field checks and the proposals of the President's Council on Recreation and Natural Beauty.

The major portion of the plant area will be occupied by an 850-acre reservoir. During periods of low electric demand, water will be pumped from the lake to the reservoir. When demand rises quickly (usually during late afternoon and early evening) the water will flow back into the lake, passing through a power generating plant constructed on the shore.

Great care has been taken in designing the reservoir to eliminate any negative visual effects which the embankments might have on the surrounding natural beauty. Consideration has been given to views from all roads in the area, with special attention being concentrated on the visual impression on motorists traveling proposed US-31, which will parallel the lake east of the plant.

Large existing wooded areas remain undisturbed where feasible. Selective planting will be done to block undesirable views.

All areas within the plant site, except those needed for operation or which might endanger visitors, will be open to the public. Recreational facilities include a picnic area and trailer park.

In a relatively narrow area between the reservoir and the lake, the planners are deviating from their efforts to blend with the natural surroundings. This area will house the plant's six 1,100-foot long steel penstocks and its powerhouse.

Because of the unique character of this portion of the facility, with enormous man-made earth slopes, gigantic lakefront development and vast spatial dimensions, the area has been classified as a zone of special interest to the public.

Special features include Vista Point, on the shoreline directly above the generating station, to afford excellent viewing and photographic vistas of the lake and shore, and a scenic overlook on the eastern edge of the reservoir embankment above the penstocks.

Mrs. Ross Alexander

Will comment a little on the weather so far we have 14 inches of snow on the level and more coming this Thursday afternoon. There are now eighteen fish shanties near and around the ferry channel and three near Hemingway Point. But if the almanac is true we will have a four-day thaw the 25th and then we can look for much colder weather and more snow through February. So Mr. Ground Hog may not get out at all this year.

Our community lost a good friend and neighbor when we received word that Ralph Price had passed away. Friends gathered at our church this Monday afternoon to attend his funeral services. Since Mrs. Price's death he has been making his home with his daughter, Mrs. William Harrison and family in Middletown, Ohio. Ralph spent his childhood summers with his parents and sister on the Belvedere Club. Later he owned and operated a small canning factory at home which we all missed when he discontinued it. He became child welfare agent for Charlevoix County. He was a member of the Ironton Church and a Sunday School teacher for many years and was active in other church duties. The greatest memorial we can give Ralph would be to keep our church active for many years and to be as active and loyal as he always was. His daughter and family have our sympathy.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Blanton are the new leaders for our Youth Fellowship Group.

Mark Saunders spent last Sunday at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Sudman and family in Central Lake.

A surprise party was held in the Charlevoix American Legion Hall Jan. 16 honoring the birthday anniversary of Mr. Anthony Kasewicz and also the 50 wedding anniversary of Mr. Kasewicz and Stella Wojan Kasewicz who were married at the Holy Cross Church in Cross Village. The party was hosted by their five children, Mrs. Charles Wagner of Ironton, Mrs. Andrew Celaschi of Avon, Ohio, Mrs. Anthony Engler of Parma, Ohio, and Alex and Norman Kasewicz of Garfield Heights, Ohio. Polish-style food and a dance band were provided for the 85 relatives and several friends that attended until the wee hours of the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Kasewicz lived in Garfield Heights before moving here in 1967 but were no strangers in Michigan as they and their family spent many summers in Larks Lake and since 1956 have owned cottages in Ironton. Mr. Kasewicz is a retired employee of General Motors with 40 years' service. They have five children, 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Francis E. Denay of Charlevoix gave the couple a special wedding anniversary blessing at St. Marys Church.

Their local friends and neighbors extend them their sincere Congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison returned to their home in Middletown, Ohio, Friday morning.

New Book Lists State 'Ghost Towns'

Michigan antique and history buffs no longer will have to seek blindly for the location of the hundreds of ghost towns that dot Michigan's lower peninsula, thanks to a new guide written by Roy L. Dodge, of Harrison.

Titled "Michigan Ghost Towns," Vol. I, the new 120-page book identifies and describes more than 300 such towns—most of which sprang up, flourished and died during the state's lumber era between 1860 and the early 1900's.

Following Webster's definition, Dodge defines a "ghost" as 'a faint, shadowy semblance; inkling, slight trace'."

"Many of these ghost towns are little more than perhaps a faint depression in the ground, now covered with white birch and alder trees, yet these sites probably are the repository of many valuable relics of that robust period of boom and bust," Dodge said.

In compiling the guide, Dodge traveled more than 10,000 miles in Michigan, poring over such records as still exist, visiting cemeteries and libraries and many of the sites themselves.

"I believe this guide will be a valuable asset to those who are interested in recovering artifacts and lost valuables in Michigan," Dodge said. "In fact, interest is so great that I'm presently researching and writing a second volume, which will deal primarily with ghost towns in the Upper Peninsula."

Grads Will Have to Hustle To Find Jobs

Employment prospects for students graduating from college this year are bleaker than ever, according to Jack Shingleton, director of the Michigan State University Placement Bureau.

Shingleton estimated that 23 percent fewer employers are expected to interview students on the MSU campus this year, and predicted that many seniors will not have jobs upon graduation in June.

He said, "Unfavorable business conditions plus a shift in governmental spending priorities are the main reasons for hiring fewer college students in 1971."

$7,821 Coming To County

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources is mailing checks for more than $703,000 to 81 counties as payments in lieu of taxes for state forests, parks, and other such state holdings.

Charlevoix County's share is $7,821.03. Antrim County will receive $6,246.53 and Emmet County $13,158.84.

The funds, distributed at a flat rate of 20 cents per acre for these conservation properties, largely cover tax-reverted state lands throughout Michigan. A smaller share of the payments are being made for gifted lands above Townline 16 and for purchased parcels throughout Michigan which were bought before 1933.

Eaton and Macomb counties lack tax-reverted state lands within their boundaries and, therefore, are the only Michigan counties not in line for the DNR's current payments.

Early in 1971, the DNR will route about $1.5 million in additional funds to Michigan counties to meet its tax obligation for state conservation lands purchased after 1933. Those later payments will be pegged to prevailing local millage rates.

what's a funny place for a phone?

That depends a lot on your sense of humor. If making tracks across a clean carpet to get to a telephone leaves your wife a little less than happy, then perhaps there's nothing so funny about an extension telephone in the garage or workshop.

Extension telephones make sense. They save time by letting you use a telephone wherever you are.

Call your Michigan Bell Business Office or ask your telephone man. For as little as ninety-five cents a month (plus tax) you can put an extension in any funny old place you'd like.

Preliminary plans were made for the annual Poppy Day sale which is to be held on May 27, 28 and 29. Three new members were welcomed including Gladys Pelletier, Betty McKenzie and Elizabeth Reinhart. The new members allowed the Auxiliary to meet their 1971 membership quota. The next regular meeting is to be held on Feb. 17 and the District meeting will be held here on March 14.

TV Exec Gets State PR Post

Franklin G. Sisson, station manager of WWJ-TV, Detroit, will serve as public relations board chairman for Michigan Week, May 15 to 21, 1971.

The appointment was announced today by Fred R. Charlton of Sturgis, Michigan Week general chairman and administrative assistant to the president of Kirsch Co.

Sisson is the father of Jim Sisson, advertising manager of the Charlevoix Courier.

"Frank Sisson's expertise in the communications field makes him an excellent choice to direct media presentation of materials on Michigan," Charlton said. "I am certain that, with his assistance, the 18th annual Michigan Week observance will have more far-reaching results than ever before."

As chairman of the Michigan Week public relations board, Sisson will oversee 14 state committees representing all communications, advertising and promotion media in the state. The public relations board is one of the six activity boards in which all Michigan Week state committees are grouped. Deputy general chairman at large Frank Buchanan, public relations supervisor for Michigan Bell Telephone Co., Detroit, directs the Michigan Week activity boards.

Sisson began his broadcasting career at WKLA in Ludington, and was associated with WOOD and WOOD-TV in Grand Rapids for 14 years before joining the WWJ stations in 1961.

A past president of the Michigan Association of Broadcasters and currently president of the Michigan chapter of Broadcast Pioneers, Sisson is also an active member of the Adcraft Club, the Economic Club of Detroit, the Detroit Advertising Association and the Detroit Athletic Club. Mrs. Fannie Koster spent last week with her sisters Jane Petter and Dena Otte in Grand Rapids riding both ways with Joy Essenberg. Coming with Joy Friday evening were Jonet Ruth Drenth and Marcia Drenth, Calvin College students, who attended the wedding of their cousin Beth Anne Drenth.

Winter Turns on the Charm in Charlevoix

UPPER LEFT: Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beach isn't deserted, even this time of year. These three young men even took a hike along the shore Sunday. Lower left: Although Lake Michigan is still a few weeks away from a solid freeze, the pierheads are coated with ice. Above, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kerr of Boyne City fish through the ice for perch at Ironton. Upper right, Ironton's fish shanty village has sprung up on the ice of the South Arm near the ferry crossing. Lower left, few people see one of the most spectacular snowdrifts in Charlevoix. It is an eight-foot monster located behind the Courier office where the wind whips in from Pine River Channel.

State Must Back City on Rebidding

The Charlevoix City Council is to be congratulated for trying to save the taxpayers' money in construction of the proposed sewage treatment plant south of Boulder Park.

When bids on two major portions of the project came in almost 25 percent higher than the engineers had estimated, the council promptly decided it could not ask the people of Charlevoix to pay anything more than a fair price for the plant.

City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna huddled with engineers from McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor to trim all frills from the plans and still come up with the same basic tertiary sewage treatment plant.

As a result, new specifications for general construction and electrical work went out on Saturday, Jan. 23, and new bids will be opened at the city hall Feb. 23.

The council hopes that the revised plans -- coupled with reduced bidding pressure -- will result in bids that will hold the cost of the facility to within the estimated $1.5 million.

It wasn't an easy decision for the council, since state and federal participation in the project was to be predicated upon the awarding of contracts before Dec. 31, 1970. It would have been far simpler for the council to accept all of the low bids -- as high as some of them were -- and hope the money would be forthcoming.

Although the final decision on whether Charlevoix receives participating money is up to the state Legislature, we are confident that the state will not let us down.

After all, state and federal funds, as well as local funds, are involved. And we hope the Legislature is as interested in protecting the public coffers as is the Charlevoix City Council.

Any savings Charlevoix can realize through the re-bidding also will mean a reduction in participating funds.

Charlevoixans demonstrated their willingness to go along with the state on the new sewage treatment plant in November when they passed by an overwhelming margin a $700,000 general obligation bond issue to provide construction funds.

It would be unthinkable at this point for the state to deny the city participating funds simply because it failed to meet the arbitrary Dec. 31 deadline.

Colonel Praises Woodbine Crew

Col. Robert Saye, public information officer for Air Force team investigating the crash of the B-52 in Lake Michigan Jan. 8, has high praise for the men of the Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine who are assisting in the investigation.

The Woodbine arrived in Charlevoix the night of Jan. 12 from Grand Haven and has made one or two trips to the crash scene almost daily transporting divers and electronic equipment.

"It is no fun working on the open deck of the cutter for hours at a time in sub-freezing weather, but the men on the Woodbine have done it days at a time without complaining," Col. Saye said.

"They are one of the finest crews we have ever worked with," he added.

Although inter-service rivalry makes for some lively barroom debates, it seldom goes much further. When the chips are down, our servicemen work as a single team -- which is the way it should be.

Michigan's Bob Griffin: Capturing the Capital—U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich) is "a man to watch in the United States Senate," writes Michael Kraft of Reuters News Service. The 47-year-old Griffin has risen to the important position of Assistant Minority Leader of the Senate though still in his first term. "Though a strong supporter of the Administration's foreign policy," Kraft says, "Griffin is not afraid to break away from the President on domestic issues."

Ed. Finance No. 1 Item For Senate

By State Senator
Robert W. Davis

Aside from the matter of financing education—as if that weren't enough of a problem in itself—there will be several other important educational issues coming up in the legislature this year.

They will include consideration of portions of Governor Milliken's educational reform package—generally in modified form—that did not obtain legislative approval last year.

While parts of the governor's program passed last year, others ran a foul of cross currents in the parochiaid battle. Several of them, somewhat changed, are expected to be reintroduced this year.

Most important among them may be the proposal to set a statewide limit on local property taxes with the ultimate aim of primarily financing education on a statewide level rather than local.

Such a revised property tax limit would require a change in the state Constitution, which normally would have to be made at a general election in an even-numbered year. However, the legislature last year passed a law providing for general elections in odd-numbered years so there is a possibility such a change could be made in 1971.

(If a general election is held, the issue of 18-year-old voting may come up again in the light of the U.S. Supreme Court's recent ruling that they may vote in federal elections but not in state elections if the state has not specifically provided for it).

Another issue expected to come before the legislature is whether there should be separate boards for higher education and for K-12 programs.

There is a feeling around the Capitol that the task of administering the K-12 program is difficult enough for the State Board of Education to carry out without its having to be involved in higher education.

Currently, there is pending in Ingham county circuit court a suit by the state's three largest universities to determine whether the legislature may exercise control of any kind over those institutions.

The Constitution sets up boards of control for the three institutions and gives them the power to operate them as they see fit. But over the years under heavy pressure from taxpayers at home, the legislature has exerted pressures on the institutional administrators by the "purse-string" method. The administrators don't like this but legislators feel, since they appropriate the money and since they are held accountable for it by the taxpayers, they have a right to know that the money is being used for the purposes for which it was appropriated.

Raps Cut In Aid To Schools

(The following statement was released by Dr. Norman P. Weinheimer, executive director of the Michigan Association of School Boards, in response to proposed cuts in educational spending recommended by Gov. William Milliken.)

Dr. Norman P. Weinheimer, Executive Director of the Michigan Association of School Boards said today that the MASB is gravely concerned over the proposed cuts suggested by Governor Milliken.

The Governor's recommendations will undoubtedly eliminate the "red ink" in the state's budget, but only to transfer a major portion of the deficit to local school districts. A unique strategy. The taxpayers of Michigan will still have the deficit.

The suggested 2 percent across the board cut in state aid and the 12 million dollars cut to selected school districts this late in the year, coupled with the facts as they are, that is, approximately 90 percent of all school budgets are already committed, through negotiated contracts with employees, contracts for services and fixed charges puts local boards in an untenable position.

In addition to this newest proposal of cut-backs, local districts have already had to absorb additional costs this year to provide free textbooks and supplies to students. These too were unanticipated. Since local boards of education are mandated by state law to provide 180 days of schooling for each child, they have no alternative but to go into deficit financing in order that they may fulfill their commitment for the education of the boys and girls in Michigan.

We are hopeful that the legislature, in its wisdom, will not accept the Governor's recommendation but will find means to fulfill the state's commitment made to education and local boards last June.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

As the owner of a VW, I perhaps hear more VW stories than other people. Here's a couple of beauties I heard recently that I'd like to pass along.

Jim Marshall, who works for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and sells insurance for the Charlevoix Agency, owns a VW bug. He uses it mostly on his rounds of Charlevoix area schools.

However, he has found the bug is also convenient for errands around town.

It was getting on toward Christmas when Jim suddenly realized that he hadn't picked up his Christmas tree yet. So one afternoon he hopped in his bug and tore out to Smith's Little Acre to select a tree.

He found a dandy, but, of course, the tree was too large to fit inside his car.

Like most VW owners, Jim is adept at the art of improvising. He also knows you can carry more on top of a bug than inside it.

So he asked the boys at Smith's Little Acre to get some twine and tie the Christmas tree to the back of the vehicle. He got back inside to wait until the boys had bound the tree securely to the car with heavy twine.

When the task was completed, Jim headed back to town, stopping at Edward's IGA to pick up a few items before going home. He pulled into the IGA parking lot, shut off the ignition and started to leave the car.

Only he couldn't.

His prize Christmas tree had been tied securely to both of his front door handles.

Rather than spend Christmas trapped in his car in Edwards' parking lot, Jim leaned on the horn until he attracted the attention of the check-out girl and a couple of bag boys. When he explained his predicament, they got a knife from the butcher counter and let him out.

Jim traveled the rest of the way home with one hand out the window clutching the severed end of the Christmas tree twine.

THE OTHER VW story was passed along by Charlevoix architect Hans Wiemer.

Wiemer doesn't own a VW, but back in the days when he and Gail were still living in Ann Arbor they had a good friend who owned one of the first VW buses. The friend also owned a number of apartment houses and used his bus for transporting furniture, paint, tools and plumbing supplies — a regular handyman's van.

When the Wiemers were preparing to move to Charlevoix, they had one ungainly appliance they couldn't get rid of — a gigantic gas refrigerator that weighed in the neighborhood of two tons, as Hans remembers.

They offered to give the refrigerator to their friend with the VW bus, and, since he had several apartments to furnish, he was happy to accept.

Hans says it took six husky men to wiggle the refrigerator out of their apartment down to the waiting bus. They wedged it through the side door, shoved it back as far as it would go and dropped it — thunk! — on the floor of the van.

And there it rests, probably to this day.

Hans says his friend could never get six guys together again to get it out, and even if he had it would have been impossible to move the refrigerator without getting a couple of them on the far side to shove. But, of course, in the bus there just wasn't that much room.

Hans says his friend continued to drive the bus for 18 months with the refrigerator in the back seat. And when he sold the bus, the refrigerator went with it.

"The new BVW campers come with a small ice boxes," Hans says. "But I've never heard of another equipped with a full-sized refrigerator."

And so it goes with the VW stories.

Grandpa Takes a Bow

I'd forgotten the pure pleasure of watching a nude girl take a bath.

(I haven't forgotten how to make you read beyond the first paragraph though, have I?)

Anyway, the girl is 17 months old. Her name is Michele and she is my granddaughter. She is also my wife's granddaughter but only when she cries or needs changing. Michele is spending a week with us while her young mother tends at the bedside of her husband who busted his knee playing college football (I always warned her that young marriages are risky but there you are).

It's been 9 years or so, depending on your criteria, since a baby lived at our house. It's hard to say exactly when our youngest child ceased to be a baby but I remember getting suspicious when he began changing his own diapers and heating his own bottle.

Michele's visit has reminded me of all those things I'd forgotten...

I'd forgotten how it feels to hear a baby cry at 3 a.m. It took me a few seconds to remember what to do. What you do is push your foot softly to the south. If this doesn't work, you kick more firmly. Finally, your wife wakes up. You then tell her the baby is crying.

I'd forgotten about that spot on a baby's neck, up under the chin, not far from the ear. That's where you nuzzle a baby. It feels just great.

I'd forgotten the crunchy sound of cookie crumbs underfoot.

I'd forgotten how your heart stops, and then pounds in instant panic, when you hear a baby scream and the sound of a small body going bump, bump, bump. "My God, she's fallen down the basement stairs!" (She fell only two steps; her doll went the rest of the way. Whew!)

I'd forgotten to look before I sit. Have you ever sat on an abandoned popsicle?

I'd forgotten a grown man can somehow enjoy eating his dinner while watching a kid with a runny nose stick her face in a bowl of chocolate pudding.

I'd forgotten that the most beautiful babies have fat stomachs and no behinds and, once they get walking fast, it is a face of gravity that they are going to fall down, bam. I'd forgotten that adults are supposed to look the other way when these falls occur. This somehow is supposed to make the baby think she is not hurt. I keep forgetting and picking the kid up and kissing her sore spot and mouthing silly "There-there-there-baby" words that I'd hate to have overheard in the Alibi Bar.

I'd forgotten how grand it feels to return home from work and be greeted by a little kid who wants to climb up your legs and stick her fingers in your nose. I'd forgotten that babies don't watch TV and you don't have to knock on their heads before you say hello.

I'd forgotten the goofy pride of taking a baby into a restaurant and having strangers look at her and smile. I react modestly to such attention, bowing from the waist only after repeated applause. Inside my fat head I am hoping everyone will think I am the father, not the grandfather, for gosh' sakes.

And I'd forgotten the marvelous innocense of a small baby; the trust and the dependence and the eagerness to love and be loved. I'd forgotten that some smart adult like me must teach babies how to hate and who to hate. I hope everyone else forgets, too.

Having a grandchild is Onward and Upward.

V-r-room! The Snowmobile Arrives

By Esther K. Shapiro
Michigan Credit Union League

The snowmobile has entered the Michigan winter sports picture with a big "v-r-room."

And whether the contraption is a noise-polluting pest or the greatest invention since sliced bread depends on whether you're chasing it out of your field or merrily skimming over the snow.

At any rate, here are some tips to make the sport safer and more enjoyable:

A new snowmobile costs between $595 and $1,500. Speed potential ranges from 30 to 75 miles an hour, and many are designed to fit specific use, such as hunting, fishing, cruising, racing, trapping and camping.

To buy wisely you must be sure of your needs, and get the machine best suited to your purpose; don't fall for a streamlined body, gay paint and racing stripes when what you really need is a workhorse to drag your gear to a campsite.

Look for quality of construction, especially if this will be more than a weekend toy. Compare speed, weight, size, width, track size, component features (electric start and accessories) and warranty.

Above all, look for safety features. This beguiling snow scooter can be a killer. An alarming rate of deaths and injuries has moved legislators to demand curbs against careless use of snowmobiles, which now number about 200,000 in Michigan.

Snowmobile controls are simple. There is a brake control on the left handlebar and a throttle mounted on the right handlebar. Check these controls to be sure they are free and working smoothly prior to each startup. According to bulletins issued by Cornell University's Extension service, it is possible for a throttle to freeze in the open position and cause a machine to go out of control.

Make sure the snowmobile is regulated by a squeeze-type or "deadman" throttle. This snaps back to idle if you are thrown from the machine or otherwise lost your grip, a safety measure which keeps the vehicle from running away and leaving you stranded in deep snow—not a pleasant way to walk home.

When at idle speed, your machine should remain motionless since there usually isn't a gear box. When the throttle is squeezed, the engine accelerates; the centrifugal clutch engages and the flanged rubber track is activated forward. It is therefore important that you have everything checked out before starting the engine.

Three of the most common hazards are "ditching," frostbite and, would you believe, getting lost? When you are zipping over an unmarked, snow-covered country landscape at speeds of up to 75 miles an hour, it is easy to get into unfamiliar territory. It's a good idea to carry a compass.

Frostbite can be a threat at comparatively warm temperatures because of the speed-induced wind on your face or fingers. If you are moving 30 miles per hour at a temperature of 30 degrees Fahrenheit, you are creating a wind which is equivalent to exposure at 2 degrees below zero. If in addition to this there is a wind, the wind-chill factor is increased. Charts on wind chill developed by the army show that the danger of freezing of exposed flesh starts at temperatures of 10 above zero, moving at 20 miles per hour (the equivalent of exposure to 25 degrees below zero). So wear a scarf or face mask for maximum coverage, and don't lose your mittens.

We weren't kidding about the mittens: they are warmer than gloves, though you may prefer the latter because they permit freer movement. Leather with a foam-type interlining and a silk lining are warm and durable. Silk or woolen glove liners give extra warmth, at a cost of two to three dollars.

National Geographic Feature

How deep is the ocean?

The Pacific's Mariana Trench is 36,198 feet deep, according to the latest "National Geographic Atlas of the World."

The revised third edition of the monumental work answers thousands of other questions.

What's the rainiest spot on Earth? Mt. Waialeale, Hawaii; annual average rainfall 460 inches. The driest? Atacama Desert, Chile; rainfall barely measurable.

How much does the Earth weigh? 6,586,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons, give or take a pound or two.

Low Point Unknown

But some questions remain unanswered. Geographers still have not determined the lowest point of land in ice-clad Antarctica.

The map of Antarctica in the new edition of the atlas does, however, incorporate recent surveys and scientific findings in the world's least-known continent.

The volume's 140 pages of maps, its text, and index all have been carefully brought up to date to include the newest features of a fast-changing Earth.

Three Dimension

New relief drawings for the physical maps give them a three-dimensional quality, reflecting the style of the renowned Swiss cartographer Paul Ulmer who has worked with Geographic mapmakers.

Other maps show the broadening blue of the giant Peace River hydroelectric reservoir in British Columbia; the newly constructed capital city of Belmopan in British Honduras; and—in the strife-torn Near East—military occupation lines in relation to political frontiers.

Incorporating thousands of such changes took 21 man-years of work by the Society's cartographers, researchers, and compilers.

New Nations Shown

Nineteen nations have gained independence since the first edition of the atlas was published in 1963. The third edition includes them all, from Texas-size Botswana in southern Africa to the tiny island of Nauru in the South Pacific.

Descriptions of each of the world's 143 countries convey information that maps cannot. For example, rich phosphate deposits provide Nauruans with one of the highest standards of living in the Pacific.

In desert-dry Botswana, the traditional tribal greeting, pula, means "let there be rain."

An index of 139,000 place names—12,000 more than in the first edition—provides a useful gazetteer and makes it easy to find every map entry.

A page of geographic extremes and comparisons has been kept up to date. The deepest mine, it reports, no longer is the gold mine at Boksburg, South Africa (11,003 feet), but one at Kolar, Mysore, India (11,500 feet), showing the depths man will sink to for gold.

Pecos, Texas, however, still retains the record for the deepest well, an oil shaft plunging 25,430.

School Board Backs Vo-Ed Millage Vote

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night endorsed a proposal by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate Board of Education asking for one-mill to operate vocational-technical education programs in the district.

But two members, Richard Donaldson and Mrs. Robert Lieberman, cast dissenting votes, claiming that Charlevoix has no assurance that any of the money will be used to support local vo-ed programs.

Voting for the endorsement were board members Jack Rader, Clem Wagner, Mrs. Robert Hooper and Board President Jerrald H. Redeker.

The vote came after an hour-long presentation and question-and-answer session conducted by Jim Shepard, consultant for vocational-technical education for the Intermediate District.

Shepard said that unless the district votes operating millage, it is ineligible for state and federal funds for constructing and equipping vo-ed facilities.

He said the cost of setting up most vo-ed courses is too high for any one school district to do an adequate job on its own.

One of Michigan's first vocational — technical education centers already is in operation in Petoskey, but a second is planned for the southern part of the Intermediate District, Shepard said, adding that Charlevoix or some location in the Twin Valley district are possible sites.

Donaldson said he was concerned about writing "a blank check" with no assurance that the money would be spent locally.

Shepard said that regardless of where the center is located, it will serve Charlevoix youngsters.

A vote on the charter millage has been tentatively scheduled for April 12.

In other business the board:

–Heard a report by Supt. Robert Miller that the district will be in serious financial difficulty if Gov. William Milliken's recommendations for school financing are adopted by the Legislature. He said that he has received word that Charlevoix will receive a partial state aid payment in February, amounting to 60 percent of what is due, or $28,932 instead of $48,220. He anticipates that the deficit will be made up later. He said the board will have to pay close attention to cash-on-hand in order to meet payrolls and pay bills in February.

--Contracted with the Honeywell Regulator Division to maintain heating controls at the high school for $1,880 a year.

--Rented a second-hand school bus for $1,500 to be used until Charlevoix's new buses arrive.

Draft Calls Seven More

Seven Charlevoix County men will be inducted into the armed services in February, according to Mrs. Barbara Gallagher, Selective Service board secretary.

Ordered to active duty Feb. 8 will be Eugene B. Renkiewicz, William T. Hardy and Paul D. Carson of Boyne City and Timothy D. Clark, Terry L. Derenzy, James G. Sturgell and Daniel L. Derenzy of East Jordan.

couple more days" before the Air Force decided how long it would continue diving operations.

The wreckage is strewn over a 1,200 path in between 225 and 240 feet of water.

During Monday's operations, divers descended on three different occasions, remaining on the bottom a total of one and one-half hours, Capt. Van Pelt said.

The search is being hampered by unusually murky conditions on the lake bottom, in contrast to the clear surface water.

The underwater work is being conducted by 10 divers from Louisiana and Florida, under contract to Ocean Systems.

Last week diver William Maltman, 28, became tangled in his lines on the lake bottom and had to be assisted by another diver. Maltman was not injured.

After each plunge to the lake bottom, divers must spend three hours in a decompression chamber aboard the Woodbine to prevent "the bends," an infusion of nitrogen gas into the blood-cells.

Gary L. Plum On Dean's List

Gary L. Plum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. Plum, 212 W. Hurlbut-st., was among 382 students on the dean's list for the fall quarter at Michigan Technological University in Houghton.

Plum is studying civil engineering.

To make the list, a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 or higher, according to Dean of Students Harold Meese.

Also on the list was J. Thomas Thurston, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Thurston of R-2, Boyne City. A biological science student, Thurston received all A's.

abated.

The wind was clocked at between 45 and 50 knots at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

All state highway equipment in a 13-county area was called in by mid-morning when operators found it was impossible to cope with the drifts.

Hannn said the city had experienced surprisingly little electrical trouble, considering the high winds.

One power line in front of the Kit Carson home on Petoskey-rd. came down about 10 a.m. and was promptly repaired by the electric crew.

Although the storm was the worst in several years, surprisingly little snow fell. Only six inches were recorded in both Charlevoix and Petoskey by 11 a.m. Monday.

Bernie Ward, who helps keep the official snowfall records at the Charlevoix Sewage Disposal Plant, says the new fall brings Charlevoix's total for the winter to 57 inches, including 5½ inches in November, 26 inches in December and 25½ inches so far in January.

All mail deliveries in Charlevoix and on the rural routes were suspended Monday morning. One letter carrier went out and returned 10 minutes later claiming he couldn't see where he was going.

But there wasn't much mail to deliver. The Post Office reported that it had received no overnight mail deliveries. Some mail had reached East Jordan, but it was doubtful how soon it could be trucked to Charlevoix.

Several plants, offices and shops in the city also closed down for the day, and those that were open reported high absenteeism.

Hess Names 4 Winners

Under terms of the contest, winners are awarded $70 worth of merchandise by registering at the store.

Mrs. Blissett chose a table and picture and Mrs. Whitley selected a floor lamp. Mrs. Lightfoot and Mrs. Louiselle have not yet selected their prizes.

Donkey Game At Ellsworth

Charlevoix Digs Out After Blizzard

Rural Homes Isolated; Schools Down 1 Week

While astronauts Alan B. Shepard jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa were taking off for the moon Sunday afternoon from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Charlevoixans were still trying to dig out their driveways after what long-time weather observers are calling the worst blizzard in northern Michigan history.

And it's not over yet.

Heavy snows began to fall throughout the area again Monday morning, on top of the 18½ inches recorded last week at the Weather Bureau station at the Charlevoix City Dock.

The new fall brings Charlevoix's total snowfall for the season to 66½ inches, several feet less than has been recorded to date in Petoskey, Boyne Falls and other nearby communities.

Charlevoix schools closed with the initial onslaught last Tuesday morning and remained closed through Monday.

Jack Fitzgerald, engineer-manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, reported Monday morning that all back roads, with the exception of Brown-rd. off the Boyne City-rd. had been opened at least once since the storm started. He said his crews planned to have Brown-rd. opened Monday.

However, the new snow, whipped by winds up to 28 knots, threatened to bottle up the entire county again.

Fitzgerald said he has had 30 pieces of snow removal equipment on the roads ever since the storm started, with the heavy plows working two 12-hour shifts. He said he is working with a full-complement of 30 men, including four mechanics.

Fortunately, the commission has had only two equipment breakdowns, with the four-wheel-drive Oshkosh and a grader each laid up for a day for repairs.

Fitzgerald said he has received many emergency calls from residents on back roads who were either out, or running low, of fuel oil. He said every effort was made to open up their roads as early as possible.

Saturday, the commission rushed equipment into the Six-Mile-Lake area to open up a path to bring out a stroke victim.

Late last week, a snowblower was brought into Charlevoix County from Kalkaska to help keep state roads open, Fitzgerald said, but the blower crew gave up Saturday afternoon when visibility dropped to zero. He said the blower was expected to return Monday to pick up where it left off.

The storm isolated hundreds of Charlevoix County families on back roads where the drifts reached a height of 12-feet, Fitzgerald said.

Many of them used snowmobiles to bring in groceries and other necessities.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's department reports that several snowmobile clubs have volunteered to assist snow-bound families, but that so far no real emergencies have arisen.

Despite bad driving conditions, the sheriff's department said there had been no major traffic accidents, just a few "fender benders."

One of the worst drifts in the area built up last Tuesday on the Boyne City-rd. in front of the Blu-Dot Farm, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dyksterhouse.

Mrs. Dyksterhouse said motorists began to get bogged down in the drift Tuesday morning and that during the day she and her family played host to 17 snowbound travelers, seven of whom stayed overnight Tuesday.

At one point, the engine of the Dyksterhouse snowmobile burned out bringing stranded motorists from the drift to the farmhouse.

Mrs. Dysterhouse said she wasn't prepared for so much unexpected company and that pantry supplies were getting low before Road Commission plows finally broke through the drift Wednesday evening.

"But we all had a good time," she says. "I got to know a lot of Charlevoixans I had never met before, as well as people from Boyne City and Petoskey."

Charlevoix area plants all experienced some down-time during the storm.

LexaLite shut down Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. and resumed operations Wednesday afternoon. The rest of the week, the plant ran at about 50 percent capacity because of absenteeism.

President Josh Barnes reported Monday morning that two employes living in the country still hadn't been able to make it to work.

Hal Hill, manager of the American Mold Engineering Co. plant, said the plant closed Wednesday afternoon.

Jack Grubaugh, general manager of Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp., said approximately 100 production employes were out from Tuesday through Friday, although the shipping crew worked Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Monday, faced with a new heavy snowfall, Freedman's cancelled the second shift and sent workers on the first shift home early if they lived out of town.

John Lachman, manager of the Hoskins Manufacturing plant on M-66, said production workers were sent home Tuesday afternoon and that absenteeism ran 50 percent for the remainder of the week. He said some employes were reporting to work on snowmachines.

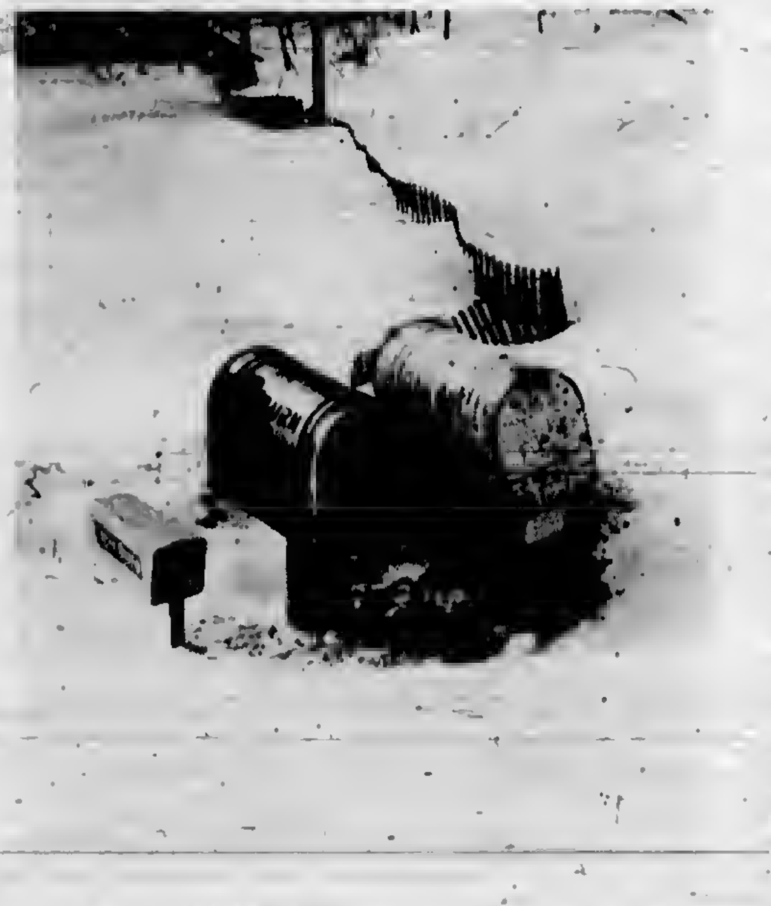
COATED WITH ICE, the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew glides down Pine River Channel after breaking ice for 19 days in the Straits of Mackinac. One of the worst ice collections was just outside the Charlevoix pierheads, according to Lt. Cmdr. Berl Williams, skipper. The cutter brought home the crew aboard the Lansing Shoal light, officially ending the shipping season on the northern lakes for the winter.

Breakthrough Invites Pastors

The Breakthrough Committee has invited all pastors in the Charlevoix area to a "Bible Rap" Thursday, Feb. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Breakthrough center in the Hogan Building on Park-ave. The pastors will be invited to listen to a recording of the rock opera, "Jesus Christ – Super Star."



IF YOU looked way down from the crest of the Boyne City-rd. drift, you could see mailboxes like these. Mail deliveries were curtailed during the height of the blizzard.

Sundew Broke Through 12-Ft. Windrows in Straits

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew arrived back in Charlevoix Sunday afternoon at 2:25 p.m. after 19 days of ice-breaking in the Straits of Mackinac, part of a massive effort to extend the northern lakes shipping season until the end of January.

Lt. Cmdr. Berl Williams, skipper of the Sundew, said the cutter escorted the last southbound freighter–the U.S. Steel ore carrier Philip E. Clark–as far as Lansing Shoal light Saturday night.

The cutter laid over near the light to pick up the lighthouse crew Sunday morning before returning to Charlevoix.

Lt. Cmdr. Williams said the crib ladders on the lighthouse were so slippery from ice that the men were removed to the Sundew by means of a cargo net attached to the ship's boom.

Coast Guardsmen aboard the light were ENC Dale C. Hoosier, SN William W. Chase, BMA Donald B. Simpkins and FA Phil D. Johnson, all assigned to the Charlevoix Station.

The Sundew left Charlevoix Jan. 13 to assist both east and west bound ships through the Straits.

He said the going was fairly easy until after last week's blizzard left a thick blanket of snow on the windrowed ice, which reached a depth of 12-ft. in some places.

Last Thursday, he said, the Sundew broke a path beneath the Mackinac Bridge, traveling only 1½ miles in six hours.

On the last trip through the Straits Saturday, the Sundew stayed only 50 yards of the Philip R. Clark to make sure the freighter had a clear passage through the ice.

Lt. Cmdr. Williams said the severe ice conditions exist only about one mile west of the bridge, with only one foot of ice across the northern end of Lake Michigan.

He said some of the toughest going was encountered off the Charlevoix pierheads Sunday afternoon. He said it took the Sundew two hours to travel the last 1½ miles into Pine River Channel.

"We'd back up and ram through the ice. Sometimes we'd go only 50 or 75 yards. Then we'd have to back up and try it again," he said.

While the Sundew was escorting vessels through the Straits, the Coast Guard Cutter Mackinac, out of Cheboygan, was keeping the shipping lane open through the St. Marys River between Lake Superior and Lake Huron.

Lt. Cmdr. Williams said the Sundew will be on repair status for the next three weeks while the engines are overhauled.

After Feb. 22, the Sundew will standby to assist oil

Council Agrees to Meeting

The docks and harbors committee of the Charlevoix City Council will meet with a committee from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Saturday afternoon to discuss means of expanding the city's docking facilities for pleasure craft.

The decision to turn the problem over to committee came at the end of a two-hour idea-swapping session during the regular city council meeting Monday night. The chamber's board of directors attended.

The council will be represented at the Saturday meeting by Mayor William Fochtman, City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna and Alderman Robert Gill, Roger Westenbroek and Conrad Klooster.

The chamber representatives were to be selected at a meeting of the group Tuesday night.

The joint-committee meeting was suggested by Mayor Fochtman after an amicable impasse over the position of new boat slips on the city's list of priorities.

THE BLIZZARD was not without it's more pleasant aspects. The Bridge-st. offices of the Charlevoix Agency looked like a Christmas card Sunday, with snow banked up to the window sills.

Schools Open After Blizzard

School Supt. Robert Miller reported at deadline that school would resume Tuesday morning, after a seven-day shutdown because of the blizzard.

Buses were expected to follow their regular routes.

The County Road Commission said that all roads in the county were open with the exception of Richardson-rd.

AF Probe Called Off

The on-the-scene investigation of the crash of the B-52 bomber in Lake Michigan off Charlevoix was called off Jan. 19 after foul weather set in.

The Air Force reportedly was unable to determine the cause of the crash after examining pieces of wreckage brought to the surface with the help of a team of 10 hard-hat divers.

The crash on Jan. 8 claimed the lives of nine airmen.

The Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine, which was assisting in the investigation, returned to southern Lake Michigan immediately to assist in a search and rescue mission off Saugatuck.

State Pays Twp. Taxes

State Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-37th District) announced that the following payments will be made to Charlevoix County townships for taxes on lands purchased for conservation purposes.

This money is made available to local units of Government under an act passed by the Legislature.

Boyne Valley, $2,176.70; Chandler, 101.92; Eveline, 406.56; Hayes, 89.00; Hudson, 5,718.70; Marion, 47.58; Melrose, 2,158.75; Peaine, 800.10; South Arm, 139.20 and St. James, 3,306.95.

Deputies Work Longer for Less

Charlevoix County sheriff's deputies worked more hours at a lower hourly wage rate in 1970 than they did in 1969, the annual Sheriff's Department report reveals.

According to the figures, the staff worked 15,816 hours in 1969 at an average rate of $2.16 an hour.

In 1970, the department worked 19,460½ hours, at an average rate of $1.95 an hour.

The report also shows the department handled 124 property damage accidents in 1970, compared to 142 the year before.

Personal injury accidents investigated dropped from 60 to 58, and the number of fatals was down one, from seven to six.

Traffic arrests went up from 90 to 98 and traffic assists rose from 51 to 88.

Felony arrests dropped from 73 to 56 and misdemeanor arrests plunged from 199 to 129.

But the number of persons incarcerated in the county jail rose from 213 to 253.

Annual Meet

The annual meeting of the Ace Credit Union will be held Sunday, Feb. 7 at the 4-H Center at the Emmet County fairgrounds in Petoskey. A potluck dinner will be served at 1 p.m.

CHARLEVOIX NEEDS NEW BLOOD!
Experience is fine, but initiative and the desire to produce results will produce greater rewards for Charlevoix. We don't need another experience like Hampton Village, or the current Hamilton Boatyard-Alice St. legal hassel.
If it takes experience to produce problems like these........WE DON'T NEED IT!
IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE!
The present mayor would like to finish the program he has started...but this may take forever, based on the fact that he hasn't even found the time to appoint a new police chief. CHARLEVOIX Scout Walter Kroush (front row center) has achieved the rank of Eagle. Other Scouts honored at recent Court of Review were John Ozga (left) and Paul Osterberg who became Life Scouts. In back row are Troop 11 leaders Jerry Paul, Douglas Wilks, Louis Edwards and Val Avery.

Glenn Waddell

YFC Leader To Start Unit In France

Glenn Waddell, who was instrumental in establishing the first Youth For Christ chapter in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area two years ago, has been selected to lead a Michigan youth team to France this spring to set up a five-year Campus Life Club program.

The initial tour will be four-months long, of which Waddell will serve as director from March 1 through May 1.

Waddell presently is Youth for Christ director for the Grand Traverse Bay area.

His team of young musicians and singers has been selected exclusively from YFC clubs throughout Michigan. Their headquarters will be in Valance, a city of 120,000 population in southeastern France.

The decision to involve Michigan resources and personnel in an international mission of youth evangelization was made by state YFC in September and endorsed by the Overseas Division of YFC International in October.

The team presently is in intensive training at YFCI headquarters in Wheaton, Ill.

Waddell has been involved in the YFC movement for nine years.

Walter E. Kroush Attains Eagle Rank

Walter E. Kroush of Charlevoix was awarded the grand prize of Scouting, an Eagle Scout Badge, at a Northern District Board of Review held at the Emmet County Courthouse Monday, Jan. 25.

Kroush is the son of Gene Kroush and Mrs. Helen Hawver of Charlevoix.

The new Eagle is a sophomore in Charlevoix High School and a member of Troop 11 sponsored by the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. Walter is a member of the Order of the Arrow and has been a staff member at Camp Greilick. He is presently Junior Scout Master of Troop 11.

Also winning advancement at the Board of Review were John Ozga and Paul Osterberg of Troop 11 who moved from the rank of Star Scout to Life Scout. Their next step, the hardest, will be to the rank of Eagle.

From Petoskey Troop 156, twins Dale and Don Lewis won Star ranking. It is the first time in the memory of local scouters that twins have achieved this rank at the same board of review.

A third First Class Scout moved up to the rank of Star. He is Terry Brochu of Walloon Lake Troop No. 59.

Each of the successful candidates will officially receive the badge of his new rating at Courts of Honor to be held by their troops. The Northern District had a banner year in Scout advancement in 1970 with ten Eagle Scouts reaching tee top prize in the youth organization.

New Chief To Head Area Scout Units

Bob Umbarger of Cheboygan was appointed district Scout commissioner for the Northern District at a recent meeting of the Scenic Trails Council executive board.

In his new role, Umbarger will head a 20-member staff serving Cub Scout packs and Boy Scout troops in five northwestern Michigan counties, including Charlevoix.

He also will work closely with District Executive Frank Welling in extending the Scouting program to all boys.

Umbarger is president of the Fox Valley Instrument Co. of Cheboygan, manufacturer of electronic test equipment.

He has served as Scoutmaster and assistant of Troop 210 sponsored by St. Francis of Assissi Catholic Church in Cheboygan, and has been a member of the Scenic Trails Council Executive Board, playing an active part in organizing district and council events.

He is a brotherhood member of the Order of the Arrow, Scouting's honor society.

Umbarger and his wife, Argalee have three children, David 11; Judy, 10; and John, 6.

Schools Fall In Line Under Lunch Edict

All public schools in Michigan that serve Type A lunches under the National School Lunch Program hove complied with new Federal regulations requiring submission of free and reduced price policy statements.

The Charlevoix Elementary School is included in the program.

According to Dennis M. Doyle, Midwest regional director for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service, local school authorities were obligated under Public Law 91-248 to establish standards of eligibility for free and reduced price lunches.

The criteria for uniform standards are based on family size, family income and number of children in school. In addition, beginning Jan. 1, any school children from a family whose annual income is at or less than the "income poverty guidelines" prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture must be served lunches free or at a reduced price not to exceed 20 cents.

"Previously, standards varied widely," Doyle said, "because each school determined which children were eligible to receive lunch assistance."

In Michigan, approximately 604,000 youngsters in 2,661 schools are benefitting daily from Type A lunches. Of the total, some 13 percent are receiving lunches free or at a reduced rate.

Blue Cross, Shield Rates Are Going Up

Michigan Blue Cross and Blue Shield has been authorized to increase rates an average of 6.6 percent on April 1.

Blue Cross, which pays hospital costs for its subscribers, received approval to increase its rates an average of 9.6 percent on regular subscriber contracts, while Blue Shield, which pays doctors' fees, was granted a 5.9 percent increase in rates.

State Insurance Commissioner Russell E. Van Hooser, who approved the rate increases, said that monthly rates for a typical Blue Cross-Blue Shield group subscriber will increase an average of $3.36 under the new schedule.

The amount of increase will vary greatly, however, depending on the type of contract, the group's rating and riders on the contracts. In the case of group contracts, a person's employer usually pays a portion or all of the cost of hospital and medical programs.

Van Hooser said that persons covered under the Blue Cross senior citizen supplemental contracts will pay an additional 35 cents a month for coverage. This increase is the result of recent changes in the Medicare Program that increased the amount of the deductible recipients are required to pay.

"Both Blue Cross and Blue Shield filed data showing that the cost and utilization of medical and health care has continued to increase at an unexpected rate," Van Hooser said. "This has resulted in substantial increases in the payments made by Blue Cross and Blue Shield to hospitals and doctors on behalf of their subscribers.

"Although the Insurance Bureau has no control over the charges which hospitals and doctors make against Blue Cross and Blue Shield, it does have the legal responsibility to assure that Blue Cross and Blue Shield maintains sufficient funds to pay for the cost of hospital, medical, and other services received by their subscribers."

Van Hooser said that although Blue Cross currently has a positive contingency reserve of approximately $15 million, present data indicate that the corporation is experiencing underwriting losses which result in a continuing depletion of such reserves.

Big Savings On 'Big Mac'

Nearly one-fifth of the original Mackinac Bridge bond issue will soon be redeemed and at a savings of about $3,600,000, according to Prentiss M. Brown of St. Ignace, chairman of the Mackinac Bridge Authority.

"As of Jan. 14, $16,831,000 of par value bonds were retired," Brown said. "There is now enough money in the redemption fund to purchase about $2,000,000 more when the market price is favorable."

Mackinac Bridge bonds were originally sold in December, 1953 in the amount of $99,800,000 to pay for the cost of engineering and construction of the five-mile-long project over the straits separating Michigan's two peninsulas. Bond redemption started in 1985, and the number of bonds retired has increased in each succeeding year.

"When the moneys presently in the redemption fund are applied to bond purchases, it is expected that there will be about $80,000,000 of par value bonds outstanding of the original $99,800,000. Assuming there are no major uphenvals in the economy, all bonds should be retired before 1985."

Journalism Society Admits Beth Baldwin

Fifty-four student and professional journalists from the mid-Michigan area, including Beth Baldwin of Charlevoix, a sophomore at Central Michigan University, will be initiated into Sigma Delta Chi (SDX), a national professional journalistic society, on Friday, Feb. 5.

Miss Baldwin, a journalism major at CMU, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin of 404 Michigan-ave., Charlevoix.

Miss Baldwin worked last summer for the Charlevoix Courier as a reporter and in advertising sales and layout.

The CMU chapter, a local organization for the past three years, was unanimously invited to join Sigma Delta Chi at its annual convention last fall in Chicago.

Frank Angelo, managing editor of the Detroit Free Press and past national president of SDX, will present the CMU chapter with its charger. Keynote speaker for the event will be Al Fitzpatrick, news editor of the Akron Beacon Journal, who supervised newsroom coverage of last spring's Kent State University incident.

Over 100 professional journalists from throughout the state and midwest have been invited to the installation and initiation ceremonies and dinner at the Holiday Inn.

To be eligible for membership in Sigma Delta Chi, a student must plan on some aspect of journalism as a profession. Besides the print media, members are sought from broadcast journalism and journalism education.

When a student graduates from college, he can then join the professional chapter in the area of his employment.

Library Notes

This week Library notes will depart from the usual practice of listing and reviewing new books to bring an important article to the attention of our patrons. "Weeds, Bugs, Americans" was written by John Fowles the author of "The French Lieutenant's Woman" which has been on the best seller list for over 55 weeks.

The article appears in the Dec. 21, 1970, issue of Sports Illustrated, and this might seem odd until we realize that this popular and first-rate magazine is read mainly by young people, and it is the young people who are most deeply concerned with ecology and our environment.

John Fowles takes a far-from-fictional look at the dour role of man in nature, argues on behalf of backyard laziness and places the fate of God's world in hands that want it least--our own. He is an Englishman, and he compares his own country's relationship with ordinary nature with the bad relationship which, he feels, is an important weakness in America.

He asks the question: Why can Britain show a good deal more common wildlife in its cities, towns, suburbs and surrounding countryside than the United States? And he feels that this happy situation is not due at all to a greater conservation conscience in the British.

The author brings up an interesting point when he discusses Governor Bradford's story of the Pilgrim Fathers' grim early years in Massachusetts. According to the governor's account, Americans had a resentful hostility to the overwhelming power of the wild land which made it seem a far worse enemy than the Indians.

Fowles admits that it would be ridiculous to speak of hostility to natural America in the modern United States, but he feels there still lingers a kind of generalized suspicion about it--or a cold indifference, as if it may have been officially forgiven the sweat and tears it exacted from the settlers and pioneers, but can't expect to be trusted, let alone loved, for a long time yet.

One of the most charming parts of the article deals with Fowle's observations on backyard gardening. Well-kept grass gives a very poor ecological return, he tells us, and he would urge everyone to become a little lazy about pulling weeds and pruning bushes since they not only encourage birds but provide an important insect habitat. He accuses Americans of referring to all insects under the label "bug", as though some forms of life are below our dignity to call them beetles, flies and wasps.

"Weeds, Bugs, Americans" is an extremely long article. It is rather more a cogent philosophy of nature than a familiar treatise on conservation.

Bulletin! We have just received word that Pat Begrow has a new article in the national Ski Magazine.

The Charlevoix Board of Education has given Dr. Chris A. DeYoung of Grand Valley College permission to use a picture taken at the new elementary school in his forthcoming book, "American Education."

Dr. DeYoung reportedly saw the picture in the offices of Daverman Associates in Grand Rapids, architects of the school.

The picture shows youngsters at work in the school, which incorporates such innovations as doorless rooms, carpeting and wide use of acoustical materials.

Davis Asks Moratorium On Hunting Does, Fawns

Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-37th District) today called on the Department of Natural Resources to declare a three-year moratorium on hunting antlerless deer in the Upper Peninsula and in the northern part of the lower peninsula.

In a resolution introduced in the senate, Sen. Davis urged the department to "use all of its abilities to assess the effects of not shooting antlerless deer" in the Upper Peninsula and north of highway M-55, which runs from Manistee to Tawas City in the Lower Peninsula.

Terming the deer herd Michigan's "most important wildlife resource," Sen. Davis asserted that the declining deer herd and increasing number of hunters "have resulted in much dissatisfaction with the degree of antlerless deer hunting permitted in many areas of the state."

The resolution asserts "there is considerable misunderstanding by the hunting public" about the relationship between deer and their range and the actual impact of hunting on deer numbers.

"The Legislature is deeply concerned over the lack of acceptance of the deer management program," said the resolution. "Relations between the department and the public have deteriorated over the antlerless deer hunting and, from a legislative point of view, it would appear that the Natural Resources Commission has not been responsive to the views of the state's sportsmen."

The resolution calls for the department to report its findings about the proposed three-year moratorium to the commission and the legislature in July of 1972, 1973 and 1974.

The senator also said he would resubmit a bill that he introduced last year, calling for appropriation of a dollar of each deer license sold to be used for deer ranga improvement.

"I am deeply concerned about the deer problem and the lack of rapport between our game experts and hunters," said Sen. Davis.

"I am reluctant to have to accomplish these purposes by legislation but, if that is the only way to get them, then I feel the job must be done.

"I don't think that anyone will argue with the contention that we are losing deer range very rapidly. Therefore, I feel we should do something to replace it. Appropriation of a dollar of each hunting license for this purpose should do much toward providing our dwindling herd with improved range."

Outdoor Fun on Tap For All of February

February is outdoor fun month in Michigan, according to the winter edition of the Michigan Calendar of Travel Events. More than 30 action-packed outdoor activities are listed in the calendar, compiled by the Michigan Tourist Council.

Heading the list of fun-filled wintertime events is the annual Winter Carnival at Michigan Technological University, Houghton-Hancock, Feb. 4-6. First held in 1922, the carnival features snow statutes, the traditional crowning of the carnival queen at a Sno-Ball, broom hockey played with a volley ball and human-drawn sled races.

Other winter carnivals and festivals listed include the Winter Sports Carnival Weekend in Grayling, Feb. 12-14; Grant Township Winter Carnival at Sand Lake, Feb. 13-14; and Perchville Festival, Tawas Bay, Feb. 19-21.

Snowmobile racing fans will find plenty of excitement in Michigan, beginning with the International 500 Mile Snowmobile Classic at Sault Ste. Marie on Feb. 6. Fifty drivers will pit their skill against the one-mile oval-banked track in vying for the $5,000 winner's purse. Michigan's upper peninsula will also be the scene of two championship races–the Champion of Champions Snowmobile Race in Newberry, Feb. 20-21, and the North American Snowmobile Championships at Munising, Feb. 27-28.

Thrills galore await speedskating and ski buffs during February in Michigan. The Michigan Outdoor Speedskating Championship will be held in Petoskey, Feb. 6-7, and the Indoor Speedskating Championship will take place at Wyandotte, Feb. 27. Three ski tournaments will be held in Michigan's upper peninsula–the Pine Mountain Ski Jumping Tournaments at Iron Mountain, Feb. 13-14; U.S.S.A. Alpine Championship, junior division, at Mount Ripley in Hancock, Feb. 26-28; and North American Ski Flying Meet at Copper Peak, north of Ironwood, Feb. 27-28.

The calendar lists many other community events offering a bonanza of fun for the entire family including an Ice Cap Golf Tournament on Spring Lake, near Grand Haven, Feb. 13; the Michigan State Hot Wheels Championship Derby, Saginaw, Feb. 6; National Bump Jumper Contest, Petoskey, Feb. 7; and a Sports Car Ice Run on Lake Margrethe, Grayling, Feb. 20-21.

Copies of the Michigan Calendar of Travel Events, listing winter activities and events, are available free of charge from the Michigan Tourist Council, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing, Michigan - 48926.

Office Will Report Short-Fuse Storms

The National Weather Service is improving its marine forecast and warning service for the Great Lakes area by localizing small-craft advisories and providing for the issuance of short-fuse warnings.

The Weather Service – part of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration established recently in the Commerce Department – is seeking in particular to improve its warning system against thunderstorms and squalls that could endanger fishermen in small boats or other recreational boaters.

With small-boat safety in mind, the Weather Service is inaugurating in 1971 a "special Marine Warning Bulletin." Such a bulletin will be disseminated by teletypewriter and radio whenever a severe local storm or strong wind is expected that will be of brief duration (two hours or less) and which is not covered by existing Gale or Storm Warnings.

No visual displays will accompany the Special Marine Warning Bulletin. The reason for this is that the type of hazard involved usually will be sudden in development. Typically, the warning might be based on a radar report or a visual observation from a ship or coastal station, and require action within minutes if lives and property are to be saved.

Boaters should expect to receive this type of bulletin by radio from NOAA VHF-FM stations (where one is nearby) or from Coast Guard or commercial broadcast stations. Inquiries can be made at local Weather Service offices to determine the best means of receiving the broadcasts.

The new Small Craft Advisory will replace the Small Craft Warning in the Great Lakes region. It will relate to conditions within five miles of shore. It is to be disseminated by visual displays and by teletypewriter and radio. Gale and Storm Warnings will continue to be issued for the Great Lakes. The Advisory is to alert mariners to sustained (more than two hours) weather or sea conditions that might be hazardous to small boats. Decision as to the degree of hazard will be left up to the mariner, based on his experience and size and type of boat. Mariners learning of a Small Craft Advisory are urged to determine immediately the reason by tuning their radios to the latest marine forecast.

The threshold wind for the Small Craft Advisory is usually 18 knots, unless otherwise pegged by a local Weather Service office.

During the recreational boating season on the Great Lakes – April 1 to Nov. 15 – National Weather Service Offices will routinely issue daily forecast summaries for their assigned areas.

Davis Asks U-Boards Be Named

Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-37th District) has called for the abolishment of the elected governing boards of the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne State University.

In their stead, Sen. Davis would substitute seven-member boards appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate.

The appointed board members would serve staggered four-year terms and not more than four members would be from any one political party.

"This system would be much more responsive to the public through the governor and the legislature," said Senator Davis.

"At present, these members are elected at large."

Sen. Davis noted that other institutions of higher learning supported by tax funds are operated by separate boards whose members are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

"This is a much better system and I think, in the interests of consistency and of more responsive control of the institutions, boards of the three largest universities should be named the same way," said Sen. Davis.

The change proposed by Sen. Davis would require an amendment to the state constitution. Davis will introduce a resolution in February necessary to bring the issue to a vote of the people either next November or November, 1972, depending on whether or not a general statewide election will be held this year.

Seamanship Course Starts

A course in basic seamanship will be offered by the Charlevoix Coast Guard Auxiliary beginning Wednesday, Feb. 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix City Hall, according to flotilla Commander Jim Esterline of Harbor Springs.

The course will continue through March 31, with classes every Wednesday evening except the first week in March, when the class will meet Tuesday.

Men, women, and young people are welcome to take the course.

A similar course is expected to start in Petoskey Feb. 16, Cmdr. Esterline said.

Farmers Can Get Funds To Help Fight Pollution

Robert W. Reidel, chairman of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) Committee, has announced that the ACP has been renamed the Rural Environmental Assistance Program.

"Farmers have known REAP as ACP - The Agricultural Conservation Program," Reidel said. "The cost-sharing principle will be the same—that is, farmers and the Federal Government will share equally in paying for beneficial conservation practices. The restructured program will be in line with modern day needs for a better environment, both on and off the farm."

Reidel stated that major considerations in authorizing cost-sharing of any conservation practice will be the resulting public benefits such as pollution abatement, enduring soil and water conservation, recreation, wildlife, and open space as well as the degree of permanency achieved.

A major thrust will be to reduce water pollution. Water retaining and retarding measures on farms, such as dams and pond permanent grass cover, waterways, buffer strips, and tree planting—will be encouraged.

These will be directed toward reducing silt in streams, rivers, lakes and other bodies of water and toward reducing pollution from animal wastes, fertilizers and pesticides.

"Farmers should be made aware that this announcement means we will be able to continue cost-sharing on anti-pollution measures which were approved last year under ACP and also such long standing conservation practices as those just named," the ASC Committee Chairman said.

As in prior years, applications for conservation cost-sharing will be made at the County ASCS Office and must be approved by the County ASC Committee before work begins. The farmer-elected committeemen will continue to select practices best suited to local needs, will determine which farm needs land treatment, and will fix the amount of cost-sharing to be provided each approved applicant.

The allocation of REAP funds for Michigan is $3,262,000.00.

Ironton

Mrs. Ross Alexander
547-9878

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harrison have returned home after spending the past five weeks with their children in Detroit and also in Simi, which is near Los Angeles, Calif.

Mr. Jack Jetzen, a former resident and a winter resident of Scottsdale, Ariz, spent several days locally and was a guest at the Glen Williams home this Thursday.

Our predicted four-day thaw lasted for a short time last Sunday and Monday morning and in the afternoon it started to snow and it has been a howling blizzard for three days. We were all completely snowed in until Phil Myner got out with his tractor and plow on Wednesday and cleared several driveways and Washington-st. to M-66. The snow is packed so tight and solid one can walk over the top. There is a drift in our backyard deeper than we have had in many a year I have been tempted to take my grandmother's wooden butter bowl and return to my childhood days sliding on it. But I have seen it much worse more than 40 years ago. We waited a full week for the snow plow to come from Charlevoix to Ironton and then it took what was called a double header to get through on old M-66 and over the school house hill. Those were what we called the Good old Days. And I have been told there is more snow on the way and February and March will be rough months, with a real late spring. If you plan on a vacation, August will be the best time to go... But time will tell.

District Court

John H. Crandell, of Boyne City, was assessed $120 and sentenced to three days in jail when he appeared before District Judge Wayne Richard Smith in Charlevoix last week on a charge of driving while his license was suspended. He also was placed on one-year's probation.

Crandell's was the only case on the docket.

Norwood

Mr. and Mrs. Rod Richardson and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Odgen and family in Gaylord Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lord were Sunday evening lunch guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lord and son in East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas and family of East Jordan called on her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Richardson, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Skully and family of Cadillac called on Mr. and Mrs. Rod Richardson Saturday evening.

Willie Sink and friend of Ann Arbor have been spending a few days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Sink.

Snowmobiles Save The Day in Blizzard

The snowmobile, which usually catches heck in the editorial columns of the nation's press, is the hero of the week, so far as Charlevoix and environs are concerned.

Many families living on back roads in Charlevoix County would have been hard-pressed to keep their larders filled with groceries during the past week if it hadn't been for the lowly snowmobile's ability to climb snowdrifts that would have proved the undoing of conventional vehicles.

Some breadwinners also have been able to get to work every day on their snow machines, a feat that would have been impossible in ordinary automobiles.

Even in town, law enforcement officers have looked the other way when snowmobilers used their machines to run errands that would be impossible or extremely difficult on foot.

The first successful snowmobile, you'll recall, was invented by a French-Canadian backwoodsman who came up with the idea for a snow machine after his son suffered a ruptured appendix and, because of a snowstorm, was unable to reach medical assistance in time.

Since then, the snowmobile has become more-or-less a plaything for people who could afford one. Hundreds of thousands of Americans and Canadians have found snowmobiling is a pleasant way to spend a winter afternoon, scooting down backwoods trails into areas that otherwise would be inaccessible in the winter time.

But now the snowmobile has come full circle.

Dozens of Charlevoix area families will attest to the fact that they survived the "Blizzard of '71" as well as they did because of the impertinent, noisy snowmobiles that everyone has been objecting to for so long.

Deer Herd Needs New Management

You don't have to be a skilled conservationist with a degree or two under your belt to realize that the deer herd in northern Michigan is not what it was a few short years ago.

Anyone who does any traveling at all around Charlevoix knows that there just aren't as many of the shy critters haunting our woodlands as there used to be.

Not long ago, it was possible to count dozens of whitetails at a time in open areas of Norwood and Hayes townships.

And you couldn't take a short drive in the evening without picking up the eyes of three or four deer grazing alongside the road.

State Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-37th District) thinks our game laws, which have permitted the killing of does and fawns in certain northern Michigan areas in recent years, may be to blame.

That is why he has asked the Department of Natural Resources to declare a three-year moratorium on the hunting of antlerless deer in the Upper Peninsula and the northern portion of the Lower Peninsula. And he has introduced a resolution to that effect in the Senate.

"The Legislature is deeply concerned over the lack of acceptance of the deer management program," Sen. Davis said in his resolution. "Relations between the department and the public have deteriorated over the antlerless deer hunting and, for a legislative point of view, it would appear that the Natural Resources Commission has not been responsive to the views of the state's sportsmen."

Sen. Davis also is concerned over deer range deterioration and said he will resubmit a bill that he introduced last year calling for appropriation of $1 of each deer license sold to be used for deer range improvement.

The senator says he is reluctant to have to resort to legislation to accomplish his ends, "but, if that is the only way to get them, then I feel the job must be done."

With or without such legislation, we think it is high time for the Department of Natural Resources to take fast and effective steps to save what Sen. Davis calls Michigan's "most important wildlife resource."

Birds Need Your Help

Whether or not you have ever joined the ranks of bird feeders, this might be a good time to start.

The recent blizzard has engulged many of the low, seed-bearing bushes and shrubs on which birds feed and reports from around Charlevoix have it that many of the little fellows are on the verge of starvation.

Sub-zero temperatures also are adding to the plight of our songbirds.

Most grocery stores in town carry a supply of bird seed and a simple bird feeder can be built for pennies, probably with materials you have around the house. Place it in your yard in front of a window, so you can watch the various species of birds as they come to feed.

And keep it filled with seeds until the snow goes. It is cruel to start a giveaway program and not follow it through.

If you plan to build your own feeder, check the illustration below on how to do it.

Wants Church Bells Instead Of Siren

Jan. 22, 1971

Dear Bob,

Charlevoix, the Beautiful?

Visually beautiful, yes. Located on three fresh water lakes; laced with pine and birch trees; locked between blue skies and blue water. All true.

But are the sounds of Charlevoix beautiful? Some are. Like the various church bells around town; they're beautiful.

Some sounds become beautiful. Like the clanging of the bridge or the whine of the fog horn once we become accustomed to them.

But some sounds are ugly!

I'm referring to the jarring, jolting, screetching noon siren that startles people out of their wits when they happen to walk into the Post Office, for example, at noon time. More people on Bridge Street have mentioned the fearful sound of our noon whistle to me this year than ever before, but like the weather, everyone talks about it but no one does anything about it.

Isn't it time we do something about it?

We read in the papers articles by scientists such as Dr. John L. Fuller, an authority on inherited behavioral disorders, who believes it is entirely possible that noise pollution may be triggering effects in humans today that seem unrelated to the cause. Three recent books entitled, "The Tyranny of Noise," and "The Fight for Quiet" and "In Quest of Quiet", all point to the dangers of noise pollution on the human nervous system.

Most of us recall the old whistle in use prior to the relatively new siren, which was far less objectionable. But since we can't get our old whistle back, and chances are there is little money in the budget to purchase a siren that would be more pleasing to the ear–there are two alternatives, if we care to have Charlevoix BE Beautiful, not only visually, but also acoustically.

1) We can eliminate the objectionable noon siren completely.

2) We can substitute church bells for both the noon whistle and the curfew.

Then we would only suffer the screetch of the siren to signal danger (fire or a major disaster) and this is after all what the siren was designed to do.

How about it?

Says Our Kids Lack Respect for 'Hellfire'

Mr. Bob Clock,
The Charlevoix Courier.

Dear Mr. Clock:

Complaints about youthful excesses and crimes seem to be increasing.

Many causes and motivations have been discussed at weary lengths but the basic source has been completely overlooked. None of the kids believe in hellfire.

In the early years of the century, priests, preachers and parents threatened eternal roasting for all sinners. Most of them believed implicitly in the fate they predicted and used their faith to scare the pants off youthful transgressors with the reverse effect on young ladies which was a good thing.

Modern education has done much to destroy the old myths but it is debatable if this is not a mixed blessing. Today, young delinquents are joined by bright youngsters with off-beat motivations in setting up problems for society. Not believing in any coming hellfire they may do their thing with nothing to fear other than a tolerant society's view of their childish pranks.

Years ago, Billy Sunday had hosts of sinners moving down the sawdust trail because of that hot blast impinging on the back of their necks. He probably acquired a greater percentage of converts than our boy, Billy Graham, although he didn't make as much money. But modern Billy doesn't have that fire and brimstone working for him. Nor does anyone else.

What we need is a modern substitute for good, old-fashioned hellfire.

With hot regards,
Geddie

Me & Moby Dick

By Bob Clock
(With apologies to Herman Melville)

My name isn't Ishmael.

And I don't live on Nantucket Island. And I'm not the skipper of a Boston Whaler.

But I do have a great white whale out behind the Courier office, the destruction of which has become one of the driving forces of my life.

My white whale, which I'll call "Moby Dick" for want of a better name, swam up Pine River Channel early this winter and settled down for an extended visit in what used to be our parking lot.

It has been feeding on snowflakes ever since and even before the last blizzard had gorged itself to unbelievable proportions.

Since the blizzard, it has almost tripled in size and is threatening to break down the rear wall of the Courier office unless I can get rid of it.

My "Moby Dick", of course, is the snow drift which was pictured on Page 8 of last week's Courier.

But that was just a goosebump compared to the festering blister of snow that has collected out there since then.

Every morning, secretary Pat Lasa, ad man Jim Sisson and I can hardly wait to get to work to see what the drift has done over night.

By last Tuesday, the snow was piled waist-high against our back door. By Thursday, you could only see a little daylight out of the top panes of glass. Friday, the storm sash on the rear window began to buckle inward from the weight of the snow. Saturday, the door was blocked completely, with only a triangle of light coming through the top of the window.

If you move in close, you can look through the glass to see the cornice of the drift swirling up, up, up as high as the roof of the Hess Furniture Store next door.

Last Thursday I decided to have a first-hand look at the drift from the rear to see what I could do about removing it. My first shock was to discover that the drift is not just a pile of light fluff, as I had expected.

It is as solid as the rock of Gibraltar and when I started climbing, my feet barely scuffed the surface. From the top I could see that the drift drops off sharply toward Belding Realty and I devised a plan to shovel a path to the Courier door from the north, on what I thought was the soft, unexposed side of the drift.

So I trudged back to the office, pulled on a woolen cap and a pair of warm mittens and returned to the drift, wading through knee-deep snow behind Bellinger's and Belding's.

I raised my snow shovel like a harpoon and let it fly into what I thought was the soft underbelly of Moby Dick. The snow didn't budge but I almost bent the shovel.

After 15 minutes work, I managed to scrap away only two cups of snow and there was no place to put it so it wouldn't blow back. Then I looked up at the mountain of work ahead of me and gave up. (I'm not really as stout-hearted as Ishmael, either.)

I suppose I could have a front-end loader come in and take care of Moby Dick, but I'm afraid any additional pressure from the rear will shatter the glass in the window and door.

So I have just decided to sit tight and see what happens.

Moby Dick makes a great conversation piece and visitors to the Courier office receive escorted tours to the back room to have a look for themselves through the tiny slit of window glass that hasn't yet become covered.

Through the stratifications of snow outside the door you can see how snowdrifts are built up, layer upon layer. For added interest, there are pine needles and dead leaves pressed against the glass like botanical specimens. It is very educational.

I don't know what will happen when the drift starts to melt, but if the weather forecasts for the rest of the season hold true, I won't have to worry about that until July.

No More Confessions?

By Jim Fitzgerald

Pope Paul has asked the world's 3,199 Catholic bishops to study a Vatican recommendation to eliminate obligatory, head-to-head confession. Instead, congregations would confess sins jointly and not specifically, in a prayer of general confession. In return, the priest would give them joint absolution, urging them to go and sin no more – but to hurry back if they do.

If the bishops approve, private confessions could be eliminated within a year, according to Vatican sources. I'll leave it to the theologians to decide if this would be good or bad. My concern is more commercial:

What would be done with all those emptied confessionals?

To me, confessionals have always been marvelously spooky yet functional contraptions. I don't think they've changed much since my childhood when I went to confession every Saturday even if I had to lie about how many lies I'd told so the priest wouldn't think I was wasting his time.

In those days, and probably today, most confessionals had three separate compartments, each about the size of a phone booth, and each shrouded in pious darkness. The priest sat in the middle, preferably on a swivel stool. Small screened windows with sliding doors allowed him to talk to the sinners, one at a time, in the other two compartments. The sinner in one compartment was not supposed to try to hear what the sinner in the other compartment was confessing to the priest. But what could you do if the other sinner was a lousy whisperer, or the priest was hard of hearing? The nuns used to tell us to plug our ears but that was asking an awful lot of a little kid who knew his rotten sister was in the other compartment.

If these confessionals are abandoned, there will probably be many suggestions for what to do with them. A confessional planter would certainly make a great conversation piece in the recreation room. A non-plumber might find triple use for one 50 yards behind his cabin in the north woods. A New York landlord might rent one as a three room apartment to a family of 12 Puerto Ricans.

How about mini-offices on wheels for phychiatrists who want to go where the neuroses are? They could park them in front of Catholic churches where old-fashioned parishioners might be wandering around looking for someone to talk to.

A used confessional might be useful to the genius who will inevitably create the TV show, "Son of Dating Game." Graduates of the parent show could be called back to confess what they did on their dates. The contestant would sit in the middle. You take it from there.

Obviously, the possibilities are unlimited. Probably the best idea for the individual churches would be a public auction of confessionals. The bidding could get fierce between users who have become addicted and don't want to quit cold turkey. These auctions could be the greatest fund-raisers since bingo.

Death Valley Riches Eluded Pioneers

Riches, water, and food were within reach–had they known it–but only the distant horizon promised paradise for the discoverers of Death Valley.

Dispirited and sometimes delirious, they still heard two voices. The cry of "Gold!" in California lured some of these forty-niners. For others it was "Go West, young man, go West!" Horace Greeley's advice for a new chance at life.

They had never heard of Death Valley, and they stumbled into it with thirst-swollen tongues and shrunken stomachs. They were sick, sunburned, footsore, and ill-equipped for their ordeal.

The burden of their once-cherished possessions scattered back over weeks of wandering the arid desolation that stretched southwest from Salt Lake City.

Beauty and Secrets

To their eyes, Death Valley revealed little of the spectacular beauty and secrets that are portrayed in the National Geographic Society's latest color documentary, "The Great Mojave Desert," scheduled for broadcast February 13 over the CBS Television Network.

"It seemed the most God-forsaken country in the world," wrote one of these first emigrants, "the Creator's dumping ground where He had left the worthless dregs after making a world, and the devil had scraped these together a little..."

Death Valley was already well named by the Shoshone Indians: Tomesha, or the land where the ground is afire. When the wagons arrived, it was Christmas Day, 1849, still several months until the sun began to bake sands, salt flats and rocks.

The pioneers found a spring of warm water, but moved out in the valley where there was little shade and poorer water because they were wary of Indians. They had looted Indian caches of melons and squash.

As greenhorns, however, they missed noticing Indian markers for springs–usually a light-colored stone piled atop a darker one–placed in most areas of the valley. They found several obvious water holes, but thirst always dogged their tracks.

Boyne Writes Requiem For Old Hemlock

(The following editorial was prepared by the Boyne Country publicity department, directed by Zig Bulanda.)

The hemlock tree which gave its name to mid-America's most challenging ski slope – "Hemlock" at Boyne Mountain – is gone.

The renowned evergreen was about 150 years old.

It was a seedling when the United States was bawling for its rights as a baby.

It survived the Civil War, World Wars I and II and the Korean War.

It survived the lumber barons' axes, winter storms and summer lightning.

When Boyne Mountain's ski runs were carved from the wilderness in 1948, the magnificent hemlock was spared – a tribute to Nature and the ages.

But Boyne Country's famous hemlock was murdered this winter by four teenage vandals who ringed the tree's sturdy trunk with an ax.

The youthful assassins did not do it as a protest.

It was done for kicks.

Boyne's famous hemlock was past saving and had to come down.

Everett Kircher, founder of Boyne Country, was on hand when the gigantic landmark thundered earthwardly leaving a "lonesome place against the sky."

"We all have lost an old, good friend," he commented quietly.

A bird's nest was found in the branches.

SNOWDRIFTS climbed the steps and covered the porches of mast Charlevoix homes during the recent blizzard. This is the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duerr on E. Dixon-ave.

C of C Pushes Dock Plan

The chamber feels that expanded yacht harbor facilities will attract more pleasure craft to Charlevoix and bring more business to Charlevoix merchants.

Chamber President George Richardson says any improvements will pay for themselves in revenue from the yacht harbor.

He said such improvements should not be likened to projects from which the city receives no revenue, such as the dockmaster's office and shower building in East Park.

The council, which sold a $700,000 bond issue for the city's proposed sewage plant to the voters last fall, is keeping a tight rein on the city budget in an effort to keep taxes down.

The joint committee will investigate ways of financing yacht improvements with the participation of the state and federal government.

Last year, the chamber suggested that the city relinquish operation of the yacht harbor to the chamber and then loan the chamber $75,000 to construct finger piers into Round Lake. The loan was to be repaid with anticipated increased revenues.

The city turned down the proposal.

Mayor Fochtman reviewed what the city has done in recent years toward improving the harbor, including an engineering plan drawn up in 1965 for the addition of 20 slips north of the present yacht harbor.

He also read a report by engineer James Muschell of United Associates of Cheboygan on the feasibility of floating finger piers.

Muschell said they have many good points, but added that they would have to be removed and stored in the fall because of ice conditions, adding to the cost, and that the height of floating docks is inadequate for larger pleasure craft.

Fochtman noted that the number of boats using the harbor has dropped from the early 1960's, but pointed out that a number of communities in the area which never accommodated pleasure craft are now doing so.

Chamber representatives said they thought Charlevoix had slipped because facilities are not sufficiently adequate to be competitive.

In other business, the council:

–Endorsed a county request for $22,000 in state recreation bond money to build a permanent meeting house at Whiting Park, as proposed by Commissioner Ralph Richardson. Richardson said the endorsement will not jeopardize the city's own request for $10,000 to purchase C&O property adjacent to Depot Beach and buy two lots on Elm-st. for tennis courts. The state already has OK'd Boyne City's request for $10,713 to build a park shelter.

–Named Hanna Street administrator in dealings with the state Highway Commission.

–Learned that revised assessments in the Hampton Village special assessment have been drawn up and will be reviewed by attorney Phil Clancey of Traverse City, who represents Eaton-st. residents who objected to the original levy.

Circuit Judge Stuart Hoffius of Grand Rapids ruled last fall that the assessments should be revised downward, using standard assessing practices rather than a straight front-foot basis.

–Set aside $2,000 toward the purchase of a new fire engine and $1,000 toward the purchase of a new ambulance.

THE C&O RAILROAD opened its tracks north of Charlevoix Sunday afternoon with this snowblower which sent a fountain of powdery snow 25 feet in the air.

3rd Blizzard in 2 Weeks Sends Kids Home Early

The third blizzard in less than two weeks lashed Charlevoix Friday afternoon, dumping an additional three inches of snow on the city.

The new storm swept into the city shortly after noon, dropping visibility to zero at many times.

On the recommendation of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, Charlevoix schools closed early.

Busses picked up students at the Elementary School at 1:30 p.m., the Middle School at 1:45 p.m. and the High School at 1:55 p.m.

But because of the high winds, poor visibility and drifting snow it was almost 5 p.m. before the last of the buses reported back to the garage on May-st.

One bus became stalled on Pop-rd. south of Charlevoix when snow blew onto the engine. The children were picked up and delivered by a second bus dispatched from town, according to High School Principal Vane Smith.

At Boyne City, the storm struck so suddenly and with such severity that all youngsters, even those who lived in town, were kept at the school until their parents picked them up.

Supt. Howard Bray said the school cooks stayed on duty, serving an evening meal to the stranded youngsters.

He said no buses were dispatched, even after the storm abated, because so many roads were impassable, particularly for large school busses.

Parents on the rural routes banded together in automobile caravans to travel to Boyne City and bring their children home.

By 7:30 p.m. all of the students had departed, "although we could have put them up for the night using blankets and bed rolls," Bray said.

He said some children from the country stayed overnight with families in town and he delivered them safely home Saturday morning.

At East Jordan, school let out early bus school officials had some anxious moments wondering about the whereabouts of three busses which were delayed by the storm. They all returned to East Jordan eventually without mishap.

The blizzard followed a severe rainstorm throughout the area Thursday night which glazed roads and made driving hazardous.

However, by Friday morning the temperature had climbed into the high 30's and the ice had started to melt just before the new storm struck.

Jack Fitzgerald, engineer-manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, said the rain helped to reduce drifting. But he said a pick-up in wind velocity will give his crews trouble with the new snow accumulation.

Road Commission workers had a day off Sunday, Fitzgerald said. Many of them had worked 20 days without a break, including several 12 and 14-hour days.

Fitzgerald said there are still some problem spots in the county, particularly the Barnard-rd. area where the snow has been rolled back as far as it will go.

Hess Team 13th in Race

A Skidoo 797 Blizzard snowmobile driven by Ralph Hess of Charlevoix and three other drivers placed 13th in the Soo 500 races at Sault Ste. Marie Saturday.

Hess said the machine led the pack for 43 laps, but was later plagued with piston and cylinder trouble. The machine also broke four skis and two tracks, for a total down-time of one hour and 20 minutes.

In spite of the trouble, the Blizzard completed 431 of the 500 laps.

Driving with Hess were Melvin Kitchen of Elmira, Paul McDowell of Central Lake and Gary Rusnell of Alba.

Post Office Will Close Saturdays

The public finance window at the Charlevoix and Ellsworth post offices will be closed Saturdays, beginning Feb. 27, the post office has announced.

Post offices in both communities had been opened until noon Saturdays.

The closing announcement was made by Rex E. Davis, officer in charge of the Charlevoix Post Office, and Marvin Elzinga, Ellswarth postmaster.

Public lobbies will be open as usual on Saturdays for the convenience of lock-box customers.

However, manned windows, providing stamps, money orders, registry, parcel post, information and other services, will be closed. Stamps may be purchased from self-service vending machines in the lobby.

The joint announcement said that the Saturday closing "is part of a recognition of the change in mailing habits of many postal customers, and is being observed by other post offices in this area."

Mail deliveries will be made as usual on Saturdays and mail will continue to be collected and processed as usual.

The contract postal station at Bay Shore is not affected by the change and will continue to provide its usual services on Saturdays between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Jake W. White

Retired Fisherman Jake White Dies

One of Charlevoix's most colorful citizens, and a story teller without equal, was buried Sunday.

He was Jake W. White, 73, retired commercial fisherman, who died Friday at his home at 203 W. Upright-st. after a long illness.

The Funeral was Sunday afternoon at the Winchester Funeral Home, the Rev. Elmer Faust officiating. Burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

A machinist and commercial fisherman until his retirement in 1968, Mr. White was often critical of the state Department of Natural Resources' fish management program.

He was particularly opposed to the planting of coho salmon in the Great Lakes and found fault with the DNR's textbook approach to fishery management problems.

He was born Sept. 22, 1887, at Alden in Antrim County and moved to East Jordan as a boy.

In August, 1919, he was married to the former Hazel Cross in Charlevoix. The couple made their home in East Jordan briefly before moving to Charlevoix.

He was a member of the United Methodist Church.

He is survived by his widow; two sons, Jack C. and Mark, both of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth (Ruth) Celiner of Charlevoix and Barbara White of Los Angeles, Calif.; six grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; four brothers, Sherman, of Ponta Gorda, Fla.; Edwin and Cecil of Muskegon; and Walter of Erie, Pa.; and a sister, Mrs. Leslie Miles of Ponta Gorda, Fla.

Candidates Give Views on Issues

Charlevoix city voters will go to the polls Monday for primary balloting for the office of mayor, aldermen and other city officers. The polls in the City Hall will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

For the first time in five years, a race has developed for the office of mayor. Incumbent Mayor William Fochtman has been challenged by Andrew (Andy) Essenburg jr. for the office.

In the First Ward, Roger Westenbroek is running unopposed for alderman, but races also have developed in the Second and Third Wards.

In the Second Ward, incumbent Alderman Robert Gill will face Robert Wise jr. and in the Third Ward incumbent Alderman Clifton (Kip) Sundberg has been challenged by George Richardson.

All of the candidates are pinning their hopes for victory on a big turnout at the polls.

A veteran of nine years in city government, Fochtman was appointed First Ward alderman by former Mayor E.D. (Pat) Hawley in 1961. He was elected alderman in 1962 and 1964.

In 1966 he filed for mayor for the first time, defeating his colleague on the council, Dr. Walter Hoffmann. Fochtman has been re-elected mayor every year since without opposition.

Born in Petoskey Feb. 21, 1928, Fochtman moved to Charlevoix with his family when he was one year old. He attended school in Charlevoix, graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1946 and General Motors Tech in Flint in 1951.

He worked for Oldsmobile in Lansing in the early 1950's returning to Charlevoix in 1955 to join the family business, the Charlevoix Oil Corp., of which he is secretary. In addition to petroleum products, the company sells Chevrolets, Buicks and German Opels.

Fochtman and his wife, Ina, have three daughters, Nancy, 18, Pamela, 13, and Deborah, 9.

If re-elected, Fochtman says the first order of city business will completing the proposed waste water treatment plant on the Lake Michigan Shore south of town.

He also is interested in:

–Extending sewage lines to the southeast section of the city.

–Adopting the master plan for Charlevoix drawn up by the Regional Planning Commission.

–Lengthening airport runways to accommodate larger jets.

–Constructing a second water storage tank on the north side.

–Improving yacht harbor facilities, and –Completing park facilities in the Ferry Beach area.

Essenburg was born in Boyne City March 24, 1929, the son of Andrew and Minnie Essenburg. He attended Charlevoix schools, graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1947.

He worked for Fisher Body in Lansing for one year before entering the army. He was in Tokyo, Japan, with the 1st Cavalry Division when the Korean War started and was one of the first GI's moved in to stop the Communist advance.

Essenburg opened his grocery store on Garfield-ave. in 1952 and has been in the grocery business ever since.

He and his wife, the former Barbara Engstrom of Lansing and Ft. Dodge, Iowa, have four children.

Essenburg sees the sewage plant and improved harbor facilities as the major problems facing the city.

He also would attempt to prohibit city officers from doing business with the city and sell no city land to private parties unless it were put up for bids.

He believes the city could use more rental hangars and would like to see the city play a larger role in Chamber of Commerce funding.

On the agenda is a report on county equalization by a representative of the state Tax Commission, a discussion of county budgets and a report by Barry Maguire, secretary of the state Association of Counties, on pending legislation.

"Actions speak louder than words" is an old statement but one which contains much truth.

As Mayor of Charlevoix it has been my pleasure to conduct Council meetings, study meetings, and to officially represent the City at various functions. The record of constructive business accomplished by the Council members speak well of the interest and sincerity of each alderman. As evidence of this, lets look at just the highlights of the past record.

1. An improved street paving program, improved snow plowing and snow removal. Purchase of an additional snow plow and new street sweeper.
2. Expanded recreation program with up to 32 teams and 400 participants in the softball program. As many as 200 enjoying the swimming lesson program. Complete new sprinkler system on the municipal golf course, along with program for snowmobilers to enjoy facility in winter months.
3. Rebuilding many portions of the electric distribution system to better serve industry and the downtown business district.
4. Purchase of new fire equipment and tanker truck to better serve the City and surrounding area.
5. Provided modern ambulance service for the community in cooperation with the adjoining townships.
6. Full cooperation with the Corp of Engineers for improvements to the Pine River channel.
7. Accelerated effort to combat pollution of Round Lake with construction of new Harbor building, boaters pump-out station, new toilet facilities at Ferry avenue beach, climaxed by the plans for complete new tertiary wastewater treatment plant.
8. Approval of new subdivisions in effort to provide additional housing which is greatly needed.
9. Complete testing of meters in the City electric system.
10. Procurement of land in cooperation with Medusa Cement Co. for construction of new wastewater treatment plant.
11. Improved street lighting program.
12. Purchase of Baptist church property for additional off-street parking.
13. Installation of interceptor sewer on May street enabling further extensions in the future to better serve that growing part of the community.
14. Applied for recreational monies from the State to enable additional purchase of waterfront for recreational use, and property needed for tennis courts if funds are available to build.
15. Compare our progress with other cities. Do you realize these accomplishments have caused no increase in the City tax rate which is presently ½ the rate of other cities in the county.

HOW ABOUT THE FUTURE?

The City of Charlevoix will continue to face new problems and projects as we continue to grow. As an example, let us point out just a few:

1. Opening of bids on the new wastewater treatment plantment in February.
2. Consideration of extension of the runway at the new airport enabling safer landings of small jet aircraft.
3. Review of the docks and harbor facilities.
4. Capitol improvements to the electric distribution system.
5. Further sewer extensions in the southeast area of the City.
6. Periodic review of our water system with engineering plans calling for a new water storage tank on the north side of the City.
7. Review of the Master Plan developed by the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission.
8. Adoption of our budget for the ensuing year after public hearing later this spring, based on demands the City must face and programs the people wish to be adopted.

I am sincerely interested in continuing to serve the Citizens of Charlevoix and your Mayor. Your vote will help insure a continuation of constructive, responsible leadership leadership which has been demonstrated by past accomplishments.

Sincerely,
Bill Fochtman
Mayor of Charlevoix

Mrs. Robert Ouderkirk has returned home after visiting her daughter in Springfield, Mo. Enroute, driving with her niece from Petoskey, they were run into from behind by a small truck which rolled them over in the ditch an completely demolished their car, but they escaped with minor injuries. They got to Chicago by plane and to Grand Rapids by train and to Petoskey by bus and again home I think each one must have had a bright shining light over them to survive such a disasterous experience.

The Snowmobiles which are severely criticized by many really came to the front during our past blizzard helping many by delivering much needed groceries and getting some to the hospital for emergency treatment. But in either ways they are destroying the peaceful tranquility of our woods and are a hazard to the hibernating animals in the woods. Who would have predicted a few years ago that there would be 200,000 to 400,000 snowmobiles in Michigan in 1970 when there were only 8,000 in the whole United States in 1964. So however we feel about them it is up to the driver on how they are accepted by the public.

Mark Saunders received word of the death of Melvyn Jones a former resident in our community Jan. 18 at the family home in Pontiac. Their community friends and old neighbors extend their sympathy to his family.

Mark Cross has returned from his work in Port Huron and is spending the winter with Mrs. Cross in their home on Sweet-Brier-ln.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Bennett entertained a group of friends Saturday evening to celebrate their wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Currier and family of Birmingham, Mich., were guests this past weekend of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross.

Regardless of the weather the fisherman get out each day and get some of the nice perch that are biting best in the forenoon.

We extend birthday greetings Feb. 9 to Lorena Beene our neighbor who is shut in this winter.

Beaver Island

Mr. and Mrs. George Miller have been at their home here for almost two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wagner spent several days in Lake City visiting relatives.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McDonough were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Quartermaine and family of Battle Creek.

Jan. 21 Mr. and Mrs. "Bussy" Joe LaFreniere entertained about 40 school children at their home with barbecued hot dogs, pop and hot chocolate.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schenodgle went to Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey for medical treatment.

Donald Cole went to the mainland for a few days.

Mrs. Emil Pischner from Charlevoix is visiting her sister, Mrs. Grace Cole, and other relatives.

Archie Minor returned home Feb. 3 after sailing on the S.S. Olds since March 26, 1970.

Sheriff's Car Storm Victim

A Charlevoix County sheriff's patrol car was one of the victims of Friday's blizzard.

The car, driven by Deputy Lyle Anthony, had stopped to assist a motorist who had collided with a snowbank when it was struck from the rear by a car driven by Charles Mitchell, 211 W. Hurlbut-st., Charlevoix.

The accident occurred during a blinding snowstorm with zero visibility. All of the patrol car's light and "gum ball" were turned on.

Damage to the patrol car was estimated at $550. Mitchell was not ticketed.

Deputy Byron Stockwell said a number of "fender benders" were reported last week because of the poor driving conditions but that no one was injured.

2 From City Attend Lutheran Retreat

Miss Cindy Funk and Pastor Duane E. Imig of Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix attended a retreat at Colombiere College, Clarkston, Mich. The retreat began at 9 p.m. Thursday evening Feb. 4 and extended through Saturday afternoon Feb. 6.

Miss Funk and Pastor Imig were representing the Traverse Bay Circuit of the Michigan District of the Lutheran Church.

The Traverse Bay Circuit includes congregations in Beulah, the Leelanau peninsula, Traverse City, Petoskey, Boyne City, Mancelona, and Charlevoix.

The retreat was sponsored by the youth committee of the Michigan district of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. Representatives were from the 32 circuits comprising the Michigan District. Each circuit has a pastor who acts as youth representative.

Young people were invited to participate to explain the needs and concerns of youth and to help explain and promote youth ministry among other young people.

Miss Funk was given the opportunity to share her experiences at a retreat that was held last fall for Lutheran youth in the circuit. She explained the activity of the "Spirit Images" which presented the program at the fall retreat held in Traverse city. She encouraged the circuits to use this group for retreats in their area.

Miss Funk and Pastor Imig returned Saturday evening filled with ideas that they shared with the youth of the circuit at a toboggan party on Sunday afternoon in Boyne City.

See-Through Ship Models Made of Brass and Wire

A young Coast Guard officer whose brass and wire ship models have generated wide interest among Charlevoix art patrons during the past year has left frigid northern Michigan for warmer climes.

He is Lt. J G Richard (Dick) Hubbard who has been operations officer and navigator aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Sundew for the past 18 months.

Hubbard left Friday for Mobile, Ala., where he will become operations officer for a shore base serving the Gulf area off Alabama and Florida.

Hubbard, who just returned from three weeks of ice-breaking duty in the Straits of Mackinac, is looking forward to the change of scenery – and climate.

It was just one year ago, during a similar ice-breaking mission to the Straits, that Hubbard became interested in brass and wire us a medium for ship model construction.

"I had carved a ship's hull of wood but had nothing to use for rigging. Another fellow on the ship was working with stiff wire, so I borrowed some but found there was no way to attach it to the wood. Then I hit upon the idea of using brass for the hull instead of wood and soldering the connections," Hubbard says.

Hubbard, who has lived in and around boats all his life, has no trouble coming up with designs.

"I use my imagination, or work from photos or drawings," he says.

Hubbard's see-through ship models have gone over big with art patrons who appreciate things nautical. Mounted on blocks of shipwreck lumber, they make excellent mantle pieces or as decoration in rooms with a sea decor.

Sometimes Hubbard receives special orders from a customer who wants a model of a particular type of vessel.

Sold through gift shops, single models have brought as much as $55, with some multiple orders running over $100.

Hubbard says he can construct a small boat in from one and one-half to two hours. Larger models sometimes take two or three days.

A native of Manistee, Hubbard attended school in Ludington, graduating from Ludington High School in 1964. He attended Kalamazoo College for two years, transferring to the University of Miami. Three weeks after receiving his B.A. degree in geography, Hubbard enlisted in the Coast Guard.

He took his boot training at Cape May, N.J., and served aboard the cutter Androscoggin, stationed at Miami Beach, Fla., before attending Officer Candidate School at Yorktown, Va.

He was assigned to the Sundew following his graduation from OCS June 6, 1969.

Mineral Output Dips, But Values Climb

Despite a general downturn in output, Michigan's mineral production values rose to a new high of $686.3 million in 1970, according to a preliminary estimate of the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

Last year's total, based on production figures supplied by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, tops the previous record of 1969 by about $18 million. The increase reflects generally higher unit prices for minerals in 1970 as this state followed last year's national slowdown in industrial output and construction.

On the Michigan scene last year, production values climbed among copper, natural salines, natural gas, salt, and stone to more than offset declines in cement, iron ore, and oil.

Copper values showed the biggest gain as they climbed $10 million over 1969 to total $81.5 million. Natural salines last year showed nearly a $8.1 million increase over 1969, while salt payloads were up by about $2.7 million. Michigan's stone production for 1970 was also on the upside–by some $2.4 million.

Iron ore remained well ahead as the value leader of Michigan's mineral industry with a figure af $168 million last year. Cement production gave the state's mineral economy a $102.4 million short in the arm to rank No. 2 on the value list in 1970.

Tri-County Nurses Plan Meet Feb. 11

The Northern Tri-County District Nurses Assn. will hold its monthly meeting at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey, Michigan, in the doctor's dining room at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 11, 1971.

Phillip E. Hill, M.D., cardiologist at Burns Clinic in Petoskey, will speak on the subject "care of the patient with a Pacemaker".

This is another program in the series of worthwhile discussions, that is really relevant to all R.N.'s regardless of their area of employment, according to Blanche Hastings R.N., a member of the publicity committee.

All R.N.'s in the area are encouraged to attend.

Church Schedules Dialogues

Rev. Robert H. Moore, D.D., retired, interim pastor at the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix, has announced a series of dialogue sermons on various books of the Bible, to be held at the church every Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

At the same time the pastor will answer questions placed in the church "Question Box" the previous week.

The speaker is the author of "Theology for Laymen," a study series adaptable for church groups or individual home study.

The regular morning worship service is at 11 a.m. The choir is directed by Mrs. Berl Williams with C.H. Folmsbee at the organ.

The newly-elected church school leaders and teachers welcome new and former students at 10 a.m.

The junior choir rehearses at 5:30 p.m. Wednesdays at the church. Parents are urged to bring their children for this special musical training.

The adult choir meets Thursday after the Rapport Hour, which starts at 7 p.m.

Members of the Ella Usher Circle are reminded that the next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Evva Smith Feb. 3 in the evening. Miss May Smith will lead devotions.

The congregation will worship at the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Sunday evening, Feb. 7. Larry Watkins is making arrangements.

Library Notes

With February and the weight of mid-winter bearing down, thoughts turn wistfully to travel. And for the rocking chair vacationers, the Library suggests a list of new titles with varied appeal for different tastes.

—"Pakistan" by Richard V. Weekes tells of the birth and growth of a Muslim nation which is still struggling for survival. Weekes discusses the rise of Pakistan's military dictatorship, and he devotes an entire chapter to the explosive Kashmiri dispute with India. There are fine photographs showing the spacious gardens, the mosques, the tribesmen and the colorful dancers of West Pakistan.

"Brussels" by K.M. Willcox is a slim, delightful little book about the "city in the form of a heart" as it is called. Brussels has recently found itself the center of a system of great Continental traffic arteries, so its comparison to a heart once again has historical validity. In this book, also, there are lovely photographs to tempt the stay-at-home traveler.

"Knapsacking Abroad" is a how-to-do-it primer on fancy-free ways to roam the world. According to the authors Herb and Judy Klinger, it is cheaper to buckle on a pack than it is to stay at home. They give full instructions on what to wear, what to take with you, how to stretch food supplies and how to stay safe and keep fit. They discuss the rules of the road and facts on budget and transportation, customs and immigration formalities and the business of taking pictures, among countless other details. This charming little book will appeal even to readers who have no intention whatever of knapsacking abroad.

"The Chinese Looking Glass" by Dennis Bloodworth is the most illuminating book which has yet been written on China and her enigmatic people. It is not a scholarly, difficult-to-read book. The author, for twelve years, was Far Eastern correspondent for The Observer of London, and he has succeeded in praviding the average reader with a reliable guide to the history, development and present situation of the Chinese. The purpose of Bloodworth's book is to explain just what makes China tick. It is made especially entertaining by the author's personal experiences with the Chinese, by discussions of food and drink, gambling, courtesans, secret societies, beggars guilds and Red Guards. Bloodworth lives in Singapore with his Chinese wife and three adopted Chinese sons. Because of his marriage and his mastery of the Chinese language, he can travel in Red China.

Three other new travel books deserve attention. "Islam" by Fazlur is an interpretative and informative work which will be of interest to many readers in the Western World.

"Slowly Down the Ganges," by Eric Newby is the story of a 1,200-mile journey made by two Europeans down the Ganges, the holy river of India. The journey was a richly varied one, made mostly by boat–all sorts of boats–but also partly by rail, bus and bullock-cart. They met all kinds of people and stayed in all kinds of places. It is a remarkable travel book. Serious, entertaining, and colorfully descriptive.

"The Far Pacific Travel Guide" by John C. Caldwell is a new, up-to-the-minute complete travel guide to Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Southeast Asia, the Philippines, with highlights of India, Nepal, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand, Fuji and Tahiti, written by a man uniquely qualified through long residence, countless trips, and five years of personally conducting tour parties in the Orient.

Six Cited By MSU

Six students from Charlevoix County made the honors list at Michigan State University during the fall term.

The group includes Dana E. and Denis E. Arvilla, 108 Auld-st., Charlevoix, who received all A's. The Arvillas are juniors, studying biological science.

Others on the list were Hoyce A. Hosmer, of Charlevoix, a senior studying elementary and special education; Carl M. Novak, a freshman from Charlevoix who has not yet selected his field of study; Robert L. Omland of East Jordan, a freshman studying agricultural technology; and Constance J. Moll, of Boyne City, a sophomore studying pre-veterinary medicine.

A total of 4,107 students were on the list for the fall term. To make the list, a student must have a grade average of B-plus or better.

what's a funny place for a phone?

That depends a lot on your sense of humor. If making tracks across a clean carpet to a telephone leaves your wife a little less than happy, then perhaps there's nothing so funny about an extension telephone in the garage or workshop.

Extension telephones make sense. They save time by letting you use a telephone wherever you are.

Call your Michigan Bell Business Office or ask your telephone man. For as little as ninety-five cents a month (plus tax) you can put an extension in any funny old place you'd like.

★ ★ VOTE FOR ANDY ★ ★

★ FOR MAYOR ★

Do you want a man who can be counted on to stand up and speak for ALL of the people, all of the time!

Do you want a chance to get away from the "Wishy-Washy" decision making of the past!

VOTE FOR ANDY ESSENBURG FOR MAYOR.

For the first time in 19 years you have the chance to vote for a man and in return receive "Clear-Cut" decisions. It will be either black or white! No Gray areas in between!

I WANT TO BE YOUR MAYOR!

The issues are clear:

1 – Do you want a new City Attorney? . . . or don't you? People have indicated that they are not happy with high legal fees and the manner in which the office has conducted it's affairs. Charlevoix has received some very unfavorable publicity in a downstate magazine which discussed the activities of this office. It is a real black-eye for our city. If elected I promise that Charlevoix will have a new City Attorney, and under no conditions would I allow the City Attorney to "set" policy . . he would only interpert for the mayor and the council . . . .

2 – Charlevoix needs a police chief. I would make an appointment on merit and ability (not just to fulfill a political obligation).

3 – Isn't it amusing that all of a sudden the city has allocated $1000 towards the purchase of a new ambulance? Also, isn't it amusing that the city has now decided that we should have a new police chief?

I have been sounding off on both of these issues! Now it looks like the city will finally take some action, (coincidentially, just before election time and after they have been put under the gun!).

Maybe if I could "harp" some more about the deteriorating condition of our sidewalks, curbs, and streets (just before election) we could get even more action! Or, does the city want to deny that these are problem areas?

4 – Will you be content on July 1, 1971, when your taxes will have increased over 40 percent? This is probably the largest increase in this city's history. The present administration has increased the tax levy from 8 mills to 14 mills. HOW MUCH MORE CAN YOU AFFORD ? ? ? ? ?

NOW IS THE TIME FOR A CHANGE!

In addition the State will be here to re-assess Charlevoix this Spring and based on the just completed re-assessment in Otsego Co. (Gaylord) your taxes could go even higher. In Gaylord they raised the property values by about 45 percent! This same increase, which could happen here, will raise your taxes sky high. . . . HOW MUCH MORE CAN YOU AFFORD ? ? ? ? ?

I WANT TO STAND UP AND REPRESENT
YOU AS YOUR NEXT MAYOR

Be sure to vote for Andy Essenburg for mayor on February 15, 1971, and remember if elected I will not be selling merchandise to the city.

Tax Office Is Ready to Lend Hand

Taxpayers in the Petoskey area will be able to obtain assistance with their 1970 Federal income tax returns on specifically designated days again this year, according to Walter Baker, local district director's representative for the Internal Revenue Service.

In announcing the tax assistance days, Baker pointed out that Internal Revenue does not actually prepare returns for taxpayers, but rather provides whatever answers, instructions or information individuals need to prepare their own returns.

Baker also discussed under what circumstances the IRS will compute the tax for individuals in accord with a change in procedures introduced this year.

Taxpayers must fill in specified portions of their return if they wish to have IRS compute the tax. The information required is explained in the Form 1040 instruction booklet. These returns should then be sent to the Internal Revenue Service Center, Cincinnati, Ohio, 45298 where the tax will be computed.

Internal Revenue personnel will be available from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Petoskey IRS office on Mondays, except February 15, during the filing season.

Taxpayers may either visit the office or phone in their inquiries during office hours. Mr. Baker suggested that area residents make note of this information for future reference.

Catholic Church to Keep Confessions

(The following article was submitted to the Courier by Henry L. Leveque, 201 Meech-st, in answer to Jim Fitzgerald's column in last week's Courier relative to confessions in the Catholic Church. It appeared in the Jan. 28 issue of the Catholic Church newspaper, The Wanderer. The story was headlined: "Rule on Private Confession Will Not Change.")

A recent news report in the secular press that Pope Paul had asked the world's bishops to study the possibility of dropping the obligation of Catholics for private confession, except for a certain few "grave" sins, caused surprise in the Vatican congregations that would be involved.

A major news agency had reported from Rome that the Vatican Congregation for the Discipline of the Sacraments recently sent to all bishops for comments a document that suggested letting a prayer of general confession at Mass take the place of individual private confession.

Sources in both that Congregation and in the Apostolic Penitentiary said their offices did not prepare such a document, although a review of the practice of general absolution is being made.

One official in the Congregation was reported as saying:

"The early stories placed the emphasis on the wrong thing. These reports were negative and led the reader to believe that the Church was considering doing away with confession.

"Actually this is not the case. Even if given general absolution under Church rules, when you have committed a mortal or grave sin, you will always be obliged to confess it to a priest at your earliest possible chance."

"Anyway, the Church law on confession has been that you are obliged to confess only mortal sins," one theologian explained. "You are asked and urged by the Church to make use of confession even if you haven't committed a mortal sin because confession is a sacrament – Penance – and there is a grace to be gained by availing yourself of it."

One congregation member said early reports emphasizing that general absolution would be done lawfully for all except a few of the most grave sins was erroneous.

"If a person believed this and if the Church adopted this attitude," he said, "every time you saw someone go to confession before a priest you would assume that he or she had just set fire to an orphanage or shoved his aged great grandmother off a roof edge."

Vatican officials were also critical of published reports that indicated the Church was planning to narrow considerably the definition of mortal sin. "The Church cannot do a thing like this," said one official. "The mortal sin will remain mortal sin. And it will always be a matter for confessions."

What is being considered by Pope Paul, then–according to the Vatican Press Office–is a request to apply "in special well-defined cases" an instruction of the Sacred Penitentiary of March 25th, 1944 concerning sacramental absolution to be imparted collectively to many persons.

This instruction extended a precedent of World War I, when the Catholic Church allowed what is called "general absolution" – without previous individual confession of sins – for such emergency cases as soldiers on dangerous missions, civilians in time of aerial bombardments, or prisoners of war in camps where there were no or few priests.

The Vatican's press officer, Federico Alessandrini, told newsmen that many bishops in "far-flung missionary posts" have asked the Pope to allow them to apply the 1944 instruction in remote areas where priests were scarce and overworked.

If the bishops' request is granted, Catholic penitents will be absolved of their sins, if they have the proper dispositions of contrition and resolve to amend.

Nevertheless, according to traditional Catholic teaching, such penitents will be obliged individually to confess any serious, or mortal, sins at a later date, if it is possible.

John Michael Answers Campaign Charges

To the Editor:

The recent political campaign attacks regarding the office of the city attorney have been somewhat flattering as the office does not normally receive such attention.

Naively, perhaps, both the council and myself were under the impression that the Hampton Village special assessment district matter had been resolved long ago as complete review and reporting has been had in council meetings, all of which appeared in the newspaper, but apparently such is not the case.

A complete review of the legality and propriety of both the actions of the council and myself as city attorney in this special assessment was had by the office of the attorney general of the state of Michigan and the circuit court at the insistance of those individuals who were included in the district. These reviews were preceded by no less than 25 complaints from these same people to everyone from the prosecuting attorney to the governor of the state.

As a result of this furor and the investigations and trial which followed, all of the allegations of the complaining parties were found to be without any merit whatsoever, and payment of a special assessment by the people in the district stands approved.

I am at a complete loss for an explanation of the "Hamilton Boatyard-Alice-st. legal hassel", as the new candidate for mayor has neglected to indicate to what he specifically objects. This case is currently sending the court and I am therefore prohibited from review the same in depth, so it can only be indicated that the city was sued, and it was the unanimous judgement of the council to defend such litigation in order to protect the rights of the public in and to platted streets. Certainly publicly owned real estate should not be given away when the laws of the state do not support or warrant such action.

Perhaps these matters would not have become a political football if the new candidate for mayor had attended any council meetings in the past five years or had exhibited any interest whatsoever in municipal affairs in the past. Enough said.

New Blood vs Proven Progress: It's Up to You

One of the most interesting city elections in years is on tap for next Monday, Feb. 15.

The hottest contest on the ballot is the campaign being waged by groceryman Andy Essenburg to unseat Mayor William Fochtman, who is running for his sixth term.

Essenburg feels it is time for new blood in the city hall and he is ready to clean house if elected.

He says the first thing he'll do if he wins is fire city attorney John Michael and draw up an ordinance prohibiting elected city officials from doing business with the city, as has been the practice in Charlevoix for years on end.

Mr. Essenburg is conducting an energetic door-to-door campaign, and hopes to cover the entire city before election day.

Mayor Fochtman, on the other hand, is pinning his hopes on the long years of dedicated service he already has given the city as alderman and mayor.

Close observers of city government admit that few chief executives have devoted so much time and effort to the city as Mayor Fochtman. And few have been as thorough and conscientious in the discharge of their duties.

The hours Mayor Fochtman has spent on plans for the proposed waste water treatment plant alone are enough to stagger the imagination.

Far be it from the Courier in this critical election to attempt to influence votes one way or the other.

We know Mayor Fochtman has done a fine job for Charlevoix. But for all we know, Mr. Essenburg might do an equally fine job if elected.

Furthermore, we suspect that most Charlevoixans already have made up their minds on how they will vote next Monday. If they think it is time for a change, they will vote for Mr. Essenburg. If they think Charlevoix has made steady, sensible progress during the last five years, they will vote for Mayor Fochtman.

We do know, however, that Charlevoix is fortunate to have a mayoral race on the ballot for the first time in five years. No candidate really enjoys running unopposed year after year.

Contests also have developed in the Second and Third Wards, which should bring out a record vote. In the Second Ward, Robert Wise jr. is challenging incumbent Alderman Robert Gill. In the Third Ward, George Richardson has filed for the council seat presently held by Alderman Clifton Sundberg. In the First Ward, Alderman Roger Westenbroek is running unopposed.

The outcome of all the contests, of course, depends on you, the voter. All the candidates are hoping for a big turnout at the polls as evidence that the people of Charlevoix support their city government.

Winter Demands Cautious Driving

Now that winter has arrived in full force with high snowbanks along every roadway in northern Michigan, motorists should take extra safety precautions.

From the driver's seat of today's low-slung automobiles, it is virtually impossible to see other vehicles approaching an intersection over a six-foot wall of snow.

A small flag attached to the top of your auto antenna is a good way to inform other drivers that you and your car are on the other side of the bank.

It also makes good sense to drive with extra caution when so many side roads and city streets are snow covered and slippery. Give yourself plenty of time to stop when approaching busy thoroughfares because it isn't much fun to skid into the path of oncoming traffic.

Drivers should also keep a wary eye out for kids this time of year.

The snow has been far too heavy for the city's sidewalk plow and most sidewalks in residential areas are virtually impassible. As a result, youngsters must walk in the street to reach school or their school bus stop.

So keep a sharp eye out for kids, particularly just before school starts in the morning and after classes let out in the afternoon, remembering our plowed streets must serve both automobiles and pedestrians this time of year.

Road Commission Did Top Notch Job

Although few branches of county government catch more gaff than the road commission, the Courier takes its hat off to Jack Fitzgerald, engineer-manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, and his crew of 30 men who did a Herculean job of snow removal during the recent blizzard.

Of course, there are people who will disagree. Many families were snowbound for as long as a week, and tempers are apt to get ruffled when the county plows fail to appear for days on end.

But Charlevoix County covers a vast area and the snow and high winds were among the worst on record.

There simply had to be people who got plowed out last -- or were forced to resort to private snow removal companies to have their roads opened.

To the credit of the Road Commission, men and trucks were on the job 24-hours a day until all the roads were open. And virtually every piece of snow removal equipment on hand was in service most of the time.

You just can't ask much more than that.

Furthermore, it must be remembered that the county crew kept going during the worst of the blizzard, even after state snow removal equipment was called in because of zero visibility.

We commiserate with the people who were socked in by the blizzard longer than they thought they should be.

But what puzzles us is how Fitzgerald and his men got the mess cleaned up as quickly as they did.

Reds Still Cruel, Friske Maintains

Mr. Bob Clock
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Mich.

Dear Editor:

In allowing a Canadian television team to interview two American airmen held prisoner in North Vietnam, the Hanoi regime tried to present the captives as opponents of America's Vietnam policy. The communists also sought to give the impression that the prisoners of war are well treated. As usual, Hanoi was engaged in trickery.

Americans trotted out for questioning by Western newsmen aren't free to express their real feelings. If they report the brutal and degrading treatment to which they are subjected, they or their fellow prisoners may be tortured or killed. Even if the men being interviewed don't fear for themselves, they aren't likely to say anything that will endanger their comrades.

If the television networks want to present an accurate account of life inside of North Vietnamese prison, they can interview the handful of Americans who have been released as an international political gesture. One of these former prisoners of war is Lt. Col. Norris M. Overly, USAF, who was shot down over North Vietnam in 1967 and spent five months in communist captivity.

In a recent talk at the annual Air Force Association meeting, Col. Overly told how he was wired to a 50-gallon oil drum and transported across the country. Women, children and old people, he reported, "would pick up rocks and come right up to you and bash you in the face."

Col. Overly was confined for a time in a little hut divided into 12 bamboo cells. He was placed in one of these cells, lying on his stomach with his feet in wooden stocks. His arms were tied behind him with wet ropes. He was forced to stay in this position for 29 days.

Arriving at the main POW prison in Hanoi, Col. Overly was placed in a tiny cell. Many of the cells have leg irons on the bed boards. The prison routine is arranged in such a way that the prisoners don't see each other and have no way of buttressing their morale by group presence. During the day, the prisoners are exposed to endless propaganda broadcasts. "This is what our men have been going through," Col. Overly said, "some for as long as six years."

While American New Left spokesmen regularly visit Hanoi and report the prisoners are being treated well, Col. Overly described the true conditions. "I think we can safely say," he concluded, "that the North Vietnamese will go down in history as the most inhumane and cruel enemy we have ever fought because of the sheer number of years they are making so many of our men suffer."

I can still recall the tortures performed by the Nazis before and during World War II. Millions of refugees ran from the pursuing Bolshevik armies just before the end of World War II, many of which were overrun, raped, murdered or tortured to death. There is proof of mothers drowning their children in water buckets, and others jumping into rivers with their babies in their arms to drown together to escape torture by these brutal hordes.

Who says the Communists have changed or mellowed? To allow this brutal regime to extend its will over additional millions of people would be an unconscionable act.

Sincerely,
Richard Friske

Winter Deepens

By Marian Broussard

We had not thought ourselves in jeopardy till now,
As always, with the season's drawing-in,
We savor house-warm pleasures
And read of tribulations not our own
With faint concern.

Beyond storm darkened windows
The booming winds
Loft skeins of bitter snow,
Shawling the nestled houses.

Snaking drifts
Choke every path of man:
Only the burgeoning snowmobile
Ignores the sign of winter
Suddenly grown savage.

Now, with alarm,
We see new danger in the portent storm,
A "Fimbul-winter"–vengeance of old gods
Bestowed indifferently,
Spawned of our contempt.

What must we offer now,
As our cold planet turns in the cold void
To win the promise
Of just one more spring?

Fooling the Scales

One of the sneakiest tricks I have picked up since becoming a Weight Watcher is learning to dress like one.

Checking with some of my associates in the Charlevoix chapter of Weight Watchers International, I have discovered that we all have acquired the same tricks independently of each other.

The whole idea is to wear the very lightest clothes we can find to the weekly weight-in, so that even if we have had a bad week, succumbing to a cough drop or a Lorna Doone, we can still show some loss on the scales.

In summer, of course, it would be simple to pass off such chicanery in the name of comfort.

But with the temperature hovering around zero and the snow waist deep on the level, we are fooling no one but ourselves–and the scales.

Mrs. Bill Brady, for example, would never dream of wearing a sheer, sleeveless blouse on the coldest night of the year.

But that's what she wore to Weight Watchers the other evening, pretending that is what she always wears to a blizzard.

Some women invariably show up late because they left all their jewelry, including their wrist watches, at home on the dresser. A wrist watch, believe it or not, weighs between an ounce and an ounce and a half.

And in Weight Watchers, the ounces count as much as the pounds.

For men, the task is a little more difficult, male clothes being more or less standardized, but there are certain tricks even a man can do to fool the scales.

–Turn up the thermostat, fill the bathtub with scalding water and soak in it for at least a half hour just before the weighing in ceremony. It is surprising how much weight you can lose through perspiration.

–Always shave before meetings with a new blade. Whiskers don't weight much, but every little bit helps.

–By the same token, if you need a haircut, get one the day of the weigh-in. Hair weighs more than you think.

–When you dress, select only your oldest, most threadbare garments. If your shirt is missing a few buttons, who cares? There's no point in weighing a lot of buttons if you don't have to.

–Never, I repeat, never, wear an undershirt to a weigh-in, regardless of how cold it is outside. T-shirts can weigh like crazy, particularly if they're new. Other under garments are optional.

–Even though your wife abjects, wear your oldest socks, even if there are holes in them, keeping in mind that holes weigh less than darning cotton.

--Remove all jewelry, including wedding rings, watches and tie clips. Actually, the tie-clip shouldn't be necessary in any event, since only a fool would jeopardize his loss record by wearing a tie to a weigh-in.

–Clip your finger nails and toenails to the quick. Again, nail clippings don't weight all that much, but if you've had a beer or two during the week, you need all the help you can get.

–If your group meets in the evening, never eat dinner before attending the meeting. A single "legal" Weight Watchers' meal can throw you off more than a pound.

–If you have a friend with the stomach flu, arrange to spend as much time with him as possible the day before the weigh-in. An empty stomach shows up very nicely on the scales.

–Make sure your pockets are empty when you hop on the scales. Wallets, checkbooks, loose coins, jack knives, ball point pens and scraps of note paper have no business being on the scales with you. It is pointless to spend the next seven days with a guilty conscience just because you were loaded down like a pack muel when you weighed in.

–If all else fails, lay off the cough drops, beer and the Lorna Doones. Who needs 'em?

If it Fitz

Sorry Love Story

Some day when I weary of being an editor and a smartie columnist, I will retire to a big-city penthouse from where I shall drop upon an admiring world the most erudite critiques of movies, plays and books ever written, each one containing multitudes of sentences even longer than this, God help us all.

By way of practice, the subject for today will be Love Story, the soggy movie that became a soggier novel, thus proving that Kleenex can float upstream. Usually, the book comes before the movie. But Erich Segal, the Harvard professor, who wrote both, reversed the procedure for reasons you can hear him explain on the Johnny Carson show most any night.

Not to be outdone, I saw Love Story before I read it. The most surprising thing was to discover it took longer to watch the movie than it did to read the book. I finished the book in an hour. And I don't think it took Segal much longer than that to write it.

That's right, I think it's a lousy book. The movie was entertaining enough, because it featured some attractive people. But the book reads as if it were written by a high school sophomore on the back of his lunchbag as he rode to school on the bus. Yes, I know Love Story has led the best seller list for months and countless TV personalities have praised it and Segal is making enough money to buy Harvard and move it to Hollywood.

But it's still a "banal book " to quote from the prestigious National Book Committee which refused to consider Love Story for this year's fiction award no matter how many book sellers nominated it. This was an admirable action for which I send three hoorays to the committee members although they may hesitate to accept congratulations from a guy who always thought Saul Bellow was a glassblower's tool.

Love Story, in case you've been hiding out in a museum, is the tale of a rich young man who gives up the family fortune for the love of a beautiful but Italian girl who swears a lot and dies soon after the wedding. The movie and the book are exactly alike except for the ending.

As the book closes, the hero forgives his father for being Establishment and they weep in each other's arms. But in the last scene of the movie, the hero rejects his father and goes off to sit in the snow without his coat.

It's easy to explain why the movie is rougher on Old Dad. It is currently fashionable for film heroes to put down their elders. If Wallace Beery were alive today, Jackie Coogan would spit in his eye. The idea is to make the young people happy because they buy most of the movie tickets. Old people don't have time for movies because they're too busy counting their money and violating the civil rights of their children.

Anyway, the theme of Love Story is the same in book and movie: If you love someone you never have to tell them you're sorry, no matter what you did.

Erich Segal is a bachelor.

Candidates Forgetting City's Kids

To the People of Charlevoix:

It's election time again and the battle for mayor and other offices of out city is on. It's customary at this time to begin their campaign promises–something like taxes, legal suits, maybe the harbor – a hundred different promises. But among that hundred has there ever been a promise where the candidates have stood firm on doing something positive for the youth of our fair city? Shouldn't this be a definite part of their campaign? Why has this very important point been left out?

Do the people and candidates feel the youth are a very minor point, or maybe they feel they'd rather spend their tax dollars on a million-dollar jail instead of a youth center? Why are some people so quick to yell when kids roam the streets or the park; and yet fail to want to get involved in a solid youth program.

Oh, yeah, I know, it's been tried before, but have you ever stopped to realize at one time you were the youth of Charlevoix, wishing the people would help you out?

Breakthrough, our Christian coffee shop and youth center, which is a legal, non-profit corporation, has tried to help bring about a solution to our youth problem. We believe we stand a very good chance at succeeding where others have failed. But to be quite frank, we can't, nobody can, if we don't get more moral support from nearly everyone in Charlevoix. We have opened our shop and have had terrific response from the youth. Why let history repeat itself in our fair city? Let's all, mayor, candidates as well as all the people of Charlevoix get behind Breakthrough and make it succeed.

We're located on Park-ave. In the Hogan building. Stop in, look us over and make comments, good or bad. See what it is all about. You're all welcome! Our mailing address is P.O. Box 433, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Thank you, and a special thank-you to the people who have helped us get as far as we have.

Washington's Birthday Falls on Three Days

George Washington could celebrate three birthday parties this year.

In life, Washington usually ignored his birthday. But in 1971 he could try blowing out 239 candles on:

-Feb. 11, the date of his birth according to the old Julian calendar used in the Colonies at the time.

-Feb. 22, the date according to the calendar that Mother England–and most of her colonies–switched to in 1752. The new calendar, declared by Pope Gregory XIII, leapfrogged 11 days.

-Feb. 15, the date for this year–voted by Congress.

From now on, the lawmakers have decreed, Washington's birthday will be observed on the third Monday in February. The federal law also assures four other new three-day weekends, the National Geographic Society says.

Always on Monday

Memorial day hereafter will be the last Monday of May, Columbus Day the second Monday of October, Veterans Day the fourth Monday of October, and, following long tradition, Labor Day the first Monday of September.

Most of the states already have adopted the always-on-Monday holiday calendars. The Fourth of July, Christmas, and Thanksgiving--the fourth Thursday in November – will stay where they are.

George Washington was born in 1732 about 10 o'clock on a Virginia midwinter morning at Wakefield, the family home near the Potomac and about 50 miles south of today's Capital.

He grew up at a time when people customarily celebrated not their own birthdays, but those of the ruling monarch. The young George never even mentioned his birthday in his diary.

His first birthday party came in 1778 when his bedraggled Continental army was bogged down in cold and misery at Valley Forge. Martha Washington, who had joined her husband at headquarters, arranged a simple dinner for a few friends.

"Wicket and Rounders"

The Fourth Continental Artillery Regiment bandsmen serenaded the party while guests played "wickets and raunders" in the parlor.

Perhaps the first official tribute paid Washington was in 1781 when Comte de Rochambeau, commander in chief of French troops fighting in America, declared Feb. 22 a holiday for his soldiers.

Two years later, with Redcoats still occupying the city, some New Yorkers celebrated out of sight in taverns. Free again of the enemy, the entire city in 1784 marked the day "with that hilarity and manly decorum ever attendant on the Sons of Liberty."

In 1797 while President and living in Philadelphia, Washington was honored at a surprise birthday gala attended by 1,200. According to a newspaper report, "for Splendor, Taste, and Elegance, it was, perhaps, never excelled by any similar entertainment in the United States." Washington himself gave it one line in his diary.

Acclaimed father of his country, Washington saw his birthday more and more widely celebrated, though many patriotic republicans loudly charged this smacked of "king worship."

The former President's last birthday – his 67th – came in 1799 at his Mount Vernon mansion. It was the scene of a quiet wedding of one of his wife's young relatives. The old soldier attended, proudly wearing his buff and blue uniform as commander in chief of the Continental army.

He died the following Dec. 14

Cummings' Garden Wins State Award

The Michigan Horticultural Society at its annual banquet and meeting at Dearborn Inn on Jan. 18 honored six gardens in Michigan for their beauty. The awardees were presented with citations from this group of Michigan leading horticulturists.

Among those so honored was Nathan Cummings of Charlevoix for his estate at the Anchorage.

The comments made at the presentation by Mrs. William H. Burlingame were:

"Mr. Cummings has an estate on Lake Charlevoix where he has stressed the incorporation of world famous sculptoring into nature's setting, plus the colorful addition of flowering shrubs, evergreens, perennials and annuals where appropriate.

"The grounds are maintained in prime condition with a fine cutting garden as well as a flourishing vegetable garden.

"It is a pleasure to salute a couple with an artistic appreciation of sculptoring with a setting of plant material with good taste."

Mrs. Burlingame, garden editor of the Birmingham Eccentric, is the mother of Mrs. Hans Wiemer of Charlevoix.

DNR Makes Plans to Plant 7.5 Million Coho in Spring

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources has finalized plans to release 7.5 million young coho and chinook salmon this spring in streams and open waters of lakes Michigan, Superior, and Huron including 50,000 for Porter Creek and Stover Creek.

The DNR's 1971 total is up about 900,000 from last year, mostly reflecting substantially larger plantings scheduled for the Lake Huron area.

On the Lake Michigan front, the DNR will liberate about as many coho and chinook as last year, but it will make some major shifts in planting emphasis to boost action in several southern streams and to raise angler returns in open waters between Ludington and Frankfort.

Overall, salmon plantings slated for Lake Superior waters are essentially at last year's level with an increase in chinook releases programmed to offset a reduction in coho numbers.

Under this spring's schedule, the DNR will stock 430,000 coho and 250,000 chinook fingerlings in the Lake Superior area. Lake Michigan waters are in line for 2,850,000 young coho and 1,850,000 tiny chinook. One the Lake Huron side, the DNR will turn free 1.2 million coho and 900,000 chinook this spring.

The young, hatchery-reared coho to be stocked in March and April will grow to adult fish in the late summer and fall of 1972. It will take until 1973 before the chinook going into the state's waters this spring become large enough to start making an impact on fishing results.

Under this spring's changes for the Lake Michigan area, the DNR will bypass the Bear River near Petoskey where 300,000 coho were placed last year. It will also significantly lower its releases of those fish in the Platte and Little Manistee rivers.

The several hundred thousand fish which otherwise would have gone into those three rivers now will be redistributed in southern Michigan's Muskegon, Grand, and St. Joseph rivers and in open waters of northern Lake Michigan at Pointe Betsie, the Portage Lake Outlet, and north of Big Sable Point.

Previous smaller coho plantings in the three southern Lake Michigan streams have produced good angler returns and DNR fisheries officials now believe it is time to step up releases to make the most of the rivers' sportfishing potential.

Releases of 200,000 young coho to be made in each of the three northern Lake Michigan areas are part of an experiment to maintain and, hopefully, increase the open-water catch of salmon, while reducing the number of surplus fish returning to local streams.

Hopefully, when these salmon reach maturity in 1972, they will "home" back on the off-shore areas with concentrations that will provide top grade open-water fishing.

Coho going into the Portage Lake Outlet will be fin-clipped and intensively studied by the DNR to see what percentage of them are caught by sportfishermen. They will also be checked for straying and for total survival to compare the success of these releases with traditional stream plantings.

DNR fisheries men point out that weirs on the Little Manistee and Platte rivers will handle the situation in case salmon stray from the three open-water areas where they will be released this spring.

The DNR's decision to drop its coho plantings in the Bear River and shift salmon to these other more promising waters was reached after previous releases in that stream failed to produce the kind of off-shore fishery which the Department had hoped for. Also figuring in that decision was the fact that lake trout and steelhead appear to meet demands as the top sportfishing choices in open waters off the Bear River.

DNR fisheries chief Wayne H. Tody explains that the Department's 1971 plantings of coho will be sharply cut back in the Little Manistee and Platte rivers to avoid the large surpluses of these fish which have returned to the streams in recent seasons. He adds that reduced planting totals for those two streams will still trigger fall runs large enough to meet the DNR's egg-take quotas for coho.

On the Lake Huron front, one of the DNR's major new moves this spring will be to stock 250,000 coho and 200,000 chinook in the Cass River north of Flint. Those releases will come under an experiment to see if that stream can develop a successful salmon fishery for lower Lake Huron comparable to the one which the Grand, Kalamazoo, and St. Joseph rivers have produced for southern Lake Michigan.

Like those three streams, the Cass River is strategically located in a population center to serve large numbers of fisherman. The young salmon to be planted that will have to make their way through the Saginaw River into Saginaw Bay and open waters of Lake Huron.

MPA Re-elects Schaller to Board

Albert Schaller, publisher of the Charlevoix Courier, the Petoskey News-Review and the Otsego County Herald-Times, was re-elected to the board of the Michigan Press Association at the organization's annual meeting Jan. 26 and 27 at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

New president of the MPA is Blair C. Bedient, publisher of The Albion Recorder. His father, J.C. Bedient, was MPA president in 1951.

Other officers elected at the 103rd annual meeting were Carl Black, Sanilac County Jeffersonian in Croswell, president-elect; Grattan Gray, Monroe News, vice president; Henry M. Hogan jr., Birmingham Eccentric, treasurer; and Elmer E. White, executive secretary.

(Hogan is a summer resident of Charlevoix and owns several parcels of business property in the city.)

Jim Brown, vice president of Panax Corporation, became immediate past president and remains a member of the board of directors.

Newly elected members of the board are Richard Milliman, publisher of the Livingston County Press, Howell; and James A. Sherman, Oxford leader.

Re-elected with Schaller were David A. Rood, Manistique Pioneer Tribune, and Philip L. Richards, Alpena News.

The convention was climaxed by the 30th "All-Michigan Dinner," co-sponsored by the Michigan Department of Agriculture. The dinner is nationally famous because only food produce in Michigan is served, and no other state can match Michigan's versatility, according to the MPA.

The entree was a new Michigan product, home-grown Lake trout.

Honeysettes Fail to Win Damages at Jury Trial

A six-member jury decided Thursday in Charlevoix Circuit Court that Mr. and Mrs. Dana Honeysette had "no cause for action" in their attempts to win damages for themselves and their children for injuries and lost-time resulting from an auto accident at U.S. 31 and the Boyne City-rd., May 3, 1967.

The Honeysettes had sued originally for $200,000—$75,000 for Honeysette and $125,000 for Mrs. Honeysette and her four children, Boyd, Bruce, Brenda and Brian.

However, expenses tallied on the courtroom blackboard came to only $14,908.96.

The Honeysette's 1961 Ford Falcon station wagon had just turned onto U.S. 31 from the Boyne City-rd. and was heading toward Charlevoix when it was hit from the rear by a vehicle driven by Lawrence Jewell, who at that time was a turnkey at the Charlevoix County Jail.

The Honeysettes charged that Jewell "did operate his vehicle in a grossly negligent, careless manner, at an excessive rate of speed and did propell his vehicle into the rear of the plaintiff's vehicle with such force as to drive the plaintiff's vehicle 51 feet forward and 28 feet off the edge of the pavement."

Jewell's wife, Barbara, also was named as a defendant in the suit.

The Honeysette's youngest child, Brian, then nine months old, was thrown from the vehicle and ended up under the car in a ditch filled with water. Fast action by Sheriff Philo Sumner was credited at the time with saving the boy's life.

The Honeysette's lawsuit alleged that the boy "suffered permanent brain injury and damage as a result of being thrown from the vehicle...and being immersed in a swamp for an undetermined period of time."

Honeysette suffered face lacerations, other facial injuries and broken ribs; his wife sustained facial injuries, with a permanent injury to one cheekbone; Boyd had a broken leg and possible permanent injuries; and Bruce and Brenda suffered multiple contusions and abrasions.

The Honeysettes were represented by attorney Patrick H. Oliver, the third attorney on the case. Others were John Michael and Arthur Reibel. The Jewells, who now live in Pennsylvania, were represented by Menmuir and Zimmerman of Traverse City.

Circuit Judge Charles Brown who presided at the three-day trial, concurred with the jury's unanimous decision that the Honeysettes are not entitled to damages.

"I would have found the same way myself," he said after the trial ended.

Members of the jury were Thomas E. Meads and James F. Hallett of Boyne City; Ethel Jentz of R-1, Boyne City; Joanne E. Sloop of R-2, Boyne City; Lawrence M. Morgan on Walloon Lake and Cellia R. Sevenski of Hudson Township.

A second jury trial is on the Circuit Court docket for Feb. 23. The plaintiffs are Norma, Ruhl and Judith Metzer and Mrs. Loretta Boeckman who are seeking damages for injuries suffered in a collision with a vehicle driven by Betty Novotny on U.S. 31 south of Big Rock Point three years ago.

Taxes Ease Pinch

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night:

–Learned that it has $30,877 on hand to meet February bills, and with tax money coming in, no financial problems are anticipated in March.

–Heard a report by Supt. Robert Miller that certain school districts in the state are concerned that assessment test results will be used by the state Board of Education to gain more control over curriculum. Charlevoix's test results already have been forwarded to the state.

–Extended the contracts of Miller, Business Manager Harold Kaufman, High School Principal Vane Smith, Middle School Principal Max Novak and Elementary School Principal Glenn Snider beyond June 30. No new contracts were signed.

–Learned that the recent down-time because of bad weather will not affect the length of the school year so far as the state is concerned. However, if more than two days more are lost, the school will have to make up days to keep its North Central accreditation.

–Endorsed the April 12 Intermediate District election on one mill for vocational-technical education, with only Mrs. Robert Lieberman dissenting. Dick Donaldson said he is opposed to the levy, but thinks the voters should have a voice in the matter.

–Agreed to grant Mrs. Maurice Seaman, English and Spanish teacher, a leave-of-absence effective March 8. The Seamans are adopting a baby.

–Learned that delivery of one new school bus is scheduled for March 5. Delivery of a second bus has been delayed by a strike at International Harvester in Ft. Wayne, Ind.

–Heard that hot soup and cold sandwiches are not supplementing the Stewart sandwich menu at the high school.

–Heard reports by Snider, Novak and Smith in proposed curriculum changes at their respective schools.

–Heard a clarification by Kaufman that the used school bus recently pressed into service has not been bought by the district but is merely on loan from the supplier.

He added that many roads are still extremely slippery as a result of Thursday's rain.

The weather cleared over the weekend, with brisk temperutures. Monday morning was virtually cloudless, with the temperature standing at 12 below zero in Boyne City and three below zero in Charlevoix.

Total snowfall in Charlevoix last week was 7.5 inches, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau station at the city dock. The new accumulation brings Charlevoix's total fall for the winter to 74 inches.

In addition to the snow, .2 inches of rain fell Thursday night and early Friday.

'Fisheries'

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources has officially designated its Fish Division as the Fisheries Division to give that unit title which better fits the complete, modern-day concept of its operation.

Ruppe To Visit

Congressman Phil Ruppe will visit several counties of Northern Michigan Feb. 16-20 to conduct office hours.

Included in the Congressman's itinerary will be stops in Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego, Montmorency Cheboygan, Presque Isle and Alpena counties – virtually every county of the 11th Congressional District below the Mackinac Straits.

Ruppe will be available in each of the counties to discuss problems involving the federal government with individual citizens or groups of citizens. Specific times and places for Ruppe's office hours will be announced later.

All citizens with problems or questions relating to the federal government are invited to visit with him privately during his office hours.

Irish Buys Marina

David Irish, of the Irish Boat Shop in Harbor Springs, has announced the purchase of the Stover Creek Marina in Charlevoix from Hal Forbrig. Irish said the new Charlevoix facility will be operated under the name Irish Boat Shop, Charlevoix.

A major construction and expansion program will be started this spring to provide complete launching, servicing, storage, and dockage for sail and power boats from the smallest dinghies up to 55-foot yachts.

Special emphasis will be put on supplying and servicing the specialized needs of sailors and sport fishermen. A full range of highest quality sail and power boats will be offered for sale along with an extensive selection of accessories, hardware and equipment.

The Charlevoix yard will be closed until the snow melts and then will open as early as possible in April while construction proceeds. It is hoped to have a reasonably complete service facility ready by this summer.

Andrew Essenburg Jr.

Sundberg, Gill Stay on Council

Charlevoix will have a new mayor in April.

Andrew Essenburg jr., 42, a newcomer to city politics, defeated Mayor William E. Fochtman in the city primary Monday by a vote of 566 to 482, one of the largest primary election turnouts on record.

Since both men ran on the Republican ticket, Essenburg will go into the general election April 5 unopposed.

In the Second Ward, incumbent Alderman Robert L. Gill kept his seat by a narrow margin, defeating Robert L. Wise jr. 175 to 168.

In the Third Ward, incumbent Alderman Clifton F. Sundberg kept his seat by an even closer margin. He defeated George A. Richardson 173 to 168.

On the voting machine tally both Gill and Sundberg trailed their opponents, but managed to pick up the winning votes on absentee ballots.

The city council, which was in session when the vote was tallied, was stunned by the outcome.

One of Essenburg's major campaign promises was to fire veteran city attorney John Michael.

After learning that he had won, Essenburg said he has three attorneys in mind as Michael's replacement, but that he wants to talk to each of them personally before reaching a decision.

Mayor Fochtman called Essenburg by telephone from the City Hall after the results were learned to offer congratulations. He also suggested that he and the mayor-elect work together on the selection of a new police chief to replace Joe Smith, who died in September.

Mayor Fochtman carried only one ward, the first, where he received 210 votes to Essenburg's 119.

However, Essenburg carried both the Second and Third Wards by a margin of almost two-to-one.

In the Second Ward, Essenburg received 221 votes, compared to Fochtman's 137. In the Third Ward, Essenburg received 226 votes, compared to 135 for Fochtman.

Essenburg's victory was the culmination of a door-to-door campaign, chiefly in the Second and Third Wards.

One of his most popular campaign promises was to prohibit city officials from doing business with the city.

A combat veteran of the Korean War, Essenburg is owner and operator of Essenburg's Grocery Store on W. Garfield-st. He and his wife Barbara and their family live on Michigan-ave.

Other city officers elected Monday were City Clerk Ida Heise, 897 votes, and Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham, 909 votes. They were unopposed.

In the First Ward, incumbent Alderman Roger Westenbroek was returned to office with 289 votes and Howard Otis was elected ward supervisor with 262 votes. They were unopposed.

In the Second Ward, Robert Somerville received 271 votes as ward supervisor; Harold Archey received seven write-in votes as constable; and Ivan Whitley received one vote each for the offices of clerk and alderman. Dr. Walter Hoffman, who ran for mayor in 1966, received one write-in vote for mayor.

In the Third Ward, Theodore Browe received 264 votes as ward supervisor.

A total of 336 votes were cast in the First Ward, including 56 absentee ballots. The Second Ward tally was 366, including 33 absentee votes. In the Third Ward, 366 votes were cast, including 56 absentee ballots.

The city has a total of 1,763 registered voters in the three wards.

Third Graders Write on 'Love'

"Love is when you do not want someone in Vietnam to die"---"When your mother kisses you, doesn't it feel good?"---"If you love someone very much when you are big, you get marred."

"What is love?"

That is one of the questions that has been puzzling philosophers since the beginning of time.

But Miss Barbara Christensen, who teaches Third Grade at the Charlevoix Elementary School, was sure her whiz-bang group of language arts pupils would be able to shed some new light on the subject, what with St. Valentine's Day right around the corner.

And she was right.

After discussing the subject as a group for no more than a minute and a half, the kids set to work last week to write essays on the subject of love. Following are excerpts from their reports.

David: "Love means happyness. When a boy and girl meet and then when friends for a long time then they become in love. My Mother and Dad met a long time ago. They became good friends and they grew older and older. Then finally they fell in love. Then they got married. Sometimes animals fall in love. I myself love a girl. I even know a dog who fell in love and had babys."

Kim: "Being loved makes me happy. . . . There are 8 kinds of love. . . . Love is a good friend that you really like. Love is when you are good. Love is thoughtful. Love is being kind. You know when you are being loved and it is very, very fun to be loved.

Tammy: "There are two kinds of love in this world. One is the groovey love and the other is that you love somebody. When people love me it makes me feel very good. I think that other people like to be loved, too."

Sharon: "Love . . . makes you feel good. Yes, animals can feel you love them when you play with them. If you do not play with them they may think you don't love them. The way they look at you, that's the way you tell that they love you. When they lick you, that is there kiss."

Jeff: "Love is having a deep feeling for someone. There are about six kinds of love. . . . Love is being grateful to one another. Love is the very opposite from war. Love is sharing with one another. . You should have a lot of love in you to live a happy life. Love is all around you."

Willie: "Love is when you like someone real good. But if you laugh you are not sereice and you really don't mean it. And if you do meen it, you will not laugh."

Shari: "Love means staying with someone. Love means someone to go to. Love means a very, very, very good friend to keep forever. . . Being loved makes people feel happy, glad and very comfortable. . . You should have love all the time. Valentine's Day is a day for love, too, but really every day is a day for love."

Michelle: "Love is when you do not want someone in Vietnam to die. When I am loved I feel very happy. . . Love is when someone takes care of you when you are sik..Love is when you care for someone when they are in the hospital. Love is a good feeling inside you."

Joel: Love is a good feeling when someone says they love you, then you say I love you, too. Love means you like them very much and you mean it. Some people love someone, but they do not mention anything about it and then finally say I like you. When your mother kisses you, doesn't it feel good? God's love is stronger than anybody elses."

Paul: "Love is wonderful. Everyone loves someone. A mother cow loves her cafe. . . Your mother loves you. You love your mother, too. You can show love by helping others . . . Some people don't have anyone to love them and care for them."

Gary: "There is only one kind of love, that kind of love is like when you love your mother and father. When you love someone they can usually tell it by the way you act. If you love someone very much when you are big, you get marred (sic)."

Wendy: "Love is a special thing. Love makes me feel happy. Love is thoughtfull. Love is very nice. If you want to be loved, you have to be nice to others. . . If you are thoughtfull and nice, you'll be loved."

Dan: "People need love like children need love and animals. Sometimes when you love someboyd very much, you want to get married."

Jracine: "Love is very special when someone loves you. But when nobody loves you, you don't have any friends. . . Love is being kind to one another. People love animals. Animals love one another. Anything may be loved. People love one another."

Holly: "It makes you feel very happy and glad, you feel very excited, when you are in love."

Christina: "It is very nice to love. It makes me feel very nice."

Julie: "I love a lot of people. I bet you do, too. Love is very special to me. Love is one of the best things in the world, I think . . . My parents love me. I bet your parents love you. If someone loves you, you should love them."

Frances: Everyone should have someone to love them. Most people want love. . . Love makes me feel happy."

Karen: "I think love is something sweet and nice . . . Love is happy on Valentine's Day. . . Love feels good and sweet when you love someone you like. I know someone that loves you, your mother and father."

Obituary

Nature lovers may call anytime between now and early spring to pay their last respects to the natural beauty of the Fisherman's Island area, along the Lake Michigan shore southwest of Charlevoix.

Burial services will be directed by a subdivision developer as soon as the ground thaws.

Death was attributed to too few people caring enough. Memorial contributions can be made in the form of a pledge to care enough to prevent the untimely death of Michigan's remaining natural beauty.

If you give a damn, REALLY GIVE A DAMN, write to Gov. William Milliken. A postcard or note, at the Capitol, Lansing, Michigan, will do. Forceful action by the Governor and Legislature could keep this portion of Charlevoix the Beautiful alive and Beautiful.

MRS. KLAUS ROSENTHAL (formerly Penny Whitley) received her cap for practical nursing in a capping ceremony at Lake Michigan College in Benton Harbor Jan. 18. Mrs. Rosenthal will graduate in August. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Whitley of Charlevoix.

GOVT. WIVES SAY

Most Women Use Too Much Detergent

After an informal laundry experiment by wives and secretaries of the Michigan Water Resources Commission staff, the WRC office suggests one way every Michigan family can help control water pollution - by reducing the amount of high phosphate laundry detergents per washload.

Following recommendations from an outside source, "the girls" agreed that three tablespoons of the washing powder can do an efficient cleaning job, compared to the 1-1½ cups recommended on most packages. The suggested steps are:

1) Measure three tablespoons of detergent.

2) Put concentration where soil is heaviest (collars and cuffs of shirts, etc.) by sprinkling some of the measured detergent on dampened soiled area. Fold over and place in machine with remainder

3) For cool water washes or loads with heavy soil, add a bit more detergent, not more than ¼ cup.

4) If there is any doubt that amount of detergent is adequate, stop machine after about two minutes operation (time to dissolve all of detergent). There should be a narrow ring of suds only at edge of tub - about ½ inch wide. If the suds ring is much wider, reduce usage on subsequent loads. If there are no suds at all, add about ½ teaspoon of detergent.

Phosphorus, a key detergent ingredient, stimulates excessive algae growth with resulting problems to our lakes and streams. Michigan has an intensive program underway, requiring facilities to remove 80 percent of the phosphorus from municipal wastes by specified dates. To date, laboratory findings indicate that serious pollution problems could result from some experimental chemicals used as detergent phosphate substitutes.

Barnard

Barnard residents are finally digging out from our big storm and many report the largest snow banks ever. The snowmobiles really came in handy for many to get to work, shop for groceries and run errands. One neighbor had an appointment at the clinic in Petoskey and had to go part way with his snowmobile.

Due to bad roads and storms, the Barnard Extension Club will not hold a meeting in February but will meet on March 15 with Mrs. Robert Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cunningham and family of Bay City visited recently with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cunningham and Bruce.

They say Mother Nature does funny things once in awhile. On my way into Charlevoix during the storm I noticed the sign which reads 45 m.p.h. The "4" had been covered up with snow which meant slow down to 5 m.p.h. In noticing the moon Saturday evening, a slight cloud passed over and looked as though someone was indeed walking on it.

Mr. Charles Lehman was in Detroit the past weekend on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roberts and girls of Northport visited on Sunday with Mrs. Bertha Roberts and Phyllis.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Warner were Sunday dinner guests of the Clyde Warners of Norwood.

Weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boss and family were Mr. Wayne Boss of Houghton (Michigan Tech), Miss Gayle Boss and friend, Donna Miller of Mt. Pleasant and Dan and Mike Boss of Clawson. While here they all enjoyed snowmobiling.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cole and daughters, Christy and Allison of Detroit spent the past week visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sharrow. On Tuesday, Mrs. Sharrow and Mrs. Cole visited their father in Wyandotte.

Mr. and Mrs Roger Grunch are the parents of a son, Steven Roger, born Feb. 1. Mrs. Grunch was the former Ethel Bolhuis. Roger is still serving in the Armed Forces, in North Carolina. He has returned there and Ethel will remain several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emerald Bolhuis.

Area Vets Share Funds

The Veterans Administration today announced that expenditures for Michigan for fiscal 1970 totaled $309,935,333, of which $404,002 was for Charlevoix County.

Robert M. Fitzgerald, director of the Detroit VA office said that the bulk of the money was $180,680,532 in disability compensation and pension payments for Michigan Veterans, including $251,146 for Charlevoix county veterans.

Other VA expenditures in Charlevoix County for fiscal 1970, Fitzgerald said, were for GI Bill and other VA education programs, $53,275; and insurance and indemnities, $44,631. Additional expenditures in Charlevoix county included $54,950 for direct home loans.

Bob Wasoski of Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs also noted that the above figures indicate a $72,000 increase over last year in the county. He also felt the prime reason for the increase was due to increase in public relations and help from the news media.

Episcopalians Elect Officers

Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix elected officers for 1971 at the annual church meeting Feb. 4. The Rev. Hewitt V. Johnston, church vicar, presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Barbara Gallagher was elected secretary; Fred Edward, treasurer; Howard Horton assistant treasurer; Harold Bliss and William Wilson, vestrymen; and Robert Clock, warden.

The annual financial report showed receipts of $14,732.42 for the year, over disbursements of $13,431.86, for a balance on hand Jan. 1 of $1,300.56.

Joe Beaudoin paced Hess with 24, followed by Ralph Doan with 12.

For the bankers, Gary Stutzman had 17, Norm Probert 11 and Bruce Morgan 10.

In the second game, Topside led at the end of the first period, 14-12, with Lee Cross scoring 12 of Topside's 14 points. At the half the score stood at 29-25, with the Topside still ahead, and at the end of the third stanza the Topsiders had increased their margin to 39-31.

For Topside, Lee Cross had 30 and Brendan LaBlance 10. Dick Putnam scored 15 and Roger Putnam 12 for Medusa.

This Tuesday night, the Topside was pitted against Martins nnd Andy's Tire World against the First State Bank.

The Jan. 26 game, cancelled because of bad weather, will be played March 23. Andy's will meet Martins and the bankers will challenge Medusa.

Gaylord Nips JV's In Overtime Game

Charlevoix's junior varsity cagers scored 48 points twice over the weekend, but it wasn't enough to defeat either Gaylord or Troverse City St. Francis.

In the Friday game with Gaylord, the Rayder Jayvees lost 51 to 48 in overtime. Against TC St. Francis they lost 68-48.

At the end of the first quarter against Gaylord, the score was tied at 9-up, but the Blue Devils moved ahead in the second stanza, scoring 12 points to Charlevoix's 8, for a halftime score of 21-17.

The Rayders had a good third quarter with 19 points, compared to 11 for Gaylord and led at the whistle by a margin of 36 to 32.

But by the final curtain, the score was tied at 48 and the game went into overtime, with Gaylord scoring 5 points to Charlevoix's 2.

High-point man for Charlevoix was Vince Left with 15 points on 7 fieldgoals and 1 freethrow. Dennis Crain scored 11 on 1 FG and 9 FT; Lee Simpson, 9 on 4 FG and 1 FT; Pat Doan, 4 on 2 FG; Randy Woods, 3 on 1 FG and 1 FT; and Jim Ance, Dale Boss and Berlage, 2 each on FG.

The Jayvee Rayders were outscored by TC St. Francis from the start, with quarter scores of 16-8; 36-26; 53-32; and 68-48.

Wins Research Grant

Ecology Professor Roger Knutson of Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, has been awarded a Science Faculty Fellowship from the National Science Foundation to study ways to improve the effectiveness of teachers of college science, mathematics and engineering.

Prof. Knutson is the husband of the former Sharon Belding, formerly of Charlevoix, and the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Belding.

The fellowship will provide for a year of research at the University of Georgia, beginning in September. Prof. Knutson selected Georgia U. because "it is one of just a few institutions of higher education reknown in the area of ecology in the United States."

Prof. Knutson has taught ecology at Luther College since joining the faculty in 1964.

At the University of Georgia, Prof. Knutson will study in the departments of botany, forest resources, entomology and zoology.

A graduate of St. Olaf College, he received his M.S. and Ph. D degrees from Michigan State University.

He has previously received NSF Graduate Fellowships for his study at Michigan State University and served as director of the NSF Instructional Scientific Equipment Grant program at Luther College in 1968.

Medusa's Billings Up, Profits Down

Medusa Portland Cement Co. reports a sharp drop in profits in 1970, although billings to customers were up.

A preview of the company's annual report, due Feb. 22, shows that billings to customers rose from $65,940,000 in 1969 to $75,072,000 in 1970.

However, net profit after taxes dropped from $4,344,000 in 1969 to 13,166,000 in 1970.

The profits for 1970 amount to $1.53 per share, compared to $2.31 in 1969.

Fourth quarter figures are somewhat brighter.

Billings in the last three months of 1969 came to $14,947,000, compared to $21,325 in the same period of 1970. Profits after taxes climbed from $1,293,000 to $1,391,000, although profits per share dropped slightly, from 69 cents to 67 cents for the quarter.

The average number of common shares outstanding rose from 1,766,000 in 1969 to 1,905,000 in 1970.

Special Election: Is It Necessary?

We wish the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate Board of Education had shown a little more concern for the taxpayers' pocketbooks when it scheduled a special election April 12 to vote on a proposed one-mill charter levy for vocational-technical education.

It's not the money is not needed. It is. Desperately.

But we feel the Intermediate District millage vote could have been held at the time of the annual school election in June, saving the constituent school districts the cost of a special election in April.

Superintendent Charles A. Robinson says the election was called in April in order to avoid confusion on the part of the voters, who undoubtedly will be asked to approve local school operating millage in June. He said the timing of the special election was approved by all of the local school boards involved.

If this is the only reason, we feel the Intermediate board, and their colleagues on the local level, underestimate the intelligence of northern Michigan voters.

Even if the election had been held in June, the vocational-technical education millage would have appeared on a separate ballot from other millage proposals. And there are very few of us who vote willy-nilly on millage proposals without knowing what we are voting for or against.

The cost of the special election will vary from district to district, depending on how much election workers are paid and how many workers will be needed to run the polls and count the votes. Then you can tack on the cost of heat, lights, janitors and any other services or materials needed to conduct the election.

The cost of the special election will not break any of the constituent school districts, but it will still involve taxpayers' money earmarked for education and we would like to see it spent for education.

We suspect that the real reason for calling the special election in April is to allow the Intermediate District to secure its millage before the local school districts get around to figuring up how much more operational millage they will require for the coming year.

We also suspect that the Intermediate board feels the vocational-technical education millage stands a better chance of passing at a special election when the turnout at the polls certainly will not be as large as it normally is at the annual school election in June.

Furthermore, Mr. Robinson admits that the timing of the election has nothing to do with when the new monies will be received, if the millage passes. The levy will take effect during the next fiscal year, whether the millage is voted in April or June.

It is unfortunate that the Intermediate board feels it must resort to the political maneuvering implied by the special election to secure funds for anything as important as vocational-technical education.

Furthermore, in this year of tight budgets on every level of government, it is nothing short of scandalous to waste tax money on a special election when the annual school election is only two months away.

This Week in Lansing

By Rep. Richard Friske

Governor Milliken submitted his 1971-72 budget proposals to the Legislature just before this report was written. I'll report more fully on the budget in my next report, after I've had a chance to study it thoroughly. Here are some of the highlights:

Governor Milliken's proposed budget is set at $1,974 billion, keeping his pledge to hold state spending under the $2 billion level during the coming fiscal year.

The Governor held to his promise to ask Michigan citizens to pay new new taxes for all of 1971. However, he did say that new tax revenues will be necessary next year. His basic proposals are to increase the personal income tax from 2.6 percent to 3.6 percent, which I strongly oppose, and boost the corporate income tax from 5.6 percent to 7.8 percent, beginning January 1, 1972.

He urged that the budget for the present fiscal year, now undergoing reductions, be held at $1,750 billion. If this goal is reached, his new budget would reflect an increase of almost $225 million, or about 12.8 percent. As another measure of fiscal responsibility, the Governor is asking that the percentage expenditure increase be less than the anticipated revenue increase, which has not been true during the last five years.

As with any budget, there are a lot of "ifs" surrounding this one. Will present year expenditures be reduced sufficiently? Will anticipated revenues, partly based on expected economic recovery, be realized? Will the legislative factions eager for big spending force expenditures above the Governor's responsible proposals?

It's too early, of course, to answer these and hundreds of other questions affecting the budget. But the process of answering them begins now, with the Legislature.

The discovery that a "general operations" resolution passed by the House last December had given rise to a free dental plan for legislators caused a considerable controversy last week.

The situation culminated in cancellation of the plan by the House Policy Committee, which had given the initial authorization based on the December resolution. The committee voted to rescind the program was 9 to 1. If such action had not been taken by the committee it's likely that the full House would have acted to stop the dental plan. A new resolution to accomplish that was introduced by a Republican legislator and had the strong support of GOP caucus members.

The plan aroused the understandable ire of many citizens. It also angered many Republican legislators because of the manner in which it was brought about.

There were also comments that a few members were aware of the intent of the provision. One such member said that at the time he considered the measure acceptable, but feels the state's present financial situation may have changed conditions enough to make it inappropriate.

Once the full impact of the resolution was discovered, opposition was immediate and intense. Many Republican legislators took special steps to make sure they would not receive benefits under the plan, just in case efforts to eliminate the program were unsuccessful.

But regardless of the clouded intent of the original resolution, and regardless of who knew about its full implications and who didn't, one thing was very clear to me. The dental plan was a mistake, and had to be eliminated.

From all present indications, Michigan's citizens will again vote on Daylight Saving Time. The Michigan House last week defeated a proposal to put the state on "fast time" during the summer months.

The vote against DST was 60-46. The measure has been kept alive by supporters of DST for a possible second vote before the February deadline for acting on this proposal.

The Legislature was actually voting on whether to approve an initiative petition from Michigan citizens favoring DST. Rejection by the Legislature automatically puts the question on the next general election ballot, in November of 1972.

Unless the question is revived during the next few days and passed, which is currently considered unlikely, the measure will go to the voters. This would make the second time voters have had a chance to voice their opinion on the issue.

In any case, it appears that you and your neighbors will be making a new decision on this issue next year.

Sen. Davis To Probe ADC Rate

By Sen. Robert Davis

If you have wondered why the cost of government goes up so sharply, you might take a quick look at what has happened to the caseload of aid-to-dependent children in the last 12 months.

In January of last year, the caseload was 64,340. That grew steadily for the next 11 months and by December, the state ADC caseload had almost doubled. It was 113,130 as the year ended.

But that is only half of the story...

The cost per case back in January was $202.71 but by the time December was reached rising costs had upped that to $211.61.

So in the last year, costs jumped from $13 million in January to almost $24 million in December.

Now, this is exceptional because of the long General Motors strike.

But a look at comparable figures of three years ago shows that January cases numbered 45,156 compared with 64,340 last January and costs had risen from $$183.55 per case to the $202.71 previously mentioned.

In December three years ago, 49,637 cases cost an average of $189.37 per case compared with 113,130 cases in December, 1970, and an average cost of $211.61.

The jump from less than $10 million to almost $24 Million in three years in just one category gives you some idea of where state government revenue goes.

As a member of the Appropriations Committee I intend to thoroughly investigate our ADC Program.

Wants Tourist, Lay People On Oil Board

State Sen. Robert W. Davis (37th District) today introduced a bill to enlarge the state oil advisory board from six to nine members. One representative would be from the state's tourist industry and two lay people.

"The oil odvisory board presently consists of six members, all representing the oil industry," said Sen. Davis.

"In view of the public furor over pollution and recent difficulty with oil wells running wild in the Gulf of Mexico and California, I feel Michigan's residents and its tourist industry should be fully protected against anything like that happening here." All three new members would be appointed by the Department of Natural Resources Director.

Sen. Davis said the bill provides that when the enlarged board is considering or determining policy, rules or ordinances it must consider the effect of tis proposals on the environmental quality of the state's natural resources.

"The bill would also increase the range of fines from $100 to $1,000 that could be assessed against oil companies that abandon wells without properly cleaning up the environment," said Senator Davis, whose senatorial district encompasses some of the new oil producing areas of Michigan.

Rep. Richard Friske of the 106th District, who also supports this concept will guide the bill through the House.

Clockwise

Little Shaver

I wish my youngest daughter Allison would learn to talk so she could tell me where she hid my razor.

My wife Judy says its my own fault because I never put said razor on the top shelf of the medicine cabinet as she recommended. Instead, I'd leave it on the bottom shelf, which is still a good three feet over the top of Allison's head. However, I should have seen trouble approaching and taken Judy's advice.

For the past six months, the high point of Allison's morning has been watching daddy shave. She wedges herself in between me and the wash basin and watches every stroke in utter disbelief. She even stands on my feet for a better view and scoops up handfuls of shaving cream from the basin, getting the cuffs of her pajama sleeves wet.

Then along about Christmas it finally happened. Allison shaved.

We wouldn't have known about it, but she emerged from the bathroom with a nasty razor nick on her chin. I dashed into the bathroom and found my razor, which I had left on the bottom shelf of the medicine cabinet, in the bathtub.

I couldn't figure out how she had gotten her hands on it until a couple of days later when Judy discovered her standing on the edge of the bathtub ready to swing one leg into the wash basin. From the wash basin, it is no trick to reach everything in the medicine cabinet, even for a 22-month-old girl.

Right then and there I should have moved my razor to the top of the shower wall, but I didn't. And every few days, Allison showed up with a new razor nick.

Then, last week, my razor disappeared, and I can only assume that Allison got tired of sharing her razor with her father.

She has it hidden somewhere in our big barn of a house and she apparently is still shaving whenever the fancy strikes her. Every few days there is a new razor nick on her cheek or her upper lip to show what she has been up to.

But we can't find the razor, although both Judy and I have turned the house inside out looking for it.

In the meantime, I have been shaving with Judy's old razor that she uses to shave her legs and remove paint flecks from the windows. I could do a better job with a broken pop bottle.

My old razor (pardon me, Allison's razor) was the result of a Clockwise column about five years ago when I complained in print that the Gillette Co. had stopped making the old three-piece safety razor I had used while I was in the army.

A few days later, a spanking new razor of the type I described arrived in the mail. Leon Anders of Grand Rapids had seen the column, and just happened to have a spare razor of the same design packed away with his memorablia of yesteryear.

I have used that razor every morning since, sailing through my morning shaves in nothing flat and thinking happy thoughts about Mr. Anders. It was such a nice, sturdy little razor I was sure it would last me as long as I lived and then I would bequeath it to a grandson and he, in turn, would leave it to his progeny and . . .

It's funny, the things you think about when you are shaving.

But I never considered turning it over, blade and all, to a little female upstart named Allison who undoubtedly has gotten herself involved in the Women's Lib movement. That's why I can hardly wait for her to start talking so she can tell me where it's hidden.

If she won't fess up, I'm going to grow a full beard and ruin her morning entertainment.

Bill's Toys

Around where I live, a lot of people are upset because William Ford is moving his Lions football team out of Detroit and into Pontiac. But around the nation, no one seems to care that Senator Ted Kennedy has his suits made in England.

What does it all mean?

It means that, once again, people are getting excited about the wrong thing.

The Detroit Lions belong to Bill Ford. They are his toys and he has the right to play with his toys wherever he likes, as long as he stays out of traffic.

His critics say Ford is being disloyal to the town that built the Model T and made his family rich. They say he should play with his toy in downtown Detroit because the excitement would distract the muggers.

This isn't fair. No one growled at old Henry Ford when he built Greenfield Village in Dearborn rather than on the banks of the Detroit River where the parking lot attendants would have to be scuba divers. And besides, what did Detroit do for Bill Ford's father, Edsel? How would you like to have your dad named after the greatest loser in automotive history?

But what about the fans who have supported the Lions faithfully all these years, even when Fred Enke was quarterback? Forget it: I just took a survey and discovered that most of these fans live closer to Pontiac than to downtown Detroit. The only people who live close to the present Detroit stadium never attend games because they must stay home and sell parking spaces in their living rooms.

The important thing is not where the Lions play; it is who pays for where they play. Taxpayer's money and credit would be used to build a Detroit stadium. Nuts to that. Bill Ford should buy his own toy chest. It is enough that taxpayers subsidize the highways which make Fords such a great idea. Public money shouldn't construct the seats that the public must pay to sit on.

So that takes care of the Bill Ford problem. But what are we going to do about Senator Kennedy? He has his britches tailored in London for no better reason than that's where his brothers always spent their clothing allowances.

What kind of Americanism is that? Aren't U.S. tailors good enough for Kennedy? Can't some fine American lad be taught how to stuff a senator's shirt?

What do our clothing unions think of Senator Kennedy snubbing an entire U.S. industry in favor of helping God save the Queen?

What about the balance of payments? Does Prince Phillip have his crown and scepter tooled in New Jersey? No way. When Prince Charles and his little sister came calling last year, they wouldn't even stay at a Holiday Inn. They freeloaded at the White House which is owned by all U.S. taxpayers including unemployed tailors.

You can fret about Bill Ford and his toys if you want. But football is nothing but a frivolous game. Kennedy's defection is a serious slap at American craftsmanship and pride.

And what about our folklore? Whoever heard of: "Reginald you made the pants too long?"

Onward and Upward Sam.

Secrets of Pupfish May Help Man Survive

It shouldn't happen to a pupfish. But it has.

After thousands of years and a spectacularly successful survival story, the tiny fish faces extinction. But conservationists and naturalists are fighting for its life.

The minnow-shaped pupfish is an inch-long child of the Ice Age, trapped in Death Valley, the Mojave Basins, and the Owens and Amargosa Valleys when melting glaciers flooded them. Through the eons, these huge lakes shrank to sun-scorched ponds and spring holes, now the final retreats of the pupfish.

The pond-sized populations of this finny relic have been separated so long that several species evolved. There may be only a handful of one type. Females are a mottled brown, but males are usually a flashy irridescent blue or purple.

Up to now, pupfish have conquered severe threats. They have adapted to and thrive in water from 90 degrees to 110 degrees F. and six to ten times as salty as the oceans, with very little oxygen content.

But man may be the most serious menace to their survival Irrigation projects already have wiped out two varieties, and pupfish are now on the official list of endangered species.

Irrigation pumps lower the water table, dropping the level of some of the pupfish ponds.

The danger is no more severe in a shallow pond – some hardly larger than a trickle from a leaking radiator – than in Devil's Hole in Death Valley where scuba divers have plunged nearly 300 feet without reaching bottom.

If the water level were to drop only slightly in this swimming-pool-sized sink hole, it would leave the pupfish spawning ledges high and dry.

Thus, if females then dropped their eggs over the deep water, they would probably drift down far out of reach of fertilization, and the species would soon die.

Conservationists from the Bureau of Land Management and Nevada Department of Fish and Game recently saved another pupfish species in School Springs at Ash Meadows Springs, Nev., where livestock contamination, crayfish, and bullfrogs threatendd spawning ponds.

"If we can learn the secret of how the pupfish survive in such hostile surroundings," sayd one sicentist, "it could be useful someday in helping man survive in his increasingly polluted world."

A Mid-Winter Visit to Beaver Island

(Thirty-two miles across Lake Michigan from Charlevoix, Beaver Islanders have settled into a winter routine that sounds enchantingly idyllic compared to the hustle and bustle of mainland communities. The following description of winter life on the island was written by Sheldon Parker and appeared in the January issue of the Beaver Beacon. Read on for an armchair visit to America's Emerald Isle during one of the snowiest winters on record.)

By Sheldon Parker

Winter, white and cruel, has swept out of the North on the heels of the retreating Sun; has declared himself King, and sits unchallenged on the high-seat in place of his cousin, Autumn; and has sent his henchman, the North Wind, to do his will and bind the earth in a prison of ice.

He sends his tax collectors forth to wrench from the trembling inhabitants of his realm, the age old payment of hunger and privation. Not everything in King Winter's path gives up without a struggle. Small lakes and streams are quickly subdued, but mighty Lake Michigan stubbornly sends her battalions of white-capped breakers to time and again break the icy bonds that the King of the North has forged upon some quiet shore or bay, which had been left unruffled through some starry night while the full moon rode the heavens and Jack Frost worked his magic.

So the battle rages. But even the most valiant must sometimes bow, and little by little the King's cold will is done. His hoary smiths forge the bonds that will imprison our northern sea until a returning sun brings the maiden, Spring, to melt the cold monarch with her warm caresses, and send him back to the cold darkness from whence he came. But, until that far off day, old Winter's subjects must make the best of their lot, and each goes about it in his own way.

Here, on Beaver Island, faint hearts among the feathered folk have long since fled south, while the species that stay, must work hard and long to fuel the little furnaces that keep them warm through the long nights.

Some, such as the jays, chickadees, nuthatches, and an assortment of woodpeckers, who have found our feeders, greedily make the most of their good fortune.

In the deep woods, each new snowfall records the passing of some furry hunter. As now, with the chipmunks napping in some stump or long under the deepening snow, the squirrel snug in his nest in a tree, the hares who flee like ghosts on their hairy snow-shoes, brother fox and brother coyote must travel cold miles to find the hapless mouse or partridge that will keep them strong to hunt yet another night.

Most of the hawks have left, but now and again, we find evidence that the great owl is still with us and has made a meal of some careless snowshoe hare.

Most of the deer, as is the custom of their tribe, have drifted to the woods and swamps at the south end of the Island where their fate will be decided later in the season, by temperature and depth of the snow, or by whether or not anyone cuts brouse for them in their now stripped yarding areas.

As this goes on, we humans have heaved a deep sigh and settled into the routine of the relaxed season, which will last until spring brings an end to leisure, and starts yet another round of making a living, for the most of us.

But, in the meantime, there's mail to be picked up at the post office when Joe can fly it across from Charlevoix, with a chance to catch up on Island news while Frank Nackerman sorts the mail; stops at Dick's and Bud's stores and more visiting, or at Archie's Shamrock, to learn where the fish are biting, or when we're going to have a coyote hunt; or perhaps just thinking up an excuse to stop at some friend's where the coffee is always hot, and especially at Green's, to sample some of Joy's super, plus cookies.

Not too many days go by without a snowmobile safari. Kids, young and old, band together to enjoy them. Maybe to Sand Bay, or down the west side where we enjoy riding the old railroad right of way that Karl Kuebler brushed out for us this past fall, despite a most severe heart attack suffered last winter. Thanks, Karl, for Kuebler Trail through Paradise Valley!

Safaries reaching Mt. Pisgah at Donegal Bay, usually take a break and some of us have a go at riding our machines to the top. The cedars at the west end of Barney's Lake offer us shelter from any cold wind, where we build a fire, and enjoy the chili or stew such as only Marge Wanger can make. Other times, we roast hamburgers and hot dogs that, reinforced with coffee plus any amount of cheeses and crackers, are guaranteed to send us on our way at peace with the world. Finally, we get home before dark wondering how people ever got along before the first Ski Doo was born.

On these winter days, we are again mindful that when the Great Planner wrought the seasons, he gave to each its share of charm. When, on a whisper-still morning the pines and spruces stand, their dark hair turned virgin white with last night's snow fall, and out across the clearing, the smothered junipers form mounds remindful of miniature white sand dunes – or at evening when the pines and spruces have shed their load of snow and are darkly outlined against the sunset – or later still, when the moon climbs the heavens and the stars crowd our northern sky – when the ice is thick on the Bay and the trees crack with reports like pistol shots – a mortal has to be unappreciative indeed to deny the grace and beauty that enfolds our Island home.

Nicole Ballard Wins 'Homemaker' Title

Nicole D. Ballard has been named 1971 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for Charlevoix High School.

She was chosen on the basis of her score in a Dec. 1 written knowledge and attitude examination for which 650,000 senior girls throughout the country were enrolled. From General Mills, sponsor of the annual education program, she will receive a specially designed award. Additionally, her selection makes her eligible for state and national honors, including one of 102 college scholarships totaling $110,000.

The 1971 Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow -- the national winner – will be awarded a $5,000 educational grant. She will be selected this spring from 51 senior girls representing each state and the District of Columbia during an expense-paid educational tour by these State Homemakers of Tomorrow -- each accompanied by a school adviser – of Washington, D.C., and Colonial Williamsburg, Va. Second-, third- and fourth-place winners nationally will receive $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 scholarships. The other state winners will be awarded $1,500 grants.

State judging centers on the performance of school winners in the Dec. 1 test, with personal observation and interviews during the tour added factors in national selections. In addition to the awards for school, state and national Homemakers of Tomorrow, second-ranking girls in each state receive $500 scholarships, and schools of State Homemakers of Tomorrow are awarded complete sets of Encyclopedia Britannica by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc.

All judging and selection of winners is done by Science Research Associates, Chicago, which also constructed and grades the written examination.

The only national scholarship program exclusively for high school senior girls, the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow was instituted by General Mills in the 1954-55 school year to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career. Since its inception, almost seven and three-quarters million girls have been enrolled, and, with this year's grants, scholarship awards will total in excess of $1 ¾ million.

Road Fund Receipts Dip; Counties, Cities Get Less

Motor Vehicle Highway Fund collections for the fourth quarter of 1970 – down 1.9 percent from the same period in 1969 – are being distributed to Michigan counties and municipalities, the state Highway Commission has announced.

Charlevoix County will receive $132,340, down from the $135,298 received in 1969.

Antrim County will receive $131,272 (down from $133,748); Emmet County, $149,261, (down from $149,919) and Otsego County, $125,345 (down from $125,945).

The city of Charlevoix will receive $11,416, down from the $11,581 received for the fourth quarter of 1969.

Boyne City will receive $13,424, Boyne Falls, $1,506; East Jordan, $7,355; Ellsworth, $2,890; Elk Rapids, $6,157; Northport, $2,854; and Petoskey, $19,841.

State Highway Director Henrik E. Stafseth said Highway Fund net receipts for October, November and December were $86.5 million, a decrease of $1.7 million from the fourth quarter in 1969.

Department analysts said the general economic slowdown, combined with the work stoppage in the auto industry, contributed to the decline in gasoline taxes. "Michigan motorists did not travel as much in the latter part of 1970 as they did in 1969," Stafseth said.

The Highway Fund is made up of state taxes on gasoline and diesel fuel and license plate fees paid by motorists.

After deduction of collection costs by the Department of State, $3.5 million for retirement of Mackinac Bridge bonds, 1.5 percent of gasoline taxes for the State Waterways Commission and other fixed costs – such as the manufacture of license plates – the money is distributed according to a formula established by the State.

Courier Camera Visits Lions Club Outing

AN ESTIMATED crowd of 500 -- most of them snowmobilers -- turned sunday afternoon for the second day of the Lions Club's annual family winter outing at Ferry Beach on Lake Charlevoix. The first day's events were held at the Rod and Gun Club the week before.

JIM KELLER of Boyne City was winner of this snowmobile offered as first prize in the Lions Club's annual family winter outing Sunday at Ferry Beach. Keller was not on hand to receive his prize. Ted Ager of Charlevoix won the snowmobile suit and Tom Coath of Petoskey won the snowmobile boots.

THE CITY BOAT ramp at Ferry Beach, frequented by hundreds of boaters every summer, was a convenient "launching ramp" Sunday for snowmobilers who took part in the Lions Club's annual Winter Outing.

PARTICIPANTS at the Lions Club's winter outing Sunday at Ferry Beach kept close to strategically located oil-drum fires to keep warm. Although the temperature in Charlevoix hit 10 below Sunday morning, the mercury crept into the low 20's during the day.

I was a guest of my daughter-in-law Mrs. Sam Alexander and granddaughter, Diane, and Mrs. Glen Williams at the meeting of the Weight Watchers in Charlevoix Wednesday evening, which was most interesting. SKI-FLYING

Michigan boasts the only ski-flying hill in the Western Hemisphere, and one of only five in the world, according to the Michigan Tourist Council. Copper Peak Ski-Flying Hill, north of Ironwood in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, is as high as a 24-story building, stretching 282 feet skyward, and attracts international competition.

Yule Seal Gifts Dip In Charlevoix Co.

Christmas Seal campaign contributions in Charlevoix County have reached $3,705.00. The Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association said this is a decrease over last year's total of $3,927.00 for the same date.

J. Irvin Nichols, executive director of MIRDA, said the statewide contributions at this time total $1,570,439, which is a decrease of $18,764 from the amount reported at this same time last year.

Nichols indicated that additional contributions are needed by the state's tuberculosis and respiratory disease associations in order to support increasing activities in the field of smoking and air pollution, as well as the ongoing work in tuberculosis and respiratory disease.

During the course of a year, Nichols said, the Christmas Seal Associations in Michigan provide for, or assist in, many statewide, county, and community programs which strive for better health. Such programs include smoking education activities and breathing exercise classes for adults afflicted with emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma, and other respiratory ailments; increased participation in air pollution control activities including assisting citizen groups during environmental hearings, as well as supporting antipollution legislation, clean air committees, leaf collection; and much more.

In addition, funds and assistance are provided for TB skin testing programs, support for medical research at Michigan's leading universities, and continuing education seminars for physicians, nurses and other paramedical personnel.

Residents of Charlevoix County who have not yet answered their Christmas Seal appeal letter are urged to do so now so that the important work of Christmas Seal Agencies can be continued.

Community Action Gets Grant

Gov. William G. Milliken Wednesday announced approval of Economic Opportunity grants totaling $239,315 to Northeast Michigan Community Action, Inc., which covers Charlevoix County.

The conduct and administration branch was allocated $47,346 and the chief areas of responsibility of the program are administration, finance and research, and programs and planning.

The Community Organization program, funded at $144,590, will have the responsibility for compilation of a comprehensive services directory for each of the 12 counties in the NEMCA area.

"Job Banks" will be established whereby people with skills or free time can call in for work, and employers who need part-time assistance can request a worker. Under the Community Organization program, eligible participants will be referred to NEMCA programs such as housing, Head Start, emergency food, family planning as well as to the programs offered by other agencies. It is hoped that these services will reach some 5,000 families in the combined counties of Presque Isle, Montmorency, Alpena, Alcona, Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Oscoda, Ogemaw, Iosco, Arenac and Otsego Counties.

Family Planning is to receive $13,379. Objectives of the programs are to provide low income families with information on family planning.

The Emergency Food and Medical program is funded at $13,000. The program will provide emergency food assistance for food purchases, nutritional supplement and transportation to services for those in need. Transportation pools of volunteers will be set up to help the poor in obtaining the services of other agencies.

U.S. Pushing Job Training In N. Michigan

The U.S. Department of Labor has signed a 12-month contract with the Michigan Employment Security Commission to continue its administration of the Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) in Northern Michigan.

The terms of the new contract call for a total of 1,600 persons to be served by the six CEP Centers covering the 21-county area. These centers are: Alpena, Calumet, Marquette, Petoskey, Sault Ste. Marie, and Traverse City.

A total of 432 persons were placed into employment by the CEP staff under the ten-month contract which expired Dec. 31, 1970. It is projected that a total of 650 will be placed into employment under the 1971 contract. A major part of the CEP IV Program will be the continuation of the Adult and Youth Work Experience components.

It is planned that a total of 420 adults and 135 youth will be given an opportunity to prepare for employment while they learn "job skills" working on subsidized employment with non-profit employers.

Funds have been allocated to CEP IV to provide Vocational MDTA Skill Training for 110 persons in various occupational areas

Kids Write About Love

Rodney: "Happy things are love. . . Love is good in some ways. But love can be bad in others. Like, when love is not true, that is bad; when love is true, that is good. . . Love is when you kiss."

Scott: "Love can make you feel good and happy, or even sad sometimes. . . Many people love one another. That's why we have mothers and fathers. Even little kids can fall in love, too. I have a friend who loves a girl. Every buddy shoud love one another. Most people I (k)now say thay don't love one another, but they realy do."

Leslie: "Love . . means being happy, being with my friends and my family and just having fun. . . Love is also sad. It's sad, like when somebody dies, or when somebody that you know gets in an accident and has to go to the hospital."

Tamula: "Love makes me feel happy. I have a dog named Hidie. I know she loves me because she wags her tail when I feed her and play with her. Love makes me feel warm inside. Love is found in the whole world in many different ways. Almost everyone has love in their heart."

Greg: "When you pet or love an animals, it makes them feel happy inside. Being loved makes me feel very good inside and happy. There are different kinds of love, like kissing and hugging and loveing. You love your mother and father, I hope, and you don't have to show them all the time by kissing them and hugging them every ten minutes or four. Your parents know you love them and they love you, too."

Workshop Planned

A plea for workers at a sewing workshop for the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Hospital has been issued by the president, Mrs. James W. Gallagher.

At a recent meeting, Feb. 24 was set for the next workshop to cut and sew puppets and layettes which are given to indigent families with new babies. Members and others wishing to assist are asked to meet at the home of Mrs. Conrad Klooster Jr. in Meadowlane at 8 p.m. Feb. 24.

The Guild met at the hospital and saw, for the first time, the new celery green fireproof drapes the Guild had purchased for the solarium at the hospital and the new crib for the pediatrics department.

Mrs. Dale Glass, tray favor chairman, reported that Mrs. David Dixel's Cub Scout Den 6 had made Lincoln Day favors, Brownie Scout Troop 248 would provide St. Patrick's Day favors under direction of their leaders, Mrs. John Lignell and Mrs. Jack Begrow; Mrs. Lura Wells' Girl Scout troop 253, Easter tray favors. Mrs. Glass made Valentine and Washington Day favors.

It was suggested that if anyone wanted to do something for a patient at the hospital he could 'buy' television service for a nominal fee from the Guild. Fred Davison is in charge of this program.

No Cutback in Plants Of Trout, DNR Says

A petition drive urging the Department of Natural Resources not to reduce the number of lake trout planted in Charlevoix and Petoskey waters this year won't be necessary after all.

Dr. Wayne Tody, chief of the DNR's Fisheries Division, said Monday that 50,000 lake trout will be planted in Charlevoix in 1971—the same number as planted in local waters last year.

Dr. Tody also said Petoskey also would get the 100,000 trout originally earmarked for the Little Traverse Bay area.

Last week, reliable reports had it that the total plant in Charlevoix and Petoskey would be cut back from 150,000 to 125,000 because of a shortage of young trout at federal hatcheries.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last Wednesday adopted a resolution protesting the cutback and the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce instigated a petition drive asking the DNR not to lower plantings in northwestern Michigan.

"The lake trout has fared exceptionally well in our northern waters and has proven to be an economic boom to all northwestern Michigan, resulting in a substantial increase in the number of sport fishermen visiting our area," the petition reads. "We feel any decrease in plantings will result in diminished catches and have an adverse effect on both the economy of the area and northwestern Michigan growing reputation as a mecca for lake trout fishermen."

The number of trout to be planted will be decided officially by the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission at its meeting in Milwaukee March 9.

The 150,000 trout to be planted in Charlevoix and Petoskey waters this year is still well below plants of 260,000 in 1966 and 200,000 in 1967 from which last year's bumper crop of lake trout were taken.

Dr. Tody said there would still have to be some juggling of the planting schedule, with fewer lakers going into Lake Superior than had been originally planned. Grand Traverse Bay also was expected to be decreased from 50,000 to 25,000.

He said the cutbacks were discussed because federal hatcheries have only three million trout to divvy up, compared to four million last year.

Consumers to Spend $1.1 Million On Big Rock Plant Improvements

Consumers Power Co. will invest a record $253 million in 1971 for expansion and improvement of its facilities, including $1.1 million at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant of Charlevoix.

The announcement was made by Northwest Division Manager Bob D. Hilty. The division is headquartered in Traverse City.

The 1971 construction budget is the largest in Consumers Power's history, said Hilty. It is part of a long-range program in which the company expects to commit more than $1.5 billion in capital investment over the next five years.

More than $201 million will be spent this year to expand electric generating capacity and transmission and distribution facilities. Expenditures for the utility's natural gas system will total over $32 million. More than $19 million has been allocated for construction of service and office buildings and purchase of equipment and vehicles.

The budget includes investments of $11.4 million for environmental controls and $2.5 million for research into environmental protection and pollution abatement. These efforts range from installation of particulate removal equipment at electric power plants and retirement of obsolete, coal-burning facilities to participation in research projects seeking to control gas emissions from fossil fuel plants.

The largest single project is at Ludington where Consumers Power Company will spend $54 million in 1971 on construction of a pumped storage hydroelectric plant and associated electric transmission facilities. The power station, a joint effort of Consumers Power and Detroit Edison Company, will be completed in 1973 at an estimated cost of $340 million.

Hilty said increased customer requirements in the division will necessitate extensive improvements at electric transmission substation facilities. The Riggsville substation, near Cheboygan, and the Homestead 46,000-volt line are being renovated.

Plans call for work to begin at the Boardman and South Boardman substations, near Traverse City, and the Farr Road station, near Manistee. Transmission line extensions are also scheduled.

At the Big Rock Point nuclear plant, enriched uranium fuel costs will require an expenditure of more than $1.1 million in 1971. The plant's auxiliary core spray system will be improved.

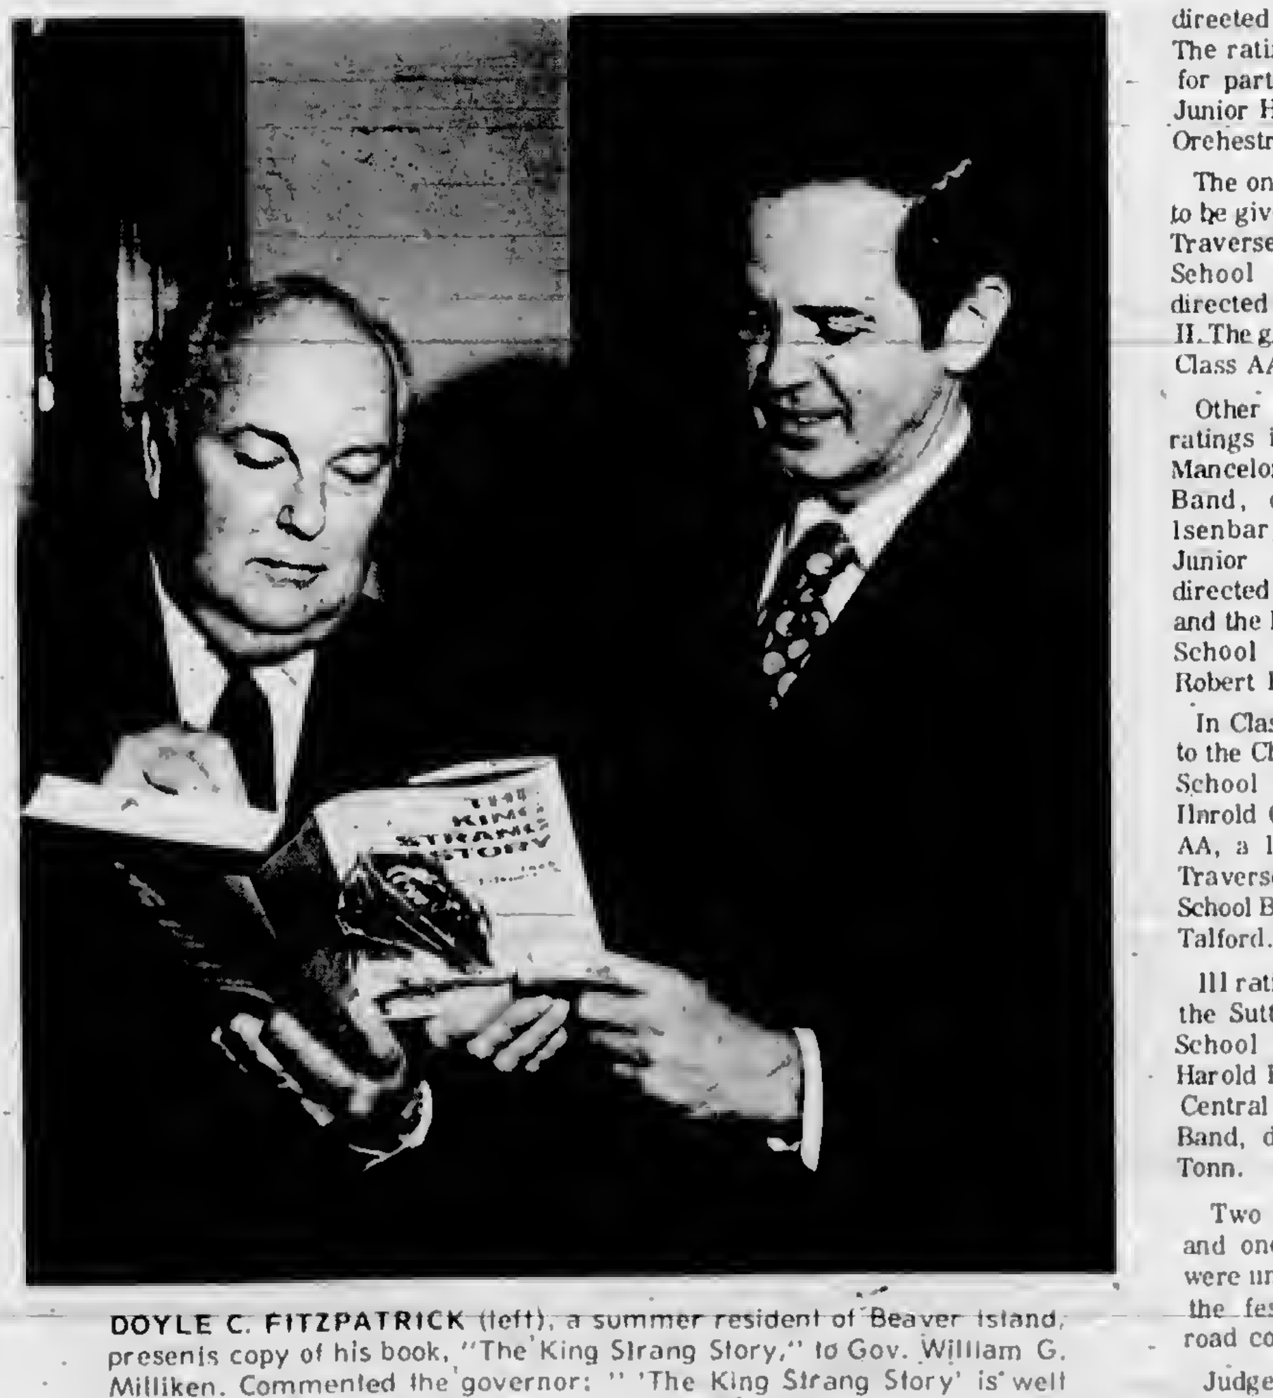
Snowmachines, Pickup Truck Cross on Ice

Ice formed a bridge between Beaver Island and the mainland during the deep freeze last week, but the ice field broke up during the rain and winds over the weekend.

Beaver Island correspondent Marian Martin reports that Jim Martin and his cousin, Marky Martin, drove a pickup truck from St. James to Cross Village Tuesday, Feb. 16. Once they hit the mainland, they headed for Grand Rapids.

The following day, five members of the Beaver Island Snowmobile Club visited Cross Village, traveling over the ice on their machines. They returned the same day.

Making the trip were Russell Green, Phil Gregg, Archie LaFreniere, Bill Wagner and a Mr. Brimble. They reported a good trip.



DOYLE C. FITZPATRICK (left), a summer resident of Beaver Island, presents copy of his book, "The King Strang Story," to Gov. William G. Milliken. Commented the governor: " 'The King Strang Story' is well documented and well written, and should make stimulating reading for those interested in the exciting chapter that Beaver Island brings to Michigan's history." A review of the book appears on Pg. 8 of this week's Courier.

Band Narrowly Misses I Rating

The Charlevoix Middle School Band, directed by Gary Stutzman, narrowly missed a I rating at the District II Junior High Band and Orchestra Festival Saturday at Charlevoix High School.

The bandsmen, who were participating for the first time in a festival, received one I rating and 2 II ratings by the concert judges and a II rating by the sight-reading judge, giving them a final rating of II.

The only band to receive a I rating was the Boyne City Junior High School group, directed by Dennis Johnson. The rating qualifies the band for participation in the state Junior High School Band and Orchestra, to be held in April.

The only other organization to be given a I rating was the Traverse City Junior High School String Orchestra, directed by Stephen Hobson II. The group participated as a Class AA Junior High School.

Other groups receiving II ratings in Class D were the Mancelona Junior High School Band, directed by Terry Isenbarger; Central Lake Junior High School Band, directed by James Schoensee; and the Kalkaska Junior High School Band, directed by Robert Pfeuffer.

In Class C, a II rating went to the Cheboygan Junior High School Band, directed by Harold Corhhill, and in Class AA, a II rating went to the Traverse City Junior High School Band, directed by Greg Talford.

III ratings were received by the Suttons Bay Junior High School Band, directed by Harold Fisher and the Benzie Central Junior High School Band, directed by Cameron Tonn.

Two bands from Gaylord and one band from Onaway were unable to participate in the festival because of icy road conditions.

Judges for the event were James Hewitt of Flint, Edsel Farnham of Clio and George Anderson and Devere Fader of Saginaw.

It's Charlevoix Against Onaway On March 3

Charlevoix has been paired with Onaway in the first heat of the Class "C" District tournaments next week in Charlevoix.

The Rayders will meet the visitors at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 3, in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

The first game in the tourneys will be Tuesday, March 2, when Boyne City will meet Alpena Catholic Central, also at the Charlevoix gym. That game also starts at 7:30 p.m.

The winning teams will play in Charlevoix Friday, March 5 at 7:30, with the winner going to the Regionals in Grayling.

The pairing was performed Monday afternoon at the High School by Dale Burge, Charlevoix athletic director; Don Holmes, principal and athletic director of the Onaway High School; and Bud Neidhamer, athletic director of Boyne City High School.

The names of each of the four teams were sealed in capsules and selected at random.

The Charlevoix team, which was drawn last, will use the south basket and bench, occupy dressing room "B" and dress in dark jerseys.

Student tickets for the tournament games are on sale at the respective schools for 75 cents. Adult general admission tickets cost $1.25 and may be purchased at the door.

Deer Herd In No Danger, Burris Says

Conservation Officer Harley Burris at Boyne City reports that Charlevoix County's deer herd is in no great danger after the recent blizzard, but he imagines the situation will be touch-and-go as the winter progresses.

Bullet Wound Fatal To Noel Thompson

Noel E. Thompson, 79, an avid outdoorsman and hunter, was shot and killed accidentally Feb. 16 at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown of Eveline Township.

Although it is uncertain how the accident happened, Dr. Robert G. Martin, medical examiner, says Mr. Thompson was hit by a bullet from a .35 caliber rifle he was carrying.

A heart patient, Mr. Thompson may have been hit by the bullet after suffering a seizure and slipping and falling on the ice in the yard at the Brown farm. He reportedly was on a fox hunting expedition at the time.

Funeral was held at the Watson Funeral Home in East Jordan Friday, Feb. 19, the Rev. Lester Priest officiating. Burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

Mr. Thompson was born in Greenup County, Ky., June 21, 1891, and moved to Alha in Antrim County as a young man. He was married to the former Lula Hale at Bellaire in 1910.

He worked for the railroad and later farmed in Eveline Township.

He moved to Englewood, Ohio, in 1950 and after his retirement lived in Mason, Mich.

Following the death of Mrs. Thompson on May 23, 1964, Mr. Thompson lived briefly at Houghton Lake before returning to Eveline Township to live with his daughter, Mrs. Brown.

He is survived by five sons, Ivan J. of Crystal Falls, Arney W. of Lansing, Leonard A. of Holt, Ezra N. of West Milton, Ohio and Duanne C. of East Jordan; eight daughters, Mrs. (Ada) Brown of East Jordan, Mrs. Percy (Merta) Brown of Pontiac, Mrs. David (Helen) Simpson of Rector, Ark., Mrs. Gene (Arless) Townsend of Lansing, Mrs. Edward (Gwendolyn) Perry of Romeo, Mrs. Daniel (Wava) Sinclair of Butte Des-Marts, Wisc., Mrs. Charles (Virgileen) Fairbanks of Norman, Okla., and Mrs. Roger (Irma) Benson of Leavenworth, Kans.; 37 grandchildren; 20 great grandchildren, and a sister, Elsie, of Miami, Fla.

City Wins Extension

Word has been received from state Sen. Robert W. Davis (R-Gaylord) that Charlevoix has been granted an extension until May 15 for the awarding of contracts on the proposed waste water treatment plant.

New bids on the plant were scheduled to be opened Tuesday afternoon at the Charlevoix City Hall.

Original bids for general construction and electrical work were rejected by the council on grounds they were too high.

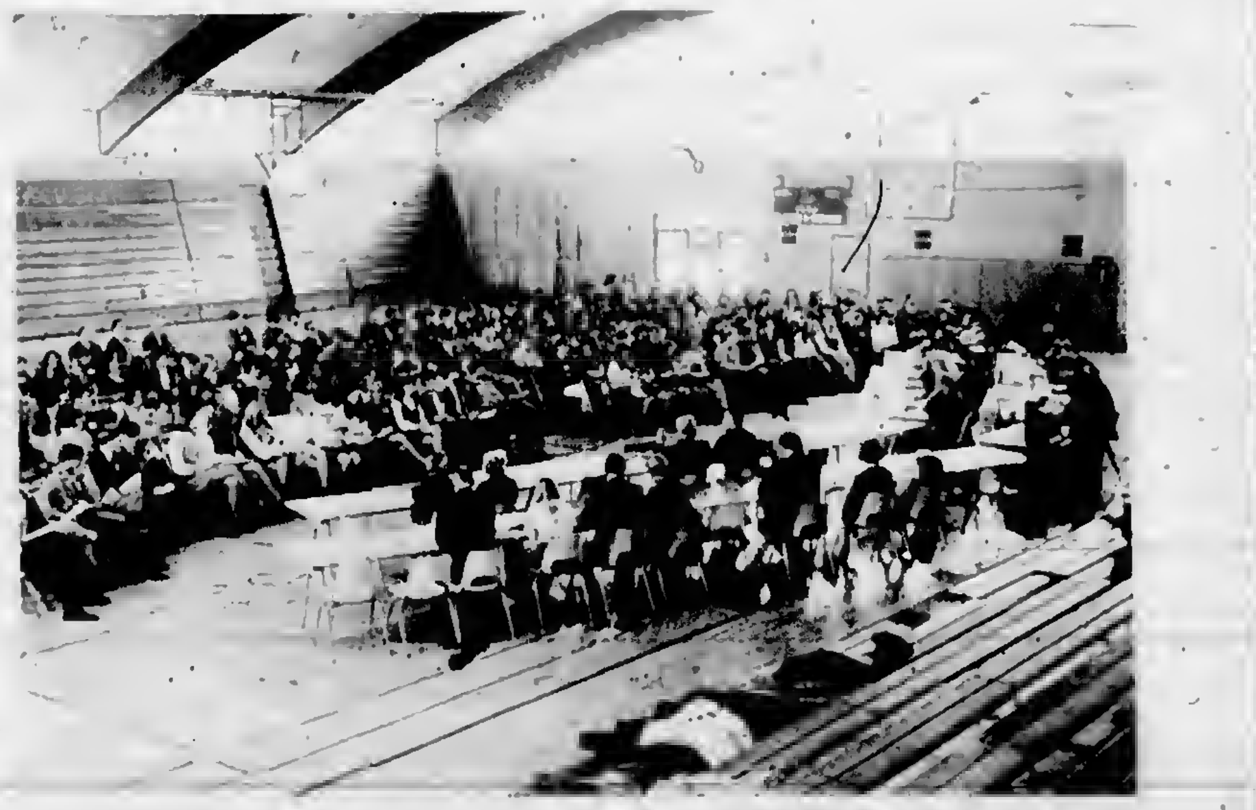
The extension means that Charlevoix will be eligible for state and federal assistance on the $1.5 million project.

Date Changed

The date of the PTO meeting has been changed to March 24 at the Elementary School.

Band Dinner

Charlevoix Band Boosters will sponsor a ham dinner at the Elementary School Cafeteria Thursday, Feb. 25 from 5 until 7 p.m. Proceeds will benefit Charlevoix school bands.



HUNDREDS of high school seniors in Charlevoix and Antrim counties jammed the Charlevoix High School gymnasium Monday for the annual Government Day seminar. Experts in the fields of health, education, welfare, law enforcement and other fields were on hand to answer questions.

Rehabilitation of the spillway at the Hodenpyl hydroelectric dam on the Manistee River will begin this year, said Mr. Hilty.

The division's electric distribution system will also be augmented. North of Bates, the Angell substation will be completed. Improvements are being made at the East Jordan substution. A 46,000-volt line is being constructed in the Petoskey area.

The budget contains allocations for additions at the Shanty Creek, Manistee, Honor, Kingsley and Cadillac substations. The Frankfort and Interlochen substations are also being improved.

More than $700,000 has been budgeted for installation of underground electric services in the division. Hilty said the company expects to install more than 1,400 underground services for residential and commercial customers.

Distribution line extensions to service additional customers will cost more than $600,000 in the division during 1971. Another $175,000 has been allocated for support facilities for these customers.

A new service center is being built at Cadillac with expenditures this year totaling $300,000. The budding is scheduled for completion in 1972 at a cost of $1.1 million.

At the Cheboygan service center, a building addition is being constructed. Renovations are continuing on a building at the Traverse City service center to house office personnel and storage areas.

The Northwest Division, according to Hilty, serves nearly 85,000 electric customers and more than $1,300 natural gas customers. The division encompasses 5,837 square miles and includes all or portions of 19 counties in northern lower Michigan.

Consumers Power provides electric and natural gas service in 67 of the 68 counties in the Lower Peninsula. It has 1,082,000 electric customers and 854,000 gas customers.

Weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Matchett and Tim were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Matchett of Cedar Springs and Miss Joyce Matchett and fiance, Mr. Steve Tehozeski, both students at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Warner of Muskegon spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Warner and family. On Saturday evening the Larry Warners hosted a family party. Those who attended were, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Warner and son, Bobert, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Warner, Mrs. Homer Warner and Mrs. Harrison Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Murry and baby girls, Kristin and Kimberley. All enjoyed slides of reunions of years back and music.

Mrs. Charles Britton and Mrs. Howard Campbell, two of our busy homemakers, now have another project. They are leading the 4-H Sewing Club with 21 members enrolled. It is good to see the 4-H clubs starting up again in this neighborhood.

Our sympathy goes out to the family of Mrs. Bertha Roberts who passed away at her home Feb. 17. She will be sadly missed especially by our family as we were next door neighbors for the past 30 years.

WEATHER REPORTS

The first systematic weather reports in the United States are attributed to the Reverend John Campanius Holm, chaplain of a settlement near present-day Wilmington, Del., who began making regular observations only 24 years after the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620.

Rayders Win Squeaker Over Boyne Ramblers

The Red Rayders took a squeaker from Boyne City Saturday night with a score of 50-48.

Although Charlevoix started out with a healthy 14-7 lead in the first quarter, Boyne City racked up 14 points in the second period, leaving the half-time score at 22-21, in favor of Charlevoix.

The Rayders came back in the third period with 17 points, against 11 for the Ramblers, edging the score up to 39-32 at the three-quarter mark.

Boyne City staged a scoring spree in the final period, adding 16 points to their tally, but it wasn't enough to offset the 11 points earned by the Rayders.

The final seconds of the game were hectic, with the outcome hanging in the balance until the final whistle.

High point man for Charlevoix was Bill Carey, who scored 13 points on 6 fieldgoals and 1 freethrow.

Larry Potter and Tim Carey has 11 each, Potter on 4 FG and 3 FT and Carey on 5 FG and 1 FT.

Debaters Place First

The Charlevoix Debate Team placed first in the District Tournament that was held in Johannesberg on Feb. 3. The district tournament is first in the elimination series which includes district, regional, semifinals and finals.

The regionals will be held in Mt. Pleasant Thursday, Feb. 11.

Schools participating in the district tournament and their win-loss records are as follows: Charlevoix, 5-1; Onaway, 4-2; Elk Rapids, 3-3; Fair View, 3-3; Inland Lakes, 2-4; and Johannesberg, 1-5.

To be eligible to go to regionals you must have a win-loss record of 4-2 or better. Winners of regionals are determined by elimination. A school receiving two loses is not eligible to go on to the semi-finals held in Ann Arbor.

Charlevoix's varsity team is made up of Cathi Baldwin, Rindi Luedke, Nancy Fochtman, and Pam Alspaugh. On the back-up team are Trudi Goldstick, Sue Luedke, Suellen Kayner and Nikki Ballard.

Rayder Jayvees Lose to Boyne City

Charlevoix's junior varsity cage squad dropped a close one to their Boyne City counterparts Saturday night, 55 to 51.

The junior Rayders led at the end of the first period, 17-16, but trailed the Boyne City squad for the remainder of the game. The score at the half was 31-30 and at the end of the third period 45-44.

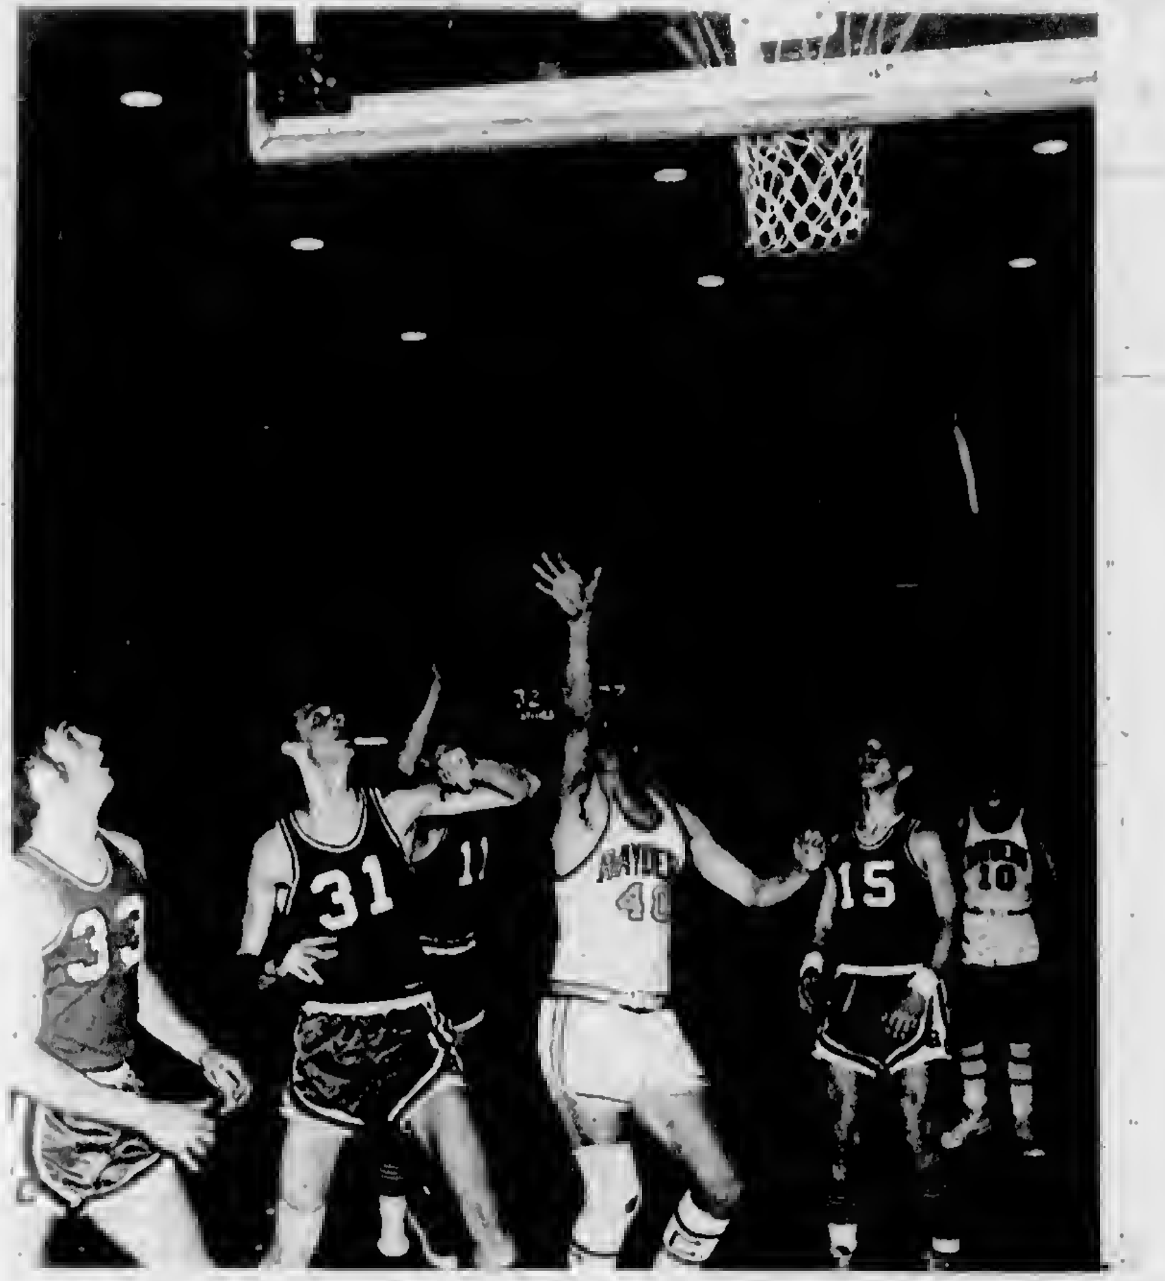
In the final period, the young Ramblers scored 10 points to Charlevoix's 7, breaking the one-point margin.

High scorer for Charlevoix was Vince Left, with 17, followed by Randy Woods, 14; Lee Simpson, 12; Dennis Crain, 6; and Dale Boss and Clint Berlage one each.

Behrens and Stanek shared scoring honors for Boyne City with 13 points, followed by Elzinga, 11; Kowalski, 10; and Poineau and Moody 4 each.

CENTURY OF SKIING

Michigan has been a leader in promoting skiing since the Civil War; according to the Michigan Tourist Council. The first ski club in the United States was organized at Marquette in 1863 and the National Ski Association was founded at Ishpeming in 1904, home of the National Ski Hall of Fame.



BRUCE MEGGISON returned to the boards Saturday night in the game with Boyne City after a lay-off of more than a month due to a leg injury. He was hurt Jan. 15 in the Rayders' last game with the Ramblers. Here he is surrounded by four-fifths of the Rambler squad.

VanderArk Ellsworth Fire Chief

By Anne Osterbaan

Ellsworth firemen elected Willard VanderArk chief at their annual election recently.

Serving with him will be Jerry Ewing, assistant chief; and Bud Tornga, secretary and treasurer.

Other members of the Fire Department are Allen Vanniman, Grant Hastings, Larry Essenberg, Arthur Drenth, Marvin Wynsma, Andrew Kooyer, Arthur Ruis, Levi Donaldson, Chester Drenth, Chester Farrell and Barney Smith.

The volunteers meet once a month during the winter and twice a month during the summer and stand ready to serve all property owners in the Ellsworth area.

The Fire Department has suggested a few simple rules to help them do their job:

--Keep the telephone number handy — 588-2100.

–Give your name and the exact location of the fire.

–If you are a newcomer, give the former owner's name if possible so that the firemen will be able to pin-point the scene without difficulty.

Assistant Chief Ewing is a relative newcomer to the area, but has had many years experience as a fireman in southern Michigan. He and his wife manage Denny's Grocery Store.

'King' Strang: Tryant or Giant of Compassion?

Author Takes Fresh Look At Beaver Island Patriarch

By BOB CLOCK

James Jesse Strang, "King" of the Beaver Island Mormons, has a new champion in the person of Doyle C. Fitzpatrick, whose first book, "The King Strang Story" is off the press (Notional Heritage, Lansing, $7.95).

Unlike other biographers, and there have been dozens of them in the past century, Fitzpatrick believes that Strang has been one of the most sorely maligned characters in American history.

Fitzpatrick, who owns a summer home on Beaver Island near the site of Strang's "castle", admits that his whole purpose in writing the book is to vindicate Strang "as a man and a sincere public servant."

"His early contributions to the State of Michigan have long been unrecognized," Fitzpatrick writes in his preface. "Lack of recognition today is due to 120 years of disrespect by a misinformed public. Historically, the name of James Jesse Strang represents a mistrusted tyrant. There is every proof that he was not, that he actually was morally excellent, honorable in principle and a dedicated servant concerned with our national human welfare and a genuine concern for his Saintly flock on Beaver Island."

Fitzpatrick charges that Strang character has been tarnished by a host of 19th century feature writers who wove their tales about the Mormons on Beaver Island from "semi-truths and fabrications gleaned from completely biased Gentiles who hated them.

"They colored their mock-research toward one goal: selling their literary works. Tabloid editors bred this type of writer to guarantee active circulation. Facts merely complicoted the whole operation of making money," Fitzpatrick writes.

In the next 280 pages, the author picks fights with practically everyone who has ever discussed Strang in print in an unfavorable light, which is unfortunate, because Strang, like all men, was neither all good or all bad.

In his efforts to defend Strang, Fitzpotrick glosses over such obvious questions as Strang's inexplicable change of heart on the issue of plural marriages and why Strang's first "spiritual wife", Elvira Field Strang, should have found it necessary to masquerade as a man and go by the name of Charlie Douglass during the early years of their marriage.

Fitzpatrick covers the "Battle of Pine River" (now Charlevoix) in some detail from the Mormon point of view. The "battle", as you'll recall, took place July 13, 1853, when Strang sent two boatloads of Mormons to the rag-tag fishing community at the mouth of Pine River to recruit men for jury duty at St. James, then the seat of Emmet County.

Quoting from historian Milo Quaife and Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney Williams, author of "Child of the Sea" who lived at Pine River at the time, Fitzpatrick tells how the Mormons had delivered their message and had returned to their boats when the fishermen let loose a "murderous fire from both beach and bluff" and took chase.

According to Mrs. Williams' version of the incident, her half-brother, Lewis Whitney, started across the beach to the Mormon boats carrying his rifle when "for some inexplicable reason hesitated, looked nervously around and began to examine the hammer of his gun. A sharp report rang out. The boy on the beach gave a startled cry and clutched the calf of his right leg with both hands."

Fitzpatrick contends that only suicidal tendencies could have induced any of the Mormons to fire upon the boy first. He believes that young Whitney, in his excitement, fired his own weapon and that the bullet struck him in the leg.

Of course, historians have assumed that Whitney was fired upon by the Mormons, who had four weapons concealed in one of the boats, and that the fishermen on shore opened fire when they saw Whitney had been injured.

In any event, the Charlevoix fishermen chased the Mormon visitors out into Lake Michigan where they finally found refuge aboard the bark Morgan enroute from Buffalo to Chicago. Six of the 14 were injured in the running gun battle.

Needless to say, Fitzpatrick doesn't think much of Mrs. Williams as an historian.

"The King Strang Story" is amply illustrated by numerous pictures of Strang and members of his family, photocopies of manuscripts and other documents relative to the Mormon Church, and a beautiful reprint of an artist's conception of Strang's idyllic life on Beaver Island, showing the "King" and his family languishing among palm trees and other tropical greenery in northern Lake Michigan.

As a biography, "The King Strang Story" leaves much to be desired, since it depicts Strang as a man without a single character flaw, which is sheer nonsense.

And although the book is well written and carefully documented, it suffers from a lack of organization which the reader is apt to find confusing.

It also contains a welter of Strang genealogical data dating back to the 1600's, including a 15-page reprint from the "New York Genealogical and Biographical Record," which surely is of little interest to anyone outside of the Strang family.

Indeed, the whole book includes a great deal of extraneous matter totally irrelevant to Strang and his people, including a lengthy treatise on George J. Adams, one of Strang's lieutenants, and how he fared after Strang exiled him from the island in 1850.

A native of St. Johns, Mich., Fitzpatrick is an alumnus of Michigan State University and has been actively interested in American history, particularly the Strangite Mormon phenomena.

According to the publishers, Fitzpatrick "has lived in the Lansing area for 40 years, collecting papers, manuscripts, photographs and books about Michigan's early statehood, specializing on the life and times of James Jesse Strang. Having decided to write a factual story about "King" Strong, the Yale University Library authorized, for the first time, a cumplete microfilming of their Coe Collection of Strang Americana, the largest known.

"Over a period of 20 years, contact with General Motors Corp. included ownership of Sales Promotion Co. and the vice presidency of Industrial Display Corp. Following this, the author joined General Motors, spending nearly half his life with Oldsmobile Division, where he is now supervisor of art.

"As a member of the Michigan Historical Society, the author believes that much of America's folklore is fanciful and unreliable...some of it even untrue."

Fitzpatrick anticipated that all of the reviews of "The King Strang Story" would not be exactly favorable:

"Had the writer championed the public and private life of James Strang by writing a novel about him, perhaps less literary difficulties may have been encountered," he remarks in his introduction. "Instead, a portion of this work includes reviews of previous publications. This places the writer in a rather uncomfortable position as 'critic,' but does not indicate skill in judging the literary merits of others.

"The primary purpose of this narrative is to set the record straight.

"This subject may also have been more entertaining as a novel. The decision to write a historical foult-finder was not easy, and the method may be somewhat unique. To successfully point a critical finger at faulty, erroneous, fabled, untrue and imaginary statements about James Strang demanded thorough

Charlevoix COURIER Editorial page

New Administration Should Be Exciting

The Courier offers congratulations to Andrew "Andy" Essenburg jr. on his nomination at the polls Feb. 15 as Charlevoix's next mayor.

Barring a write-in campaign, the Republican candidate is assured of a clean-sweep in the April 5 general election, since no mayoral candidates filed on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Essenburg won the election over incumbent Mayor William Fochtman with a margin of 84 votes, 566 to 482, in one of the biggest primary election turnouts in Charlevoix history.

As a newcomer to the political arena, Mr. Essenburg is the first to admit that he will need all the help he can get from the council and other city officials in learning the ropes of city government.

But we are confident that whatever assistance he needs will be forthcoming in ample measure.

We wish that Mr. Essenburg had served a couple of terms on the council before assuming the mayor's chair, but then again the United States has been served well by presidents who had only a nodding acquaintance with the executive branch before assuming office.

In fact, there may be some positive advantages to stepping into any job "cold," so to speak, because the old tried-and-true ways of doing things may not be the best ways after all.

One thing is for sure: The Essenburg administration will be an exciting one, no matter how you look at it. The new mayor isn't a man to mince words and he has some pretty definite ideas about the direction Charlevoix should be headed.

For the good of Charlevoix, we hope Mr. Essenburg will be able to change those city government policies that need changing and to keep those that have stood the city in good stead.

The real trick is differentiating between the two, but in this respect we feel Mr. Essenburg is fully qualified for the task at hand.

Let's Let Shoppers Park on Bridge-st.

Dick Oestrike, manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, thinks Charlevoix businessmen should give more consideration to their patrons in the matter of parking.

At a recent city council meeting, Oestrike pointed out that many Bridge-st. shop owners and their employes use up practically every available parking space — all day long — in front of their places of business.

As a businessman himself, Mr. Oestrike says it doesn't make sense to force potential customers to park a block or two from your place of business just because you arrived early and were able to pick off the most convenient spot for your car.

And although Courier employes have been guilty of the same thing, we have to concur with Mr. Oestrike's observations.

Whenever possible, downtown business people should attempt to use the off-street city lots or side streets for their vehicles and leave the Bridge-st. parking spaces for stop-and-go shoppers.

Needless to say, the problem is unique to the winter months when the parking meters come down to facilitate snow removal. In the summer, most of us park along any of the unmetered streets rather than run out every hour or so to plunk pennies in the meter.

We hope merchants and their employes take Mr. Oestrike's suggestion to heart. It just doesn't make sense to inconvenience our customers for the sake of our own convenience.

Capitol Report

By Sen. Robert W. Davis

Ordinarily because they are filled with statistics, budgets make rather dull reading.

But the detailed budget submitted a few days ago to the Legislature by Gov. William G. Milliken makes some rather interesting reading.

Following are some sentences excerpted verbatim (although without continuity) from the budget report:

The general fund-general purpose budget proposes expenditures of $1,974.4 million, an increase of $225 million, or 12.8 percent, over this year's expenditures.

The budget anticipates revenues $1,9[illegible]6.1 million. Predicted surplus by June 20, 1972 is $11.7 million.

It is imperative that there be a slowdown in state expenditures. We can no longer afford to increase appropriations at a rate more than twice that of the increase in revenues.

Major expenditures are not for operation of state departments or agencies but are for the needy (welfare) or to local school districts (school aid) or to higher education or for the care of mentally ill or retarded patients.

The bulk of state appropriations is not to support the government in Lansing but for the support of government and people at home.

If significant expenditures slowdowns are to be made, they must occur in three areas where the greatest expenditure increases have occurred.

Of all 50 states, Michigan has fewer state employees per thousand population (exclusive of education) than any state except Ohio.

Between 1965 and 1971 inclusive, general fund appropriations in Michigan rose $1,100 million. Of this, education, health (mostly mental health) and welfare accounted for $1,066 million, over 90 percent of the increase; whereas the rest of state government increased only $94 million.

The forthcoming fiscal year should be a year of strong economic growth. An increase of $220 million in general fund-general purpose revenues, or 13.5 percent, is anticipated.

Automotive sales which dropped to 8.4 million last year are expected to reach 9.8 million this year.

The sharp fall in interest rates has sparked a substantial increase in home construction activity.

As large as the rates of gain in revenues are, current prospects are that unemployment will continue to be a problem in our state throughout 1971.

Education remains the largest single area of state government responsibility and $975 million of the proposed general fund allocation together with $472 million from the school aid fund represents the state's investment in educational programs ranging from elementary schools to post doctoral training at our colleges and universities.

Approximately 50 percent of state general fund spending is devoted to education.

'Super Star' Stirs Anger In Reader

February 17, 1971

Letter to the Editor
Charlevoix Courier
111 Bridge
Charlevoix, Mich.
Re: Opera, Jesus Christ Super Star

Dear Sir:

I write this because there has been a maze of controversy on the sound-off program and because there just isn't time enough for one person to explain a point in any detail.

My first impression of the theme to Super Star was that the Bible says the Lord is not the author of confusion and it is unquestionably confused. The same description goes for the entire "opera". I taped it when it was aired by W.J.M.L. and even going over it many times leaves much that is not discernible.

What I have been able to understand makes my heart ache for into the mouth of my Savior they place such incongruous words as "I tried for three years; if I only knew; what's my reward for dieing, God; oh God I'm thirsty; I must be mad, must be outta my head to think you'll remember me ten minutes after I'm dead; I got no kingdom in this world. I'm through; you'll be lost, so lost after I'm gone; God, I'll take your poison, your cross;" and much, much more.

Those who do not know the Scriptures would find nothing wrong in these things, but they are all contrary to the Jesus of the Bible. I can't keep still and see anyone take my Savior and turn Him into this character. The "I got no kingdom in this world, I'm through" for instance is a far cry from the "My Kingdom is not of this world", which He did say. Heart-filled Christians have Him in their hearts through the Comforter (Holy Spirit) and certainly are not "lost, so lost".

While they had Jesus wurrying about his reward, they had Judas declaring to the Sanhedrin that he wanted no reward, he had not come of his own accord, he was damned for all time and then later on he (Judas) says Jesus killed him.

As bad as I believe the words to be and as repulsive as the music is to me, I think there are far more damaging psychological aspects. Christ is pictured as a whimpering, helpless man, "just a man", who certainly could not be a Savior. He is left in the tomb without a hint of the resurrection, and yet they have Judas sing after he (Judas) is dead with lyrics superimposed into this era saying Jesus didn't plan things very well, he should have come now because in 4 B.C. there was no mass communication.

Jesus, "The same yesterday, today and forever....." can and will save anyone young or old from sin or torment and give strength to keep from dope or any other evil, but this character is so adversely presented that true values are lost.

The real pity of this whole thing is that this Jesus is likely to be used in young people's groups all over this land without benefit of Biblically based analysis. I pray that with a little encouraging to ". . . .search the Scriptures daily, to see if these things be true. . . " Can be promoted and that potential Christians will recognize Christian pollution.

This is far more important than any denomenational interpretive difference.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Everett (Rosalie) Ottinger

Hawaii and Charlevoix Both Beautiful

Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Sir:

Hawaii is beautiful but so are Charlevoix and Antrim Counties. I have been in Hawaii for about the last 20 years, but all this time I have kept my acreage on U.S. 31 near Eastport, Michigan.

When I returned to visit in December I realized the excellent ecology of your area. I am proud that I own property in your area.

The purpose of this short letter is to thank those officials and citizens who have had a hand in keeping your county beautiful. I shall be glad to return to Michigan for this reason alone.

Sincerely,

Doggy Dieters

By Bob Clock

I hadn't intended to write anything about Weight Watchers Internotional for the next few weeks for fear of giving the impression that I'm on the corporate payroll. I'm not.

But a problem has arisen in our household relative to Weight Watchers that demands an immediate solution. Perhaps you can help.

Ever since I joined Weight Watchers, our dog, Ginny, has put on so many pounds that she is the laughing stock of all the canine's in town.

Of course, it is no secret why Ginny is getting fat. She eats all the table scraps and leftovers that I used to nibble on after the meal was over.

My big problem is that I don't like to see food wasted. If one of the kids would leave half a hamburger, heavily laced with mustard, I would somehow manage to sneak it over onto my plate, mustard and all, and devour it, although I'm not all that crazy about anything with mustard on it.

Or if there were a dollop of mashed potatoes left in the serving dish, I would scoop it onto my plate rather than see it go to waste.

It was the same story with candied sweet potatoes, creamed green beans or asparagus tips smothered in hollandaise sauce. I would clean them up rather than put Judy to the trouble of stashing them away in the refrigerator as leftovers. I learned through bitter experience that Judy is not one for heating up leftovers of any ilk. She just leaves them in the refrigerator until they turn gray and then throws them out.

But since I joined Weight Watchers I eat so many ounces of this and so many ounces of that, and that's it. If there is any food left on the table at the end of the meal, it goes directly into the dog's dish and from there to the dog's digestive tract where it turns to fat.

Complicating the problem is the fact that the poor beast gets very little exercise in the dead of winter. The snow is too deep in the yard for her to run and the little path I have managed to keep open down to the driveway is so icy she can hardly keep her footing, as clumsy as she has become.

Furthermore, the squirrels and crows that keep her hopping during the summer have long since disappeared and she has drifted into a life of somnolence and complacency. When she isn't eating, she is dozing in the big overstuffed rocker in the living room, turning occasionally to relieve her acid indigestion.

I know the solution to the problem: Take her off leftovers and table scraps and put her back on a diet of dog meal and hot water. But I still have this hang-up ubout food going to waste. I would rather have the dog eat it than to let it turn grey in the refrigerator.

I think perhaps the time is ripe for Weight Watchers to start a chapter for dogs. We wouldn't hove to call it Weight Watchers, but something catchey like "Doggy Dieters" or "Kanine Kalorie Kounters" might go over big with the kennel crowd.

We could have all the fat dogs in town meet once a week for a weigh-in and then give them stern little lectures about the dangers of overeating and how unseemly it is for any dog to have to wear a size 18 collar.

The big problem, I suppose, would be getting dogs to eat from three to five helpings of fruit a day, but we could probably get around that with vitamin pills.

One thing is for certain: We have to act fast if we're going to save the squirrels and the crows. When they see Ginny waddling after them next spring they are going to die laughing.

Dear Ann Landers

By JIM FITZGERALD

Dear Ann Landers:

That letter you had in your column the other day really shook me. It was about the new widow who thought she'd been married to the greatest guy in the world. But, right after he died, the bereaved woman and the children began pawing through Dad's personal belongings, probably looking for insurance policies. And they found "a collection of pornographic magazines and books, stacks of obscene pictures and a suitcase filled with stag movies."

Suddenly, their hero became a dirty old man. A sad thing.

I don't want this to happen to me, Ann. Could you suggest a good hiding place?

No, I don't have a collection of dirty pictures. I used to, but my mother found them after I got drafted. She didn't have the decency to wait until I died. She had my belongings rifled and my room rented before I finished eating the box lunch the Blue Star Mothers gave me when I boarded the bus at the draft board.

But there are other things I wouldn't want my family clucking over while the undertaker is wondering how many chins the family would like shown.

Naturally, I am not going to tell you what these things are, Ann. My wife reads your column every day. Some days she memorizes it and gives recitations while tap dancing. Some days she clips it and puts it in the toe of my sock, or pastes it on the TV screen. If you published a list of my secret possessions, Ann, my wife would probably serve it for lunch. I couldn't stomach that.

But I will give you a hint, Ann, to aid you in advising a hiding place. My secret things are perishable. They probably shouldn't be hid where the mice might get at them, or where a smell might become offensive.

Currently, I am blinding my family with my footwork. That is, I switch hiding places regularly. This is necessary because my family is a bunch of Dick Tracys. They suspect I know they often search the house in my absence.

I know this, Ann, because I make skillful use of my hippie-haired daughter's hair. Single strands of the stuff are all over the house anyway. I take near-invisible hairs and wrap them around my personal boxes, or tie them across my personal drawers and doors. I check later and, if the hairs have been disturbed, I know the prowlers have been afoot. I then use these hiding places because I figure the snoops won't be searching them again soon. As long as I live, they'll never find me out, heh, heh, heh.

But what about after I'm gone, Ann? It bothers me to realize that my secret things will be found and my true self will be unveiled to my family's shame and shock. And besides, the big pigs will eat what they find.

What is the solution? Please answer soon, Ann. I'm not getting any younger and my daughter is getting bald.

Air Pollution Bills Offered

State Rep. Charles Varnum (R-107th District) and State Sen. Robert Davis (R-37th District) have introduced concurrent bills in the House and Senate to empower cities, villages, townships or counties to enact ordinances to control air pollution.

Rep. Varnum and Sen. Davis went on to explain that "The problem of air pollution control is a serious one and it is becoming more complex every day. We need every legislative tool at our command if we are to effectively combat this increasingly serious problem."

"We do have state laws governing air pollution control but there are times when the problem can be handled more effectively and more expeditiously from a local level."

For those reasons, they have introduced a bill to give local units of government the power to enact air pollution control ordinances.

Rep. Varnum and Sen. Davis said the bills provide that, in case ordinances adopted under the measure conflict with each other, the more restrictive ordinance shall govern.

Recount Team Is Thanked

Letter to the Editor:

We would like to thank and congratulate the team of State representatives from Lansing who came to Gaylord last week to handle the recount for Mr. Johnson and Rep. Friske.

The meeting of instruction the day before was handled real fair and all questions were answered clearly and kindly.

It is good to know that we have a program here in Michigan to protect our vote, and know that if any questions are brought up they will be settled fairly.

reviews of all known important publications written about him.

"'The King Strang Story' represents a clearing house for overhauling the 120 year accumulation of historical deception about James Jesse Strang, the Mormon 'King'.

"Strang was a giant of human compassion on this fascinating Lake Michigan paradise known as 'Beaver Island.'

Fitzpatrick is mildly critical of present day Beaver Islanders for their so-so attitude toward Strang:

"Destiny may have placed James Jesse Strang on this beautiful, isolated island far out into Lake Michigan. Beaver Island, because of him, has a richer heritage than most citizens of Michigan comprehend, more, certainly, that the present island inhabitants are aware of."

Eskimo Igloo Offers All Comforts of Home

It's hard to beat an igloo for economy, simplicity, and speed of construction.

A skilled Canadian Eskimo couple can build one in less than an hour, complete with skylight, using only a simple bone knife.

The dome-shaped snow houses still are widely used in the central and eastern Canadian Arctic, but their days appear to be numbered. Frame houses rise in many Eskimo communities, and tents are more popular than igloos on hunting and camping trips.

The igloo never caught on with Alaskan Eskimos, although they occasionally improvised snow shelters on hunting trips.

Traditional igloos are made from blocks of compressed snow fashioned into a circular structure, the National Geographic Society says. The best snow has a consistency that will allow a footprint about half an inch deep.

The Eskimo picks a clear, level spot on the snow and plots a circle 10 to 15 feet in diameter. Then he carves blocks of snow from within the circle and lays them around the perimeter, thus excavating and raising the walls of his new house at the same time.

The snow blocks are piled in a narrowing circle until they form a hemisphere. An opening is left at ground level for an entrance, and another near the top for light.

A piece of clear lake ice fills the highest opening to form a window or skylight. An ideal window pane is hard to find. Some Eskimos search out the precious chunks of ice weeks before igloo-building time.

Once the snow-block beehive is up, cracks are sealed with loose snow. A chimney allows warm air from oil lamps to escape and prevents the house from settling round the occupants' shoulders. Most of the melting water runs down the rounded sides instead of dripping.

Eskimos occasionally paper the dome of the snowhouse with old magazines or newspapers. The pages freeze to the snow blocks and prevent dripping.

"A world of warmth, comfort, and life opened to us," recalled a National Geographic writer who visited an igloo only a few hundred miles from the North Pole. "The domed snowhouse was about 12 feet in diameter. Light flooded through a slanted pane of smoothed ice set into the roof.

"On an upended crate burned an open stone lamp, its wick drawing polar bear oil from the bowl. In one corner lay a red haunch of bear meat. A blue fox skin hung from the wall. Fondling an infant, an Eskimo mother squatted on a snow platform warmly spread with skins and blankets; it served as handicraft shop, living room, and bedroom."

The evening ended with a concert. After putting the baby to bed, the parka-clad wife played a lullaby on a fiddle made from orange crates with a bowstring fashioned from seal sinew.

State Snowmobilers Spin $22 Million Into Economy

The fast-growing sport of snowmobiling is expected to pump more than $82 million into the state's economy this year, according to the Michigan Department of Commerce.

"Snowmobiling is making a substantial contribution to the overall economy of Michigan," said Richard E. Whitmer, the Department Director. "But more importantly, it is putting a new economic premium on the vast snow-covered reaches of the north, which have long been out of the economic mainstream."

The snowmobilers will spend an estimated $56 million for new machines this winter and an additional $26 million in related costs.

Those costs include $4.9 million for equipment and clothing, $2.6 million for repairs and maintenance, $4.8 million for food and lodging, $6.8 million for fuel and other supplies and $6.9 million on the autos used to haul the machines.

These estimates are included in a survey conducted by the West Tourist Association and financed by the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, a federal-state agency devoted to spurring economic development in 119 counties in northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

According to the survey, snowmobiling is typically a family activity and about one-third of the owners have at least two machines.

Statistically, the average snowmobile owner is 42 years old and the father of two. More than likely, it is a craftsman, foreman, manager or proprietor of a business with an annual income of $10,500.

He also likes to get away from it all. About one-half of the snowmobile operators said they intend to take at least one overnight trip on their machine. And some said they plan as many as six such trips.

The snowmobile in Michigan is used almost exclusively for recreational purposes, including racing. Only three percent of the owners reported using their machines for "required transportation."

At last count, there were more snowmobiles registered in Michigan than in any other state. The Secretary of State's office registered nearly 150,000 snowmobiles in fiscal 1969-70 and collected more than $274,000 in fees. In addition, the state has realized nearly $4 million in sales taxes on snowmobiles since 1965.

This Week in Lansing

By Rep. Richard Friske
106th District

State Representative
Richard Friske
106th District

In my report last week I mentioned some of the highlights of Governor Milliken's 1971-72 general fund budget. Since then I've had additional time to study his proposals so I can make a more detailed report to you this time.

The total executive budget calls for expenditures of about $1,974 billion, leaving an expected surplus in June, 1972, of $11 to $12 million if revenue projections are correct.

The Governor is proposing that we increase spending by some 12.8 percent, a figure considerably lower than the average 19.2 percent yearly increase in spending over the last five years. He is projecting a revenue increase of 13.5 percent from present sources which is well above the average yearly increase of 7.2 percent over the past five year period.

As the Governor sees it, the only hope for avoiding a tax increase next year is for the Congress to pass a revenue sharing plan, thus returning large amounts of money to the states on a "no strings" basis. This is made to sound as if no one had to pay for that. The Governor declared with counting on such action would be irresponsible, and I certainly agree with that.

While the proposed budget is "a tight one," it is also called a very carefully drawn "priority budget." The Governor has had all state departments review their operations from the ground up, rather than simply taking previous appropriations and adding new cost estimates. As a result, a number of "low priority programs" have been dropped or reduced.

Some of the "priority items" selected by the Governor for additional emphasis are drug control, housing, urban assistance, pollution control, youth, improved management, crime control and public health.

The Governor has recommended cuts in total funds, compared to initial appropriations last year, for only two departments. One of them is his own, the Executive Department, pegged at $3.8 million compared to $3.9 million last year. The other is Commerce Department, which was budgeted at $18.4 million last year and at $18.0 in the recommended budget for 1971-72. Other departments all would receive increases in varying degree, although there are economies suggested in all areas.

Now it is up to the Legislature to determine whether the Governor has proposed the best way to meet our budgetary needs. His proposals will be studied in depth. If the Legislature develops a sound, workable alternative to his plan, I'm sure the Governor will be willing, as always, to give it full consideration.

The determination of spending priorities, whether a tax increase next year is unavoidable and, if so, how best to allocated the increase, is sure to occupy the lion's share of the Legislature's time during the first half of this year.

Unity of purpose and action. . . payment of current debts . . and the inclusion of youth were the major themes as Michigan Republicans met in convention last week.

William F. McLaughlin of Northville was re-elected State Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and told the delegates that "the search for a majority" is the overriding goal of the party during the coming two years.

Mildred Dunnell of Macomb County was elected the party's Vice-Chairman while Inkster Mayor Edward Bivens was named to fill the 2nd Vice-Chairman post.

The accent was on youth with the selection of Ed Wyszynski, 20 year old delegate from Roseville, to serve on the State Central Committee. An historic first for young people within the party.

In addition to including young people in the party functions, the delegates adopted a resolution supporting the 18-year-old vote, long a part of the state Republican platform.

In other areas the convention acted to oppose any new tax increases, develop a system of mass transit, reclassify marijuana from a narcotic to a dangerous drug, voiced support for reforming the national welfare programs and supported efforts to reform the financing of Michigan's public schools.

Remember this is a report and does not mean that I agree with the resolutions or many of the other programs as set forth.

FHA Loans $1.5 Million In Three-County Area

The Bellaire Office of the Farmers Home Administration loaned a total of $1,574,290 to Antrim, Charlevoix and Otsego counties residents in 1970, the federal agencies county supervisor, Ernest C. Schuette, reported today. This is the highest amount of money ever loaned in a one year period by the Bellaire Office.

Some $1,287,440 was advanced under the Farmers Home Administration Rural Housing Program. This money provided better and more comfortable housing for 28 Antrim families, 43 Charlevoix County families and 22 Otsego County families. Of these loans, 26 were made to purchase or build new housing. These new houses on full basements averaged about $18,000 in cost and 1,125 square feet in living area. Those on crawl spaces averaged about $17,000 and included 1,061 square feet in living area.

Another $112,600 was advanced to buy or build rural rental housing facilities, making 12 apartments available for rent by low and moderate income families.

Farm operating loans in the amount of $68,700 were made available. These loans are made to farmers for farm "operating" type expenses.

Loans to farmers for farm real estate type expenses were made in the amount of $105,550.00.

A grant in the amount of $7,000 was made to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission for the purpose of developing a sewer and water utility plan for Charlevoix County.

Some of the people who made possible the 1.5-million dollar year were Mrs. Norma Hughey, County Office Clerk; and area committeemen Louis Franckowiak, George Klooster and Frank Sneathen. Farmers Home Administration designated attorneys to do the real estate title work. They were Richard Zerafa in Antrim County, Donald Berlage in Charlevoix County and Randall O'Rourke in Otsego County.

Details on any phase of the Farmers Home Administration program may be obtained from Supervisor Ernest Schuette or office clerk, Norma Hughey, in the Bellaire Office.

Library Notes

This week, Library Notes would like to suggest some titles which can best be described as very light, very entertaining and very pleasant books. The memory of eech will stay with the reader for a long while.

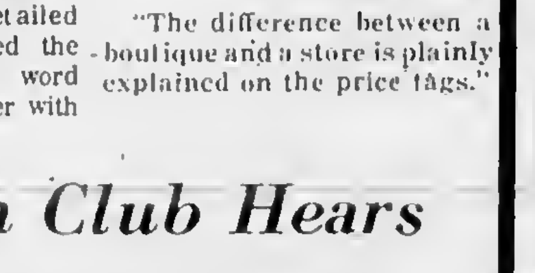
"The Moonflower Vine" by Jetta Carleton was first published in 1962, but it has proven to be just as popular now as it was when it first came out. It is a homespun tale about a close family who live in the western side of Missouri. There are three grown daughters besides Pa and Ma. There are five sections in the book with one section devoted to each member of the family. We learn a great deal about the family itself from the viewpoint of each member. It is strictly a women's book and highly recommended.

"A Hat on the Hall Table" is described as being "a rollicking romp through the rectory." One of the funniest books to have come out since 1967, it concerns what it would be like to be married to a minister who is just getting started in a new parish. The sketches by Susan Perl are delightful, the dialogue is hilarious. It is especially recommended to be loaned to a friend in the hospital who might need a chuckle or two.

Margaret Steen can always be counted on for good reading. She never fails to tell a fine story. "Candle in the Sun" is no exception. A slim volume with a fast, lively plot.

"Northern Lights" by Roger Vercel is a book for everyone. It is a fierce book in a way. It is the story of a young man's final decision regarding whether or not he should go on a two-year expedition to the Arctic and retrace his famous father's journey. A shy, delicate young scholar, he was totally unlike his father and grew up hating him. By the end of the book, the boy has learned startling things about the great archeologist. It is a timely book because of the present generation gap. Sometimes both the father and the son are at fault, and this story creates a new understanding of the problem.

"The Moon Spinners" by Mary Stewart is the final title suggested for light reading. The setting is a village in Greece. The author, always a master artist in detailed descriptions, has filled the book with delightful word pictures woven together with an exciting plot.



"The difference between a boutique and a store is plainly explained on the price tags."

Garden Club Hears Pollution Report

Members of the Garden Club held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Donald Couse, with Mrs. Alexander Gibson as cohostess.

Several items of business were discussed and a most interesting letter read from one of the members, Mrs. Hubert Paddock, who spends the winter in Venice, Fla., with an article from a Florida newspaper on industrial pollution.

A lesson was given by Mrs. Ralph Hamilton on "Unusual Containers for Flowers Arrangements" which was most interesting and instructive. Several miniature arrangements were given as prizes by Mrs. Hamilton.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. John Michael March 9 with a lesson "Eight Great Women in the Garden World by Edith Stenman.

Church to Show Indian Movie

The film "I Saw the Aucas Pray" will be shown at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church on Sunday, Feb. 28, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

The movie deals with changes that have taken place among the Auca Indians of Ecuador, South America, in the 15 years since five young Christian missionaries working among them were slain.

The movie is sponsored by the Junior Youth Fellowship.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison are spending several weeks vacationing and visiting friends and relatives in Florida.

Mrs. Rose Gilbert came from her home in Detroit this past weekend and will spend two weeks in her summer home.

We are extending congratulations to Mrs. Evelyn Vanderwall on graduating from the Traverse City School of Nursing last Friday Night and has returned home for several weeks.

Six members of the weekly club were guests Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ross Alexander.

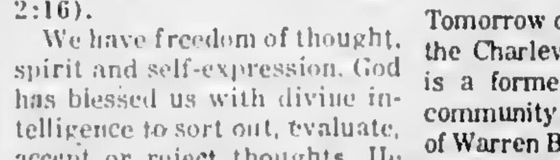
The Youth Fellowship had a cake walk in the church dining room Sunday evening which was most successful and enjoyed by everyone who attended.

Our community is extending its sympathy to the family of N.E. Thomson who was accidently killed when a gun he was carrying discharged Tuesday afternoon at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Brown with whom he has been making his home several years. The Thomson family lived in Ironton when their family were attending school and will be remembered by many local friends and neighbors.

The Ladies Fellowship met at the church Monday evening and made plans for a bake sale to be held in the dining room after the morning service Feb. 28.

We have been enjoying some mild weather for several days, sunshine and with an average daily temperature between 30 and 40 degrees. Nights have been between 20 and 30. All this is reducing the ice and snow accumulation on roofs that has caused several roof collapses the past few weeks and is also settling snowdrifts and banks on the road sides. I don't think I have ever seen such thick ice on roofs and along eaves as there has been this winter. We hope that problem is over for this year.

We are extending congratulations to, Nikky Ballard on winning the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow contest for 1971 for the Charlevoix School. Nikky is a former resident of our community and the daughter of Warren Ballard and the late June Ballard, who was soloist in the church choir several years. We wish Nikky the best wishes of our community in further success in her education and future.



Live as free men . . . live as servants of God.—(I Pet. 2:16).

He has given us freedom of spirit for spiritual growth and fulfillment. He has given us the opportunity to express ourselves. Let's apply them all constructively for a better world.

To Mate Mink And Ferret

Michigan State University scientists will try to mate a mink to a ferret this spring.

They hope to produce an animal with the fur of the mink and the placid personality of the ferret.

They could end up with the homely hide of the ferret and the testy temperament of the mink.

If they succeed they'll call it a merret.

If they don't they'll call it a fink.

"to sin by silence when they should protest makes cowards of men."

REV. BRUCE PIERCE, pastor of the United Methodist Church in Boyne City, will fly from New York City today to confer with peace negotiators in Paris on ways of ending the war in Southeast Asia.

Boyne City Pastor Flying To Paris on Peace Mission

A young Boyne City pastor is flying to Paris, France, (Wednesday) today to see what he can do personally about ending the war in Southeast Asia.

He is the Rev. Bruce Pierce, 29, pastor of United Methodist Church in Boyne City, who plans to meet with peace negotiators as a member of the Citizens' Conference on Ending the War in Indo-China.

About 170 delegates from all across the United States are taking part in the conference. Rev. Pierce is the only delegate from northern Michigan.

The trip is sponsored by three organizations: Clergy and Laymen Concerned, founded in 1965; the American Friends Service Committee, founded in 1917; and the Fellowship of Reconciliation, founded in 1915.

Rev. Pierce says the delegates hope to meet with peace negotiators in large and small groups in an effort to determine first hand the requisites for peace in Vietnam and other nations in Southeast Asia.

A native of Chicago who lived in Ludington for several years, Rev. Pierce received his B.A. degree from Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., and his master of divinity degree from Drew University in New Jersey in 1968.

Before assuming the pulpit at the United Methodist Church in Boyne City last July he was Methodist pastor at Delta Mills, a suburb of Lansing.

Rev. Pierce says the delegates will be gone about one week.

After his return, he hopes to pass on what he has learned about ending the war to his fellow residents of northern Michigan.

"I hope we will be able to make some real difference after we get home," he said.

Sunday, March 7, Rev. Pierce will be replaced in the pulpit by Martin Lee of London, England. He expects to be home by the following Sunday.

PTO Will Sponsor Voc Careers Night

The Charlevoix Parent-Teacher Organization is planning a Vocational Careers Night April 14, according to Rev. Duane Imig, chairman.

Rev. Imig said that of every 100 students who graduate from Charlevoix High School, only 25 receive college degrees.

He said that the Careers Night program is aimed at disseminating information about career opportunities to the remaining 75 percent of the students and their parents.

Rev. Imig and his committee are asking businessmen and tradespeople from throughout the community to take part in the program, offering advice on their particular career specialties.

They hope to have representatives on hand from industry, local government, law enforcement, conservation, general merchandising and the building trades to answer questions and discuss job requirements.

The group also expects to have information on medical, dental and nursing vocations that require special training.

Volunteers are asked to contact either Rev. Imig at 547-9446 or Jim Shepard, consultant on vocational-technical education for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, at 547-6504.

The meeting has been scheduled at the Charlevoix High School beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Charged

Richard Powers, 18; Mark Goethals, 18; John McDowell, 17; and Kenneth Fettig, 26, all of Petoskey, were to be arraigned in Charlevoix District Court this week on a charge of possession of marijuana. Arraignment was delayed one week to allow them to secure counsel.

BOY SCOUTS from Charlevoix Troop 43 competed with Scouts from throughout the area in the annual Klondike Derby at Young State Park Saturday during the blizzard. The Scouts demonstrated their skill at first aid, signaling, fire-building, compass reading and other Scout activities. The Beaver Patrol scored 21 points, the Rattlesnake Patrol 19 points and the Eagle and Flaming Arrow Patrols 17 points each. The meet was taken by the Owl Patrol of Walloon Lake with 27 points.

Ethics Stalls Action on Bids

$255 Separates Lowest Quotations

The Charlevoix City Council Monday night wrestled with the ethical question of awarding the general construction contract for the city's proposed waste water treatment plant to the second lowest bidder — rather than the lowest — in hopes of keeping some of the money in northern Michigan.

The council avoided making an immediate decision on the problem by calling a special session for March 8 in hopes that a member of the Ann Arbor engineering firm McNamee, Porter and Seeley will be on hand to offer advice.

The dilemma developed Feb. 23 when bids on the remaining two phases of the waste water treatment plant were opened at the city hall.

Low bidder was Clark Construction Co. of Lansing which submitted a quotation of $1,190,245.

Second low bidder was Shaw-Henderson Construction Co. of Cheboygan which came up with a figure of $1,190,500 — only $255 more than Clark's bid.

Tom Shaw, representing Shaw-Henderson, attended Monday night's meeting. He pointed out that his firm would hire about 25 workers locally. He also said it might be possible for the council to drop one of the "deducts" in the bidding, like paving the driveway or a special wall finish in the laboratory and office, which would make Shaw-Henderson low bidder.

Shaw said his firm has spent a great deal of time preparing two bids on the job and would appreciate the contract.

One of Shaw-Henderson's sub-contractors is Clarence Smith of Charlevoix who would work on site preparation.

When the first bids on the project were opened in December, Shaw-Henderson was low with a figure of $1,383,865.

However the council figured that the quotation was too high and asked for new bids after modifying specifications for the plant. The modifications in themselves should have resulted in a savings of about $60,000, according to engineers.

Although the new bids were still higher than expected, Mayor William Fochtman said the close grouping of bid prices has convinced the council that the new plant will cost about $200,000 more than anticipated.

After the December bid opening, contract was awarded to William Porter of East Jordan for construction of the forced main from the present sewage plant to the new location south of Boulder Park on the Lake Michigan shore for $153,970.

Another contract for construction of the outfall sewer into Lake Michigan was awarded Luedke Engineering Co. of Frankfort in the amount of $180,400.

Low electrical bidder in the second go-around was Southeastern Electric Co. of Bay City which quoted a price of $189,990.

Combined with Clark's low construction bid of $1,190,245,

Ski and Shore Opens Office On Bridge-st.

Ski and Shore Properties of Bellaire officially opened its Charlevoix office at the corner of Bridge-st. and Park-ave. Monday, March 1.

The real estate firm will specialize in the sale of resort and recreational property, homes, cottages and farms.

The Charlevoix office will be managed by Grant Rowe of Bellaire, assisted by salesman Gene Steele of Elk Rapids, Mrs. Jean Rowe and Mary Lynn Wood of Charlevoix.

The firm was started four years ago at Schuss Mountain and now has offices at Schuss, Shanty Creek, Bellaire and Charlevoix.

Rowe says he intends to invite townspeople in for coffee in about two weeks "as soon as we are settled."

Officers of the company are Richard E. Georgi, chairman of the board, and Hillary Shackford, secretary-treasurer and manager of the investment department.

4th Blizzard Socks City

The fourth major snowstorm of the winter socked the Charlevoix area Saturday morning.

Seven inches of snow, driven by winds gusting up to 80 miles per hour, sealed off country roads and made the main roads all but impassable.

At one point Saturday afternoon all snow removal equipment was called in when visibility was reduced to zero by the blowing snow.

Although county road crews worked all day Sunday and Sunday night, many roads in the eastern part of the county were still plugged Monday and school was cancelled in Boyne City, East Jordan and Boyne Falls.

Charlevoix apparently missed the brunt of the storm and Monday was a school-as-usual day for area youngsters.

Sheriff Philo Sumner reports that his men policed eight or ten "fender benders" during the storm, but that no one was injured.

Saturday's seven inches of snow brought the total for the week to 13.5 inches and the total for the season to date to 102.5 inches.

Monday and Tuesday, Charlevoix was belted by 6.5 inches of snow which made driving hazardous. However, the rest of the week was relatively mild with the temperature hitting 50 degrees on Friday just before the blizzard moved in from the southwest.

On Monday night, electric power in Charlevoix and Petoskey was off for about two hours when a power line feeding the area from Traverse City was felled by ice.

A Boy Scout dinner at the Charlevoix Elementary School was ended prematurely by the power outage, but the participants left the building without incident.

Saturday morning, a tree fell across a power and cable TV line in the Mt. McSauba area. The power interruption affected only a handful of homes in the area, but cable TV was down all over Charlevoix.

City electric crews put the lines back in service and TV reception was restored by 12:30 p.m., according to Mrs. George Baldwin at the Lake Charlevoix Cable TV office.

Total snowfall for the season through February is about 12 inches ahead of last year, according to Lloyd Kuebler of the U.S. Weather Bureau station at the city dock.

By the end of February last year, the accumulation totaled only 90.9 inches, compared to 102.5 inches this year.

Precipitation in February totaled 2.76 inches, including an even three feet of snow. February is normally a relatively dry month.

Precipitation in January came to 2.79 inches, including 25 inches of snow; in December 2.39 inches, including 26 inches of snow; and December, 2.07 inches, including 5.5 inches of snow.

Last winter, Charlevoix had 17 inches of snow in November, 14.4 inches in December, 43 inches in January and 16.5 inches in February for a total accumulation of 90.9 inches

Schools Need Additional 2.5 Mills for Operation

Proposed budget needs for 1971-72 school year headed the agenda at a special meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday.

In the discussion regarding budget needs, it was determined that it would be necessary to renew the 6½ mill tax levy that expires this year and levy an additional 2½ mills in order to maintain the programs the schools now offer and allow 6½ percent salary increases.

The millage would allow no additions to the existing programs. However, the increase would be necessary to compensate for the proposed cut in State Aid monies under Gov. Milliken's austerity program.

The Charlevoix School District, like all others in the state, must compensate for the loss of state aid by levying additional millage.

No definite decision regarding the final millage levy was made.

Robert Cook, president of the CEA who was present at the meeting, said that he hoped it would not be necessary to cut the existing program.

In other action, the board decided to develop a new board policy according to a code system and present it later for the approval of the board.

Decided to explore the possibility of employing consultant help in the field of long range planning for the school district. This would include the development of the school plant, population and program projections. It was decided to interview several consultant firms to determine the cost and the feasibility of employing such a firm.

—Accepted the resignation of two members of the faculty effective in June. They are Linda Steele, primary first grade teacher, and William Matchinski, eighth grade Social Studies teacher.

Supt. Robert Miller commented briefly on the recent conference of the American Association of School Administrators he and several board members attended. He said the major topics before the convention were that a separate Department of Education be established and given cabinet status and that the federal government should assume 1/3 of the cost of public education. He added that a more detailed report on the meeting held in Atlantic City would be given at the next meeting scheduled for March 8.

The board adjourned to executive session for evaluation of tenure teachers and those eligible for tenure.

Scout Cookie Sale Starting

Mayor William Fochtman has declared the week of March 7 through March 13 as Girl Scout Week in the City of Charlevoix.

To celebrate "their week," local Girl Scouts will begin selling cookies March 5. The girls also have been urged to wear their uniforms to church March 7.

COAST GUARD Group Charlevoix went out of business officially at midnight Feb. 28 and duties of the office were transferred to Group Sault. Men at group headquarters and the Charlevoix CG station presented nautical gifts to CWO Henry Brunet (left) and Lt. Cmdr. Donald Luedke at a going-away party at the station Saturday night. Mrs. Luedke is seated next to her husband.

Out-of-Town Kids Eligible for Fluoride

The topical fluoride program will be held again this summer for area children who do not drink from Charlevoix's water supply and for certain children who have only recently moved into the community, according to Mrs. W. F. Wilson, chairman of the Health Department 403 and Charlevoix Public School's topical fluoride committee.

Most of the children of Charlevoix have had the benefit of fluoridated water during the time that their teeth were developing and will receive no additional benefits from the topical applications of sodium fluoride, Mrs. Wilson said.

She said that three or four year old preschoolers, second graders, fifth graders, and eighth graders who drink from private wells or from non-fluoridated public water systems are eligible for the program as are eighth graders who have lived in Charlevoix less than seven years, fifth graders who have lived here less than five years, and second graders and preschoolers with less than three years residence.

Parents of eligible children have until March 5 to enroll them in the program she said. Those interested in having their children receive the topical fluoride but who do not have the necessary registration cards may contact her at 547-4351.

A fee of $4 to cover costs of operating the clinic must be submitted along with the registration card.

The procedure consists of four visits to the fluoride clinic. The child's teeth are cleansed on the first visits and a fluoride solution is applied directly to the surface of the teeth. The fluoride application only is then repeated during the three succeeding visits. This technique has been shown to reduce tooth decay by about forty percent compared with 60 to 65 percent reduction obtained with fluoridated water, Mrs. Wilson said.

In addition to providing protection against cavities, the program offers a valuable dental experience for children with no discomfort. Dental health education by the clinic personnel, including instruction in the proper method of brushing teeth, also is an important part of the program, according to Mrs. Wilson.

Michigan, which pioneered in the field of topical fluoride applications in 1949, leads the nation in the number of community programs in operation and in children treated. In addition to the program in Charlevoix, more than 40,000 children will receive applications in over 200 clinics scattered throughout the state. The state-wide program is supervised by the Dental Division of the Michigan Department of Public Health, which assists local groups in the organization state, recruits and trains dental and dental hygiene students, provides the fluoride solution, and overseas the program operation through periodic visits to the various clinics by staff dentists.

Micele-LaFreniere Rites Solemnized

By Marian Martin

Lois Ann Miceli became the bride of Joseph William LaFreniere in double-ring rites at St. Florians Catholic Church in Chicago Feb. 13.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Charles Miceli of Chicago. The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Elizabeth LaFreniere and Mr. Patrick LaFreniere of St. James, Beaver Island.

The Rev. Kuhn performed the ceremony, attended by 150 witnesses, before an altar decorated with pink daisies and white carnations.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Empire gown of white velvet with long sleeves and shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses, baby breath and carnations.

Maid of honor was Ellen Kot and bridesmaids were Donna Kubic and Janet Miceli. They wore floor length gowns of red velvet similar to the bride's. They carried bouquets of red roses, pink daisies, carnations and baby breath.

Kim Connaghan was flower girl and Michael Miceli was ringbearer.

Alvin LaFreniere of St. James was best man and groomsmen were Dennis Miceli and Larry Kubic of Chicago.

The bride's father hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall in South Chicago.

Out-of-town guests attended the wedding from St. James, Lansing and Ludington.

The couple plan to make their home in Chicago.

Self-Employed Also Must File Tax Returns

Persons with net earnings of $400 or more from self-employment must file federal income tax returns and pay a self-employment tax, Thomas A. Cardoza, IRS District Director for Michigan, reports.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 liberalized filing requirements for many taxpayers so that, for example, a single person without self-employment income is not required to file a tax return unless he had income of $1,700 or more in 1970. However, an individual must file a return if his self-employment income was $400 or more, even if a return would not have been required based on his total income.

By filing a return and paying a self-employment tax on part or all of his income, each self-employed person helps finance Social Security benefits that are payable to self-employed persons as well as wage earners.

Besides filing an individual income tax return, a self-employed individual must complete Schedule SE (Form 1040), Computation of Social Security Self-Employment Tax. Copies of Schedule SE (Form 1040) are available at IRS offices, Cardoza said.

FORMER STATE Treasurer D. Hale Brake was in town Monday to take part in Government Day at Charlevoix High School, attended by hundreds of seniors from throughout the area. Seated behind Brakes is Bruce Meggison, vice president of the Student Council, who welcomed guests to the school.

Five Mill Increase Asked by Ellsworth

Ellsworth voters will be asked to approve five additional mills to meet school operating expenses in a special election called April 12 by the Ellsworth Board of Education.

The election co-incides with another special election called by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for the same day. Intermediate District voters will be asked to approve one mill for vocational-technical education.

Richard Strong, superintendent of the Ellsworth Community School, said the five additional mills will simply allow Ellsworth to keep up with inflation, without adding substantially to the school program. The new millage will increase school revenues by about $24,000.

If approved by the voters, the new millage will be added to the 12 mills presently on the rolls for school operation.

Strong reports that the school district was on a firm financial footing during the 1969-70 school year, ending up with a surplus over expenditures of $22,396. The district ran $7,160 in the red during the previous school year.

The surplus funds have been used to pay for improvements at the school, including new library books and shelves, a revamped reading program which allows youngsters to progress from one reading level to another in an orderly fashion by means of tests, improvements to the school bus garage and fresh coats of paint inside the school building.

However, Strong says the school's present financial picture is not so bright.

The closing of Michigan Fruit Canners, which carried a personal property evaluation of $375,000, will mean a loss of about $8,000 to the school district.

Yearly evaluation increases will not offset the loss, Strong said.

In view of Gov. William Milliken's urging that local school districts provide for any increased revenue needs for the coming year, Strong does not believe the district can count on any increase in state aid.

Author Interviews Deserters

If you still believe that something noble can be salvaged from our military adventure in Southeast Asia, you should be grabbed by the ears and forced to read this new book.

Forget any questions of credibility that may have been raised by Lane's earlier "Rush to Judgment." To those of the Vietnam generation, "Conversations" is a gruesomely believable book.

The "Conversations" referred to in the title are with American servicemen who speak with agonizing candor about what they saw and did in Vietnam. There are 32 interviews altogether, half with deserters living in Europe and half with GIs who have honorably completed their service or who are still on active duty.

Each of the soldiers claimed to have witnessed or participated in one or more atrocities. Their statements collectively lay to rest the fairy tale that the massacre at My Lai was an isolated incident.

"It is easier to take a life when you are convinced that the person you kill is not really human. He is not Vietnamese. He is a 'gook'..

This is not pleasant reading if you are easily bothered by accounts of capricious shooting of children and old people, castrations, phosphorus bombs jammed into vaginas and ignited, breasts penetrated by bamboo spikes, electrical shock of men's testicles, prisoners dumped out of helicopters, sexual mutilations of dead bodies and mass rape.

Americans are still inclined to cleave to their traditional belief that sadism and torture tactics are not a part of the American makeup but after reading this you find it is American boys doing these things, not Hitler's storm troopers. "If you convince your soldier that the enemy is less than human, comparable to baggage at best, a child assassin at worst, and then inform them that their mission is to score high in the body-count exercise, you cannot feign surprise at what the war has become."

What is difficult to understand is the refusal or inability of many Americans, even after the My Lai disclosures, to believe that Johnny could really commit a war crime.

What about the housewife who wrote a letter to an editor protesting the publication of the pictures of My Lai, not because the people were murdered but because some of the children were naked?

Just where do we assign the blame for the wicked things some of our soldiers have done to the people of Vietnam?

If Americans know less than all there is to know about the terrible cost the war is imposing upon the civilian population of South Vietnam, they know next to nothing of the real cost America is paying for its adventure. The real price is the sacrifice of an entire generation.

This book all adds up to an overwhelming testimony about the horrors - and brutality of this war and what it is doing to our sons and brothers.

Red Rayders Dump Cheboygan 61-55

Charlevoix cagers defeated Cheboygan Tuesday evening 61 to 55 in a make-up game. The game was to have been played Feb. 5 at Cheboygan but was cancelled because of bad weather.

Charlevoix trailed for the first three quarters of the game, but then bounced back in the final stanza with 21 points, for a six point margin.

Cheboygan led 16-13 at the end of the first quarter, 30-23 at the half and 41-40 after three quarters, but managed to squeeze in only 14 points in the final period.

Bill Carey was high scorer for Charlevoix, plunking in 7 fieldgoals and 4 freethrows for 18 points.

He was followed by Larry Potter, 13 on 4 FG and 5 FT; Tim Carey, 10 on 3 FG and 4 FT; Roger Crain, 0 on 3 FG and 2 FT; Kevin Swanson, 7 on 3 FG and 1 FT; Jerry Pease, 4 on 1 FG and 2 FT; and Dave Swanson, one point on a FT.

Herzog, Anderson and King shared scoring honors for Cheboygan, with 12 points each, followed by Baker, 8; Fralick, 6; Watkins, 4 and Lindman, 1.

The Rayder Jayvees weren't so fortunate against their Cheboygan counterparts, losing 66 to 41.

The young Rayder cagers led at the end of the first period 13-11. However the Cheboygan team caught fire in the second period, scoring 23 points to Charlevoix's 12, for a half-time score of 34-25.

The Cheboygan team kept up its momentum in the third period with 20 points, dropping to 12 in the final stanza. Charlevoix was credited with 6 points in the third period and 10 in the finale.

High man for Charlevoix was Lee Simpson who scored 10 points on 4 FG and 2 FT. He was followed by Randy Woods, 9; Vince Left, 6; Dale Boss and Dennis Crain, 4 each; and Clint Berlage, Pat Doan, Ance and Bergmann, 2 each.

City Would Get $16,955 Under Revenue-Sharing

The city of Charlevoix would receive $16,955 in the first year under the Nixon Administration's proposed $5 billion general revenue-sharing program, according to tabulations released by U.S. Sen. Robert P. Griffin.

The figure is based on general revenues of $144,000 raised by the city.

Charlevoix County's share of the bonanza would be $51,453, based on general revenues of $437,000.

Griffin, as Senate minority whip, is a co-sponsor of the controversial revenue-sharing legislation in the Senate.

"Right now these figures are only numbers on paper," Griffin pointed out. "We have some distance to travel before revenue sharing is enacted into law."

Griffin noted that the figures do not reflect the $11 billion special revenue sharing program also proposed by the Administration, under which states and localities would have greater freedom in spending federal grant monies.

Griffin said the negative reaction from some leaders in Congress "indicates that the people who favor revenue sharing have a real selling job on their hands."

"As one member of Congress, I know the power of a well-written letter. City and county officials and other supporters should make their voices heard in the House of Representatives, because that's where this revenue-sharing ball must get rolling."

Griffin said that of Michigan's estimated share of $229.1 million, the state government would receive 56.24 percent and 43.76 percent would be passed through to city and county jurisdictions.

The total share for Michigan cities is estimated at more than $67 million, Griffin said. Counties are sluted to receive an estimated $29.7 million, and the estimated total for Michigan townships is $5.1 million.

Medusa Looks For Upturn This Year

Medusa Cement Co.'s annual report mailed to shareholders Feb. 18, shows billings to customers up 14 percent but net earnings down 27 percent for the calendar year 1970.

Net earnings dropped 34 percent from 1969, from $2.31 to $1.53, but dividends remained the same, $1.20 per share.

In their annual message to shareowners, President W. Fort and Board Chairman Ellery Sedgwick jr. pointed out that 1970 was a difficult year "for the national economy, for the cement industry, and for your Company."

"To our misfortune, cement use in our primary market area was off 12 percent, due partly to lengthy strikes in the building trades," Fort and Sedgwick reported. "For 25 years there has not been such a divergence of our area from the national average."

Across the country, cement use was down only five percent in 1970.

"Costs of operation soared, especially kiln fuel," the report continues. "Labor, transportation, electric power, depreciation and interest expense all advanced materially. Fortunately, cement prices advanced modestly, and a rigorous expense reduction program did produce results."

The report also points out that:

–Several small construction material companies were acquired during the year, contributing to earnings.

–Concern over air pollution resulted in a proliferation of new regulatory agencies and control standards in 1970. "Your company has been alert to this problem for a long time, as evidenced by the fact that 80 percent of our productive capacity meets these new stringent codes, and construction is presently under way to reach 100 percent compliance." This control is expensive to build, and expensive to operate. For this reason several producers have closed older high-cost plants. We hope that you as shareholders, and the public at large, will insist on equal enforcement of these regulations so that we will not be at a cost disadvantage with our competitors."

–Robert Fort was appointed chief executive officer during the year, a position formerly held by Sedgwick, and James E. Poole to executive vice president in charge of the cement division.

Fort and Sedgwick look for a modest improvement in the national economy in 1971, a larger gain in construction due especially to residential building, and "important recovery" in Medusa's market area.

They pointed out that although most of the cement industry must negotiate new labor contracts in 1971, "we anticipate a responsible settlement without a work stoppage."

At the annual meeting March 23, shareowners will be asked to vote on a proposed stock option plan for salaried employes.

Another I Rating For Band

Charlevoix bandsmen braved one of the worst storms of the winter Saturday to take part in the annual Band and Orchestra Festival at Petoskey Junior High School.

Although several members were unable to make it because of the blizzard, the Symphony Band, directed by C.A. Odmark won a first division rating by all four judges, qualifying the group for participation in the state Band and Orchestra Festival to be held in Kalamazoo May 1.

The Concert band, made up of freshmen and some sophomores, received a II rating by all four judges.

The first division rating earned by the Symphony Band was the 24th such rating won by Charlevoix bands in the last 25 years.

Other bands earning first division ratings among class "C" schools were the East Jordan High School Band, directed by Dwight Smith and the Gaylord High School Concert Band, directed by Gary Waldo.

Winning first division ratings in class "B" were the Petoskey High School Band, directed by Max Smith; the Cheboygan Area High School Symphony Band directed by Ron Smith; and the Rogers City High School Band, directed by Robert Cilke.

Second Division ratings were won by Inland Lakes, the East Jordan Concert Band, the Johannesburg-Lewiston band, and the Cheboygan freshman band.

Third division ratings were won by Harbor Springs and Onaway.

Bands from Boyne City and Gaylord and the Onaway Junior High School Band were unable to participate in the festival because of the storm.

91 Points - But Rayders Lose

Charlevoix scored more points against St. Ignace Friday night than it has against any team this season—but still lost to the Upper Peninsula squad 105-91.

The game was the last for both teams before going into the tournaments. Charlevoix has been paired with Onaway this Wednesday night at Charlevoix High School. Tuesday, Boyne City was to meet Alpena Catholic Central, also at Charlevoix.

St. Ignace led the Rayders from the start in Friday's game with quarter scores of 26-16; 51-34; 75-59; and the final 105-91.

Charlevoix's best quarter was the final one when the Rayders rang up 32 points, compared to 30 for the St. Ignace team.

High point man for Charlevoix was Bill Carey who scored 35 points on 15 fieldgoals and 5 freethrows.

Bruce Meggison was credited with 20 on 7 FG and 6 FT; Larry Potter, 11 on 5 FG and 1 FT; Tim Carey, 8 on 3 FG and 2 FT; Roger Crain, 7 on 3 FG and 1 FT; Kevin Swanson, 4 on 2 FG; Dave Swanson, 4 on 1 FG and 2 FT; and Jerry Pease, 2 on one FG.

Scoring for St. Ignace were Lester, 33; Savard, 27; Shunkovitz, 18; Donovan, 9; Powers, 6; Tarnutzer and Zagar, 4 each; and Neelis and Bomia, 2 each.

Charlevoix's JV team also was routed by its St. Ignace counterpart, 74 to 60.

St. Ignace led from the beginning with quarter scores of 17-12; 35-18; 58:31; and the final 74-60.

High scorer for Charlevoix was Lee Simpson with 26 points, followed by Roger Crain, 13; Randy Woods, Jim Ance and Pat Doan, 4 each, Clint Berlage and Dale Boss, 3 each; Vince Left, 2; and Klooster, 1.

RAYDER Kevin Swanson appears to balance ball on fingertips during high-scoring game with St. Ignace Saints Friday night. St. Ignace won, 105 to 91.

Consumers Chief 'Appalled' at Radiation Claim

James H. Campbell, president of Consumers Power Co., says he is appalled by the misleading discrepancies in a Feb. 9 statement issued in Michigan.

The statement by Dr. Ernest Sternglass of Pittsburgh claimed that radiation released by the company's Big Rock Point Nuclear plant had caused a rise in infant mortality in ten counties in Northern Michigan.

"The counties close to the plant actually show a decrease," Campbell said, "and at least one county with an increase is located 45 miles away from the plant and the prevailing winds are in the opposite direction from the plant."

Campbell noted that the Michigan Department of Public Health has thoroughly investigated the Sternglass claims and in a report issued this morning at Lansing reached this conclusion.

Based on the material used by Sternglass there is no logical reason to conclude that there is a connection between infant mortality and radioactive effluent from Big Rock Point reactor.

Campbell's comments were made soon after the department of Health issued the rebuttal paper which Campbell said "clearly shows that Sternglass's statistics lack credibility and logic." Further, Campbell said, "the conclusions drawn by Sternglass lack statistical significance, are misleading, and are based on Sternglass's own arrangement of data."

Don Van Farowe, chief of the radiation section of the Michigan Department of Health, said his staff checked infant mortality rates in the ten Michigan counties where Sternglass claimed increased mortality had occurred. Five of the counties showed a decrease and five showed an increase but on a random basis only, the report shows.

Even so, the overall infant mortality rate actually showed an increase of less than two percent, rather than the almost nine percent claimed by Sternglass, the report shows.

The Health Department's rebuttal of Dr. Sternglass is based on actual monitoring stations located at various positions and at various distances from Big Rock Point. These stations, said Van Farowe, show no radiation changes in the air that could be attributed to operation of the nuclear plant. The only radiation detected was directly traceable to nuclear bomb testing in other parts of the world, the report said.

In earlier statements, Dr. Sternglass claimed that infant mortality had increased in areas downwind from Dresden, Ill., plant of Commonwealth Edison Co. The Illinois Department of Public Health subsequently rejected these claims, pointing out that infant mortality actually had declined in those counties from 289 in 1960, when the plant began operating, to 206 in 1969. In any case, the health department said, the areas cited by Dr. Sternglass are upwind from the plant, not downwind.

Significantly, Campbell observed, the actual radiation releases at the plant during the period cited were less than three percent of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission limits. Six gaseous radionuclides detectable at the plant site during 1966, which were cited by Dr. Sternglass, are only radioactive for short periods. They cannot be concentrated in the food chain because of time lag, he said.

Dr. Sternglass claimed that gases are being inhaled, dissolved through the lungs into the bloodstream and are then carried to many parts of the body where they are incorporated in various tissues and organs.

Campbell observed "actual measurements of body burdens of radionuclides of all employers at the Big Rock Point plant, taken over a period of several years, has shown not one instance of any radioactive gas dissolved in blood, incorporated in tissue, or exisiting in the body in any manner whatsoever. This is particularly important since the employes live close to the plant on an average of 16 hours per day and work at the plant for eight hours per day. Hence, the actual measurement of an employe is a maximum case and yet shows no evidence of radio gas being incorporated in the body."

The 75,000 kilowatt Big Rock Point plant uses a boiling water reactor. Radiation monitoring was started before the plant began operating in 1963, and has been carried on ever since. Consumers Power maintains its own monitoring system and makes frequent reports to the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and to the state. The Department of Health also has monitoring stations, independent of those operated by Consumers Power. In addition, the Atomic Energy Commission conducts regular radiation checks of the air and water.

State Denies Link Between Radiation, Infant Mortality

A professor in the Department of Radiology at the University of Pittsburgh, has charged that infant mortality rates have increased significantly in recent years adjacent to the Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Station near Charlevoix. E. J. Sternglass issued his 10-page paper in January, and concludes that "gaseous emissions" have caused the rise in infant mortality figures.

Don Van Farowe, Chief of the Radiation Section, Michigan Department of Public Health says however, that the radiation section has had sampling stations on the Big Rock site and on a three-mile perimeter since before the plant was constructed. He said based on that sampling network, no radiation emissions from the plant have been detected off site.

Commenting on the Sternglass paper, Van Farowe said, "Using his (Sternglass') statistics for Charlevoix, the county in which the plant is located, and Emmet County, east of the plant and in the path of prevailing winds, there was a decrease in the infant mortality figures in 1966-67."

"Following the professor's line of reasoning," continued Van Farowe, "I selected Grand Traverse County, one of the counties included in the 10 Sternglass used as immediately adjacent to Big Rock Point. Most of the population of Grand Traverse lies 45 miles southwest of the plant and 180 degrees to the direction of the prevailing winds."

Van Farowe said according to Sternglass the increase in infant mortality in Grand Traverse County during that period was 51 percent . . . thus one could conclude using the Sternglass figures and logic, it is safer to live 8 miles from the reactor and in line with the prevailing winds, than 45 miles from the reactor and have the gases blowing away from you. This represents the error in the professor's conclusion, Van Farowe said.

Van Farowe said the monitoring system samples rainwater in the area, air particulates, air volatile and gamma external radiation. In addition, there are composite samplings made of milk from the area and from municipal water supplies.

The radiation chief said he would compile his sampling data as soon as possible for the period covered in the Sternglass paper and it will be made public in order that the residents be made aware of the protection and precautions taken to avoid any health hazards from the nuclear plant.

Dr. Kurt Gorwitz, Chief of Center for Health Statistics at the Michigan Department of Public Health said the Sternglass figures were obtained from the U.S. Vital Statistics and are not complete. He said the final figures for the years 1966-67 will be used in the paper Van Farowe is now working on.

Infant Mortality And Big Rock Point

The Courier has tried to keep a cool head and a studied indifference to the current controversy raging over Dr. Ernest Sternglass' contention that infant mortality in 10 northern Michigan counties has risen because of radiation emanating from the Big Rock Point Nuclear Power Plant.

Both Consumers Power Co., which owns and operates the plant, and the Michigan Department of Health have refuted the charge, pointing out that the counties closest to the plant actually have shown a decrease in infant mortality in recent years.

From the onset, we have been skeptical of Dr. Sternglass' charges, since the number of babies who die before reaching their first birthday is very small to begin with, and any attempt to dramatize increases or decreases in terms of percentages is bound to be misleading.

If one baby dies one year, and two babies die the next year, that's a 100 percent increase, yet it certainly doesn't indicate any epidemic of infant deaths.

Furthermore, Dr. Sternglass does not go into the cause of death in the infants who have died. Apparently none of the deaths has even had the remotest connection to atomic radiation.

We believe that our skepticism of Dr. Sternglass' claims is shared by the community as a whole. William Wilson, public information manager at Big Rock Point, says he has not received a single call from a worried local citizen since the controversy began.

Of course, complicating the public's comprehension of the alleged problem is the fact that the man-on-the-street wouldn't know a roentgen from a herd of wild elephants if he met them in East Park. The Atomic Age is still so new that the average layman has very little grasp of what is actually taking place at Big Rock Point.

We must rely on the word of experts in the field of nuclear energy to tell us whether or not the Consumers plant is safe. And their best scientific instrumentation says it is.

We cannot believe that the men and women who run the plant, and live with their families in nearby communities, would do so if there were the slightest indication that the Big Rock point plant is not as safe as it is humanly possible to make it.

Although we still have all of March ahead of us, there can't be much left of winter.

The old man with the frosty beard dealt the Charlevoix area its fourth knock-down, drag-out blizzard if the season on Saturday and surely that cantankerous old gent can't have too much fight left in him.

Furthermore there are signs of spring on every side.

Dairy Queens have reopened for the summer (Isn't that a lovely word: summer!) in Petoskey and Boyne City.

It is now daylight when kids board the school buses.

Sunsets, and there have been some beauts the past few weeks, are getting later (and prettier) everyday.

Open water has appeared in Lake Charlevoix and the wind has pretty much broken up the massive ice field that extended from Charlevoix to Beaver Island only two weeks ago.

The plants in the Courier office are all sprouting new leaves, thanks to the brilliant morning sunlight which streams in through our big front window across Round Lake.

Slush has become more of a problem that hard-packed snow.

Every roof in town has started leaking as the snow melts and water backs up under the shingles when it encounters stubborn ice along the eaves.

Furthermore, the calendar admits that March has already arrived, with April, May and June only a short distance down the pike.

Salute to Girl Scouts During 'Their Week'

Young people are facing enormous challenges on what the quality of life will be in the future. How they meet the problems of rapidly changing society will test their ingenuity, imagination and abilities. How they prepare themselves to meet these challenges is of utmost importance.

One youth-serving organization which is taking the lead in involving young people in many self-directed, self-planned projects is Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., which will mark Girl Scout week March 7-13. Some GSUSA endeavors are directly related to the quality of our country's physical environment; others concern the interrelationships of people, and youth participation in planning and decision making.

This concept of responsible citizenship and service with others has always been a basic one in Girl Scouting. Today's Girl Scouts are involved in projects to help close the gaps separating economic, racial, cultural, and age groups. Across the country, girls and adults from urban, suburban, and rural areas are working in partnership with national and local community groups toward these goals.

Prepared by their training, these girls give millions of hour of service to their communities. In day camps for ghetto children, in migrant worker camps, in Head Start programs, in various tutorial programs, in senior citizen projects, in hospitals, schools and libraries, on Indian reservations, and in hundreds of quality environment projects Girl Scouts of all racial, economic, and cultural backgrounds contribute their skills.

During this Girl Scout Week, marking the organization's 59th birthday, we extend our thanks and congratulations to the nearly four million girls, men and women in Girl Scouting.

Cuts Made Without OK From Reps

By State Rep. Richard Friske
106th District

The first round in the fight to revise the 1970-71 state budget in line with reduced revenues has been concluded. However, a major part of the effort is still to come.

The governor and the appropriations committees of the House and Senate have agreed on expenditure reductions totaling $38 million. The cutbacks including a $16 million reduction in state school aid and a $1.3 million cut in higher education aid, over $10 million in reclaimed grants which were found to be unnecessary due to over-estimations and other factors, a $6 million slash in capital outlay (building) funds.

Other economies were made by freezing job levels and other operational expenses of state departments, and elimination or reduction of other specific programs throughout state government.

The general membership of the Legislature had no voice in the decisions on these cut-backs. The law specifies that if unexpected economic pressures force expenditure reductions after the budget is passed, the decisions are to be made solely by the governor and the appropriation committees.

Many of us who were prevented from taking part in the decision were not completely satsified with the results. There were objections from several sources, for instance, to the cuts in school budgets.

However, the full Legislature will participate in the next round of budget revision, as we seek to eliminate a total potential deficit of $108 million. In addition to the $38 million in actual cuts, the governor has proposed a program to raise the other $70 million through fund transfers, accelerated payments. The plan calls for a transfer of $45 million from the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund (to be repaid over the next five years) and advancing corporate tax payments to provide the other $25 million to balance the budget.

I expect considerable debate on these proposals when they reach the House, and there will probably be discussion of alternative plans developed by legislators.

The biggest fight is likely to take place on the M.V.A.C.F. transfer. The secretary of state thinks the fund should receive interest on any money it loans the state's general fund. Some legislators agree with him, while others think the idea of the state paying interest on money it borrows from itself is a rather self-defeating proposition and I agree with the latter thought.

In the wake of the budget-cutting to make up for the 1970 economic slump and the revenue lost due to the auto strike, there was some encouraging economic news from the governor's office last week.

In his annual economic report, the governor said that 1971 economic slump and the revenue lost due to the auto strike, there was some encouraging economic news from the governor's office last week.

In his annual economic report, the governor said that 1971 should be a year of recovery throughout Michigan's economy. This recovery, he predicts, will show itself through increased personal income, lower unemployment, a slight slowdown in the price increase rate, greater consumer and business confidence, leading to expanded sales and an upsurge in construction. Nothing beats the hopes for the tomorrows.

All of us are hoping that the governor's predictions on the economic recovery are fully realized, and there does seem to be good reason for a measure of optimism. My only caution would be that we shouldn't count too heavily on a full recovery in planning budgeting and other factors for the coming year. Some leeway must be incorporated into our thinking, just in case the actual performance is not as rosy as the outlook.

The House last week defeated a bill seeking to require teaching of modern environmental problems in Michigan schools. There were 50 votes for the bill and only 38 against. However, for a bill to pass, it must receive the votes of a majority of the members serving in the Legislature, not just a majority of those voting. With membership currently at 109 (there's one vacancy) the minimum needed for passage is 55. The bill was reconsidered and kept alive for a possible second attempt at passage, as supporters hope to find at least five more votes among the members not voting on the first test. I strongly oppose the spending of our money for teaching of subjects that belong to good upbringing at home.

Michigan voters have twice rejected the 18-year-old vote in recent years. However, the federal courts have ruled valid the portion of a federal 18-year-old vote law which allows persons between 18 and 21 to vote in presidential and congressional elections. Using this as a precedent, strong backers of the lower voting age last week introduced a measure to bring the issue before Michigan voters again. If approved, their proposal would extend the 18-year-old vote to state and local elections

Baldwin Farms

The other day I was going through the mail and came across a press release saying that a Danny Baldwin was the new president of the Michigan Onion Growers' Association.

Danny Baldwin...Danny Baldwin. The name rang a distant bell somewhere in the hidden recesses of my memory, but I somehow couldn't hook a face to the name. There seemed to be a connection between "Baldwin" and "onions" but I couldn't quite pin it down.

Then it suddenly dawned on me. Back in the old days at Michigan State Danny Baldwin and I lived in the same dorm. He came from a farm near Stockbridge and we used to kid him about his dad being called the "Onion King."

Could this same Danny Baldwin now be president of the Michigan Onion Growers Association? To find out, I wrote to Danny Baldwin at the onion growers' headquarters in East Lansing.

I received my answer by return mail. It was indeed the same Danny Baldwin, married now and living in Jackson with a daughter 14 and a son 11. He is sales manager for the family business, Baldwin Farms, in company with his father, Veril Baldwin and brother Duane.

He sent along a brochure on the Baldwin Farms, which was certainly an eye-opener to what is happening in agriculture nowadays.

Although I have never lived on a farm, a good many of my relatives farmed for a living when I was a kid and I remember what a hard time they had supporting wives and troops of children on 40 acres and two cows. They eked out a meager living at best, and the handwriting was on the wall even then for the small independent farmer.

Judging from the brochure Danny sent me, farming has come a long way in the past generation. The Baldwin Farms for example, cover 2,500 acres, most of it organic peat soil, in the Stockbridge-Leslie area. In addition to the three Baldwins, the farm employs two foremen, one mechanic, one machinery repair man and from 10 to 15 tractor and machinery operators and other personnel, for a total year-round labor force of about 30 persons.

During the summer and fall up to 100 part-time hands are taken on to help with seasonal chores.

Although Veril Baldwin still wears the crown of "Onion King" more acreage is devoted to corn than any other single crop. The corn and silage are used to feed 600 head of beef cattle.

The Baldwins also plant 200 acres of onions, 200 acres of peppermint and 100 acres of lettuce annually. Their newest crop is Merion Blue Grass sod, planted on 500 acres. They also have large sections of acreage devoted to pasture and small grains.

Onions have always been the Baldwin's specialty. They are planted in April on the best peatland, cared for all summer with specialized equipment and harvested in September by a machine that digs four rows at a time and has a capacity of 8,000 bushels per day.

"A fleet of four trucks hauls the harvested onions to nearby storages where they are mechanically piled in bulk storage to a depth of 10 feet" according to the brochure.

"There are seven storages located on the various farm areas. Each is well insulated against cold and most have large drying fans that remove excess moisture and keep the onions in condition during the winter months."

During the shipping season (September through March), the onions are brought to a central grading room where they are cleaned, graded for size and packed in consumer bags weighing three pounds each. The onions are marketed locally and at such distant points as Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio; Huntington, W. Va.,; Knoxville, Tenn.; and Winston-Salem, N.C.

Peppermint oil is distilled from vast quantities of peppermint hay grown on the Baldwin Farms. The peppermint is cut and dried like ordinary hay, then it is chopped and blown into steel vats for steam distillation. The resulting mint oil is used to flavor chewing gum, candy and medicine.

Baldwin Farms, together with eight other local growers, have formed the Stockbridge Vegetable Producers, Inc., for the marketing of 200,000 boxes of head lettuce a year.

The lettuce is hand-packed in cardboard boxes in the field by 70 Filipino workers and is hauled to a central warehouse where it is vacuum-cooled to 33 degrees, even on the hottest days. Then it is moved into a large cold storage room to await shipment to Detroit, Toledo, Columbus, Cincinnati, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and other points within easy trucking distance. The shipping season extends from July 1 to October 1.

Merion Blue Grass does particularly well on the Baldwin's peatland. Seed is sowed in the fall and the land is irrigated to insure prompt germination. The following year, the grass is fertilized intensively and kept trim by gang mowers. It is harvested by a cutting tool that slices off the sod at the correct depth. Then the sod is rolled for shipping. The Detroit area is the largest market.

In all, the Baldwins produce enough beef to supply 4,000 people for one year. They grow enough lettuce to supply 280,000 people during the summer months. Their peppermint oil flavors gum, candy and medicine for 300,000 people. And they grow enough onions to supply the needs of 750,000 people for one year.

Veril Baldwin, the Onion King, and sons Danny and Duane obviously know their onions.

And a lot of other things besides.

Spiro 'Tee' Agnew

By JIM FITZGERALD

I'd rather be right than Vice President. But on the other hand, I'd rather be Vice President than a fired caddy. Vice Presidents receive better treatment when they get out of line.

Golf fans saw it on TV, during the Bob Hope tournament. While the world watched, two men made fools of themselves. One of them was Spiro Agnew.

I am proud to say that, during the past two years, I have been the only columnist not to take a potshot at Agnew, the most potshotable public official in history. He didn't even arouse me when he attacked newspaper writers. I enjoy being attacked. It gives me delusions of importance. And just because a man is Vice President, he shouldn't forfeit his inalienable right to send nasty letters to the editor.

But now Spiro has finally bugged me into responding. I cannot remain silent while he abuses the power of his office with a golf club.

By all standards, Agnew is a lousy golfer. When he hits the ball, no one knows where it might go. He should tee off at four a.m. on drizzly mornings while the rest of the world is safe in bed.

But Spiro is a ham. He is also a celebrity chaser. He can't resist playing in those "star studded" tournaments where spectators surround the tees, oohing and aahing at the likes of Arnold Palmer and Dean Martin.

And when the Vice President of the United States phones Palmer and says, "Let's get up a four-some for TV tomorrow" – what is Arnie going to do, tell Agnew to go take some lessons and call back in two years? No. Arnie is going to agree and make a note to reserve 15 extra golf carts for a battalion of Secret Service men.

So there is Spiro, hacking away. In the Hope tourney, his first drive went directly sideways and hit a woman on the arm. Spiro gallantly kissed her sore spot. A Democrat might say it was too bad she wasn't hit in a less romantic section of her anatomy.

Incredibly, Spiro swung again, and again he hit someone standing almost behind him. This time, no kiss. The struck spectator was hustled off to the first aid tent. Agnew finally had the good sense to give up and move on down the fairway. With the two Mulligans, plus being a breath away from the Presidency, he probably took a six on the hole.

Now; about that second fool: At the close of the tourney, Bob Hope was awarding Palmer the winner's check. Suddenly, a man leaped onto the green and began mugging and yelling for the TV camera. He was a recently fired caddy with a labor grievance. Fifty husky men immediately landed on him and dragged him off to a hospital "for observation."

All the caddy did was jump and yell and yearn for TV exposure. Agnew hit two people for the cameras. He could easily have killed them, or injured them badly, as any experienced golfer will tell you. Spiro was lucky he didn't have to kiss a split skull. He certainly should have known better than to drive, especially twice, while surrounded by people.

But the caddy was immediately incarcerated while Spiro hung around for another day, beaming and taking bows while onlookers flinched.

I wouldn't say the wrong fool was impounded.

But if it's true that Nixon wants a new partner on the next GOP ticket, I know an ex-caddy who is available and apparently qualified to fill Agnew's shoes.

National Geographic Feature

More homes and factories in the future will draw pollution-free electric power from the heat of the Earth.

In Italy, Iceland, Japan, New Zealand, the Soviet Union, and the United States wells down to 8,000 feet already tap superheated water that bursts free as steam to spin turbines in generator plants.

The Geothermal Steam Act signed by President Nixon early this year opened 1,350,000 acres of government land in the American West to exploration and leasing for new geothermal power projects.

As utility companies seek to boost output while reducing pollution from conventional power stations, new ways of extracting the underground energy are being sought.

One plan calls for detonating nuclear bombs more than two miles below the surface to create "chimneys" through hot, dry rock, the National Geographic Society says.

Water would be piped down to this natural boiler, recovered as steam to drive electric generators, then returned to be reheated in a recycling process. The plan is being studied by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Present geothermal power plants– and one being built in Mexico– use natural steam from water trapped in porous sand above subterranean rock heated by molten magma at the Earth's core.

Scientists estimate some 168,000,000 cubic miles of heated water life beneath the Earth's surface. But the water can be reached only where thin spots and other anomalies in the crust allow it to rise relatively close to the surface, sometimes spouting as geysers.

At The Geysers, an area 90 miles north of San Francisco, wells daily produce enough electricity for a city of 90,000.

Near the Mexican border, geologists believe the Imperial Valley may be a 2,000-square-mile geothermal field where wells could provide electricity and drinking water for all of southern California.

But drilling a well can cost $250,000– and prove fruitless. If the water is too salty, the high mineral content means its steam can damage turbines even though corrosion-resistant materials are used and the brine and steam are separated in a centrifuge.

A successful well must deliver steam at a constant pressure and temperature for decades. Some geothermal wells have shown slowly dropping pressures and cooler temperatures within eight years.

The proposed recycling method would not depend on underground water supplies for steam. And hot, dry rock is accessible in more locations than natural steam.

Italy pioneered geothermal power in 1904, and generators at Larderello are still in operation. The Geysers plant has been furnishing electricity since 1960; Japan and the Soviet Union started operating geothermal plants in 1965.

Geothermal heat does more than drive generators. Homes in Iceland have been warmed by natural steam for more than 40 years.

Thermal wells in New Zealand provide steam to make pulp at a paper mill, heat greenhouses on farms, kiln-dry lumber, mold plastics, and steam-clean cars.

Council Weighs Close Bids

the total cost of the project will be $1,714,605 — considerably above the original engineers' estimate of $1,500,000.

Mayor Fochtman said the city will have to come up with about $190,000 in addition to the $700,000 bond issue approved by city voters last November. He said the new money possibly could come from cash-on-hand, a tax increase or an increase in sewage rates, or a combination of them. Fifty percent of the project will be financed by the state and federal governments.

In addition to Clark and Shaw-Henderson, other bidders on general construction were Melco Construction, Traverse City, $1,197,350; Comstock Construction, Traverse City, $1,199,632; Barnes Construction Co., Grand Rapids, $1,226,764; Lerner-Linden, Detroit, $1,240,000; Gridor Construction, Minneapolis, $1,248,000; North Construction, Jackson, $1,267,511; and O'Harrow Construction, Jackson, $1,273,000.

Bidders on the electrical work, other than Southeastern Electric of Bay City, were Shaw-Henderson, Cheboygan, $193,850; Lancaster Electric, Gaylord, $193,970; Davis Electric, Traverse City, $198,460; Clark Construction, Lansing, $222,164; and Lerner-Linden, Detroit, $250,000.

THE CHARLEVOIX Red Rayders won the Class C championship Friday night, defeating Boyne City 58 to 38. Trophy was presented to Capt. Bruce Meggison by Dale Burge, Charlevoix High School athletic director. Next stop for the Rayders was the regionals at Grayling this Tuesday night.

Rayders Travel to Grayling To Meet Kalkaska Cagers

The Charlevoix Red Rayders captured the Class C District cage title Friday night, defeating the Boyne City Ramblers 58-38.

Next step up the tournament ladder for the Charlevoix team was a match with Kalkaska at Grayling High School Tuesday, March 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The Rayders defeated Onaway in their first tournament game last Wednesday by a score of 76 to 66, paving the way for the Boyne City game.

On Tuesday, the Ramblers defeated Alpena Catholic Central in a squeaker, 52 to 51, to win their niche in the playoffs. All of the games were played at Charlevoix.

The Rayders and the Ramblers were fairly evenly matched early in the game, with each team moving into the lead from time to time. At the end of the first quarter Charlevoix led 12 to 9 and at the half the Rayders had only a three-point margin, 24 to 21.

In the second half, the Boyne City squad fell apart, with only three points on freethrows in the third period and 14 points in the final stanza on four fieldgoals and six freethrows.

Charlevoix, on the other hand, began to click after the break, with 16 points in the third period and 18 in the fourth.

High point man for the Rayders was Bill Carey with 16, followed by Bruce Meggison, Larry Potter and Jerry Pease with 10 each.

Also in the scoring column were Roger Crain, eight; Kevin Swanson, two; and Rick Donaldson, two.

High man for Boyne City was Keith Hausler with 10, followed by Dave Korthase and Bob Spencer, seven each; Bill Anzell and Duncan Hall, six each; and Tim VanAlstine, two.

Bill Carey also led the scoring in the Onaway game with 25 points. Bruce Meggison was credited with 17; Larry Potter, nine; Jerry Pease, eight; Kevin Swanson, seven; Roger Crain, six; and Tim Carey and Dave Swanson, two each.

Bob Campbell was high man for Onaway with 24, followed by Jim Holmes, 15; Rob McLennan, 11; Eric Boucher, seven; Rick Philpott, five; and Larry Badgero and Bruce Szymoniak, two each.

Cash Short, Board To Finance Busses

The Charlevoix Board of Education will finance the two new buses ordered last fall rather than pay for them upon arrival as previously planned. The decision was made at the regular meeting of the board on Monday because of the uncertainty of state revenue and the slowness of tax collections which are falling behind last year's collections.

The GMC chassis with the Bluebird Body ordered through the Charlevoix Oil Co. will be financed through the General Motors Acceptance Corp. The second bus, an International chassis with a Superior body ordered through Zaremba Brothers of Elmira, will be financed through Hoestra Truck & Equipment Co. of Grand Rapids.

The parking problem at the Charlevoix public library was discussed at length. At the time the library was built, arrangements were made for parking facilities for library patrons. However, others have been using the parking space and leaving cars at the site as long as all day. The problem was referred to the policy committee which will establish policy regarding the matter. The committee will report at a future meeting.

Supt. Robert Miller reviewed acts relating to schools approved by the legislature during 1970 and bills before the 1971 legislature. The meeting of area superintendents and Sen. Robert Davis scheduled for Monday at Gaylord was postponed because of weather and road conditions.

Board members reported on the recent AASA meeting in Atlantic City.

Miller also discussed the Governor's formula for State Aid which is much the same as the one used this year except for the so-called "grandfather" clause which will trim revenue from schools such as Charlevoix. He said there would also be some additional funds available to schools enrolling children who formerly attended parochial schools.

Band Concert Is March 17

Charlevoix's school musicians will present their annual Spring Concert Wednesday, March 17, at the High School gymnasium, according to C.A. Odmark, director of music.

The concert will feature three bands, the Middle School Band, directed by Gary Stutzman, and the High School Concert and Symphony Bands, both directed by Odmark.

The annual Band Boosters' candy sale will be kicked off at the concert when the quarter-pound chocolate-almond bars go on sale.

Contracts Awarded For Sewage Plant

2nd Low Bidder Objects to Clark

The City Council Monday night awarded contracts for construction of Charlevoix's new waste water treatment plant over the strenuous objections of one of the unsuccessful bidders that the bid submitted by Clark Construction Co. of Grand Rapids was "irregular."

Clark was awarded the contract for the general construction phase of the project at a bid price of $1,190,245.

The objection came from Tom Shaw, president of Shaw-Henderson, Inc., of Cheboygan whose general construction bid came in only $255 higher.

Shaw charged that Clark did not enter the name of his piping subcontractor on the bid and claimed the bid should be rejected as irregular by the city attorney.

He further charged that Clark's mechanical subcontractor, whom he named as Axtel-Hardy of Traverse City, had made a $70,000 error in figuring the job and had withdrawn its quotation the day after the bids were opened.

Shaw said his own mechanical subcontractor, Wares and Son, also of Traverse City, has been contacted by Clark about doing the work.

He insisted that such practices are unethical and that other contractors are not being treated fairly if Clark is allowed to "shop" his subcontracts after receiving the bid.

Shaw said he already has spent several thousands of dollars working up bids on the job and has worked closely with the engineers, McNamee, Porter and Seeley, in cutting the cost of the project.

John Holland, representing the engineering firm, admitted that there had been "a problem" with the Clark bid, although Clark was recommended by the engineers on the basis of the low bid.

He bridled at Shaw's remarks, which he called a "challenge to my integrity."

"We were pleased to get help from Tom Shaw and other contractors," Holland said. "We have been in the engineering business since 1914. I am 47 years old and want to remain an engineer another 18 years or longer. And I have yet to have any contractor tell me how to engineer a job."

"Whoever we choose, we are going to see the job is done right," he added.

At the conclusion of the heated meeting, contracts were awarded to Clark Construction ($1,190,245), William Porter of East Jordan (forced main, $153,970); Southeastern Electric of Bay City ($189,990), and Luedke Engineering of Frankfort (outfall sewer, $180,400), for a total cost of $1,714,605.

The contracts are subject to the sale of bonds, additional state and federal funds, the results of a pre-award meeting with the Federal Water Quality Administration, and the city's ability to come up with an additional $190,000 to cover higher-than-expected costs.

Schools Shut by Blizzard

Winter delivered another knockout blow to Charlevoix over the weekend, with eight and one-half inches of new snow from Saturday through Monday morning.

Whipped by northwest miles which gusted up to 60 miles per hour, the snow clogged all trunklines and county roads in Charlevoix County, forcing the closing of all schools on Monday.

Schools were closed again on Tuesday, as blowing snow plugged country roads.

One person was injured in an auto accident on U.S. 31 north at 6:30 p.m. Sunday when the churning snow dropped visibility to zero along the Lake Michigan Shore.

Miss Kathleen Ann Taylor, 19, of Newberry, was driving south near the C&O viaduct when her car struck a vehicle owned by Robert Matthews, of R-2, Charlevoix. The Matthews car had become stalled in a snowdrift.

Then Miss Taylor's car was struck by the rear by a third vehicle driven by Susan Lakies, 21, of 118 E. Lincoln, Charlevoix, according to sheriff's deputies.

Miss Taylor suffered facial injuries was taken to Charlevoix Hospital by a Charlevoix city patrol car called to the scene by the sheriff's office.

John Bradley New Skipper

John C. Bradley of Charlevoix has been appointed master of the steamer Medusa Challenger commencing with the opening of the 1971 navigation season.

Capt. Bradley began his sailing career in 1941 with the M.A. Hanna Co. From 1955 to 1967 he served as a licensed officer on board the John L. A. Galster. From 1967 until present he served in the capacity of second and first mate on the Challenger.

Capt. Bradley succeeds Capt. Joseph F. McCann who retired last season.

MARK WILTSE of Eastport has opened Charlevoix's first State Farm Insurance Co. office at the Oleson Shopping Center.

Dow Physiologist Turns to Insurance

A branch of the State Farm Insurance Company has opened in the Oleson Shopping Center in quarters formerly occupied by Oleson's Toyland.

Manager of the office is Mark Wiltse, 45, a native of Antrim County who gave up a life-long career as a plant physiologist with Dow Chemical Co. to return to northern Michigan to live.

Wiltse was born between Ellsworth and Central Lake and graduated from Central Lake High School in 1943. After three years in the Navy, he attended Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant for two years before transferring to Michigan State University at East Lansing. He received his B.S. degree in vocational agriculture in 1950.

After teaching agriculture and shop at Breckenridge, Mich., for one year, he returned to MSU, receiving his M.S. degree in 1952 and his Ph. D. degree in plant physiology in 1955.

After receiving this doctor's degree, he joined Dow Chemical in the research and development of agricultural chemicals, working out of South Haven, Mich., and Washington, D.C.

Wiltse subsequently returned to Midland where he worked on agricultural chemical development manager for all of the United States and still later worked on the development of insecticides, herbicides, fumigants and fungicides on a world-wide scale.

In 1969, Dow sent him to its offices in Zurich, Switzerland, as manager of agricultural chemical research and development for Europe and Africa.

The Wiltses returned to the United States in October and were faced with the alternative of putting down roots again in Midland or returning to northern Michigan where they own a 40-acre farm east of Eastport and a summer home on the Lake Michigan shore near Atwood.

The family elected to move north and Wiltse left Dow Chemical to join State Farm.

Wiltse and his wife, the former Elaine Cronover of Central Lake, have four children, Janine, 15; Krista, 14; Mark Edward, 12; and Jeffrey, 10, who are attending school in Central Lake.

Wiltse will be assisted in the operation of the Charlevoix State Farm office by his wife.

Film Traces Growth of Florida Church

A new film, "Like a Mighty Army," described as a down-to-earth story of a man in tune with his times, will be shown at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church Tuesday, March 16, at 7:30 p.m.

The film traces the growth of the Coral Ridge Church in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., under the ministry of Rev. James Kennedy.

Church membership grew from 17 to more than 2,000 in nine years, necessitating three Sunday morning worship services.

The Coral Ridge Church story has been made into a motion picture by Gospel Films, Inc., of Muskegon.

The role of Rev. Kennedy is played by Chris Robinson, best known for his role as an Air Force sergeant in the TV series "Twelve O'Clock High."

The film showing in Charlevoix will be sponsored by the Antrim-Charlevoix County Holiness Assn.

The association will not hold its regular afternoon service or potluck supper on the day of the showing.

ELEMENTARY School youngsters attended a theater-in-the round production of the "Pied Piper" Friday afternoon in the school gymnasium. The play was produced by the Little Traverse Civic Theater, headquartered in Bay View.

Elementary Kids Attend Pied Piper 'In-the-Round'

Youngsters at the Charlevoix Elementary School witnessed a unique performance of the "Pied Piper" in the gymnasium March 5 produced by the Little Traverse Civic Theater.

Rather than have the youngsters bussed to a theater for the play, the actors devised a theater-in-the-round set which can be moved from school to school.

The tiered stage was set up in the middle of the school gymnasium and the youngsters were seated on the floor on all sides, leaving aisles for the actors to enter and leave.

"In-the-round necessitates a different technique of dressing the stage," according to a Little Traverse Civic Theater bulletin. "The set design becomes more simple, even to the point of the merest suggestion of, say a tree, or a door or a building."

The bulletin goes on to explain how such a simple set requires use of the imagination," a process in today's world which some people, children and adults alike, find hard to do after hours and years of watching television."

One indication that the Charlevoix youngsters did use their imaginations to the fullest occurred during the scene where hundreds of imaginary rats were to have invaded the gymnasium. Some youngsters stood up and others climbed on their chairs for a better view of the non-existant rodents.

The play was produced in Boyne City and Charlevoix last week, and will be staged in Petoskey and Harbor Springs this week.

Only adult in the play is June Benton, who plays the Piper. The remainder of the cast is made up of young people, another innovation for the theater group.

Furthermore, all roles, both male and female, are played by girls, a far cry from Shakespeare's day when all roles were played by men and boys.

Members of the cast included Laura Sheets as Kurt, Cindy Smith as Bertram, Mary Dickens as Berniee, June Benton as the Pied Piper, Cloenda Scott as Mayor Von Braun, Marta Nelson as Dame Von Braun, Lois Koboski as Duffmeister, Jane Finnell as Dame Duffmeister, Nan Cutshaw as Dorothea, Susan Chickering as Dexter and Kathy Turner as Farmer Schmidt.

Begrow won first place in his slalom event which is titled The Future Old Man of the Hills.

Miller-Matheny Rites Solemnized

Cindy Lea Miller of Charlevoix became the bride of Kenneth G. Matheny, stationed in Charlevoix aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew, in services Feb. 20 at the Community Church of God, the Rev. Wayne Olinghouse officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Miller of 215 W. Garfield. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Miller of 1809 Reserve, Missoula, Mont.

About 150 guests attended the candlelight ceremony, performed before an altar decorated with yellow and white mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin gown with an overlay of chiffon, featuring sheer sleeves, an A-line Empire waist and a long white Venise veil trimmed with satin. The veil was secured by a lace bow trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Robert Gill of Charlevoix was organist and soloist.

The bride was attended by Miss Penny Henley and Miss Dunna Martin as maid of honor and bridesmaid respectively. They wore pale blue chiffon gowns with sheer sleeves and A-line Empire waists and carried nosegays of yellow roses and tinted carnations.

Colleen Brown and Leston Brown of Central Lake, cousins of the bride, served as flower girl and ring-bearer.

Best man was Tim Barrett of Missoula, Mont., William Dejong was groomsman and ushers were Steve Hayes and Chuck Mouser. Dejong, Hayes and Mouser are assigned to the Cutter Sundew.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Miller wore an aqua-green dress, accented with gold jewelry and a brown purse and shoes.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall hosted by the bride's parents. Assisting were Mrs. Clarence Murray, Ann Cunningham, Dorcas Bassett, Mrs. Bruce Bartlett, Kristine Osterberg, Kay Fiedorek, Rochelle Webster, Terry Brown, Debbie Brown, Julie Supernaw and Shelly Sugdzik.

Out-of-town guests attended from Missoula, Mont., Harbor Springs, Central Lake, Petoskey, Conway and Ellsworth.

After a brief trip to southern Michigan the couple is living at 1031 May-st.

Staley Has Day in Court, But Bows to Boiler Law

Every man is entitled to his day in court.

Kenneth Staley, county supervisor from Charlevoix's Second Ward, had his on Thursday. And he lost.

Staley was hauled into District Court on two charges of operating a boiler in his combination grocery store and dwelling at 401 Antrim-st. without a state inspection certificate.

With Staley it was a matter of principle. He felt that the boiler, which is located in the basement under the dining room portion of the building, is none of the state's business.

When state inspectors stopped to have a look at the boiler on March 30, 1970, and again on June 3, 1970, Staley refused to give them access to the boiler. He also balked at the $7 inspection fee.

The state took Staley to court and a jury of two men and four women decided that the state did have a right to inspect Staley's boiler.

Staley, who represented himself in the courtroom, based his objection to inspection on grounds that state law is hazy relative to boilers in mixed occupancy buildings.

The law exempts private dwellings and apartment buildings with less than six residences, providing the steam pressure in terms of pounds-per-square-inch is sufficiently low and if steam is not heated above 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Boilers in business places must be inspected.

Staley also contended that the law refers to boilers only, not entire heating systems. He pointed out that his boiler is located in the residential portion of his building, although it is used to heat both his home and his store.

"How long can they continue to invade my rights?" he asked the jury. "If the laws don't protect me, they (the state inspectors) will be in your basement next."

Prosecutor Harvey Varnum, representing the state, read the jury the portion of Act 290 of the Public Acts of 1965 which establishes the criteria for boiler inspection.

In his charge to the jury, District Judge W. Richard Smith said the case should be decided on the law alone. Then he dismissed the jury temporarily to ask if either Varnum or Staley had any objection to his charge.

"Can't they decide the case according to their consciences?" Staley asked.

Judge Smith insisted that the jurors must go by the letter of the law.

"It's a matter of philosophy," he added, "and was discussed on 'The Bold Ones' back in January."

His reference was to a television program which often deals with legal problems.

The jury deliberated about 30 minutes before returning with a verdict of "guilty."

Judge Smith deferred sentencing until sometime before April 1. However, he indicated that the sentence would be contingent upon whether Staley complies with the law.

Staley could be fined up to $1,000 and imprisoned not more than 60 days on the two counts.

At the conclusion of the trial, Staley said he would comply with the law by taking out boiler insurance.

Allocators Get New Member

Charles A. Robinson, superintendent of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, reports that the county allocation board has been increased from six to seven members by a new state law.

The new member will be selected from the members of township boards within the county and will be appointed by the county clerk, the county treasurer and the sheriff.

Other members of the board are the county treasurer, the chairman of the ways and means committee of the county Board of Commissioners, the Intermediate District superintendent, a member of a school board within the county, a resident of a municipality within the county and a member not officially connected with any local unit.

The allocation board determines how the 15-mill county tax levy will be divided between the schools, the county, the intermediate office and the various townships.

The board will hold its first meeting in April.

Overseas Aid Drive Slated March 21

Msgr. Joseph C. Walen has been appointed by Bishop Breitenbeck to direct the 25th annual American Catholic Overseas Aid Fund Appeal in the Grand Rapids diocese.

The collection will be held on Sunday, March 21, in 140 parishes and 52 missions in the 29-county area of the diocese, which includes Charlevoix County.

Proceeds from this annual nationwide appeal support the emergency relief, social welfare and self-help programs operated by Catholic Relief Services, the overseas aid and development agency of American Catholics in 70 countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Asked about the specific areas of need, Monsignor Walen said, "it is difficult to determine priorities of need when there is so much suffering throughout the world. However, in the past 12 months, we have witnessed an unusual number of major disasters, both natural and man-made. Among these were the tragic earthquake in Peru the end of May; the civil war in Jordan, a drought and famine in the Yemen of the Middle East, floods in Puerto Rico, and many areas of the Philippines were battered by continual typhoons.

"In every one of these situations, Catholic Relief Services was one of the first agencies on the scene to provide survivors with the basic necessities of life lost in the disasters".

Aside from emergency relief, Catholic Relief Services maintains its day-to-day volume of direct aid and continues to sponsor many socio-economic development and self-help projects. An estimated 40-million poverty-stricken men, women, and children have benefitted each year from these aid programs.

7th Graders Tackle Environmental Ills

A new club with the enticing title of "PYE" has been started by youngsters in the Seventh Grade at the Middle School.

"PYE" stands for "Protect Your Environment", according to students Jim Barlage and Tim Hanna, spokesmen for the group.

They would like word to get around so that they can attract more members, both youths and adults.

According to Berlage and Hanna, the aims of the organization are four-fold:

1. Informing the public of the serious biological situation we are now in.
2. Communicating with politicians on these matters.
3. Trying to convince educated, successful people that they cannot neglect their government and must talk to politicians about the important issues of these times, and
4. Trying to reach youth on these matters to show them that they must work and think in terms of the future if they are to have a quality environment in which to rear their children.

The PYE group believes the major issues facing the country and the world are (1) over-population, (2) a food crisis, and (3) pollution.

They define pollution as "the careless handling of our natural resources, which are being treated as if they are inexhaustible."

Anyone interested in obtaining more information about PYE may contact Tim Hanna at 547-9738 or Jim Berlage at 547-9779.

Charlevoix the Beautiful

Now there's a new, small Pontiac with a small-car price for small-car lovers.

Wouldn't you know it would be fun to drive, stingy on gas, quick to service and built to last.

Of course you would. We wouldn't build a small car unless we figured it would give you more of what you want a small car for.

Take that low price. Ventura II is a small car so it has a low small-car price. But it's what you get for that small price that makes Ventura II worth a close look.

Ventura II is fun to drive. It should be [illegible] from the Wide-Track people. Which means you get a smooth, comfortable Wide-Track ride.

The handling's quick. There's a nifty 111-inch wheelbase for easy parking. And both the 250 [illegible] six and available 307-cu.-in. V-8 test out beautifully in city traffic or on the expressway.

Ventura II is stingy with your gas money. Both the standard six-cylinder engine and the V-8 you can order run beautifully on regular gas or the new low-lead and no-lead fuels. The carburetor on the Six is an economical one-barrel. And the transmission for both six and V-8 is a practical 3-speed manual.

Ventura II is quick to service. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll like fiddling around with the new Ventura II.

[illegible]

If you ever need to have somebody else work on your car, well, you'll like Ventura II too. Both the standard six and available V-8 are [illegible] time-tested designs. Same goes for transmissions. The standard 3-speed manual and the available 2-speed automatic, Turbo Hydra-matic or floor-mounted 3-speed are all rugged, dependable units.

Ventura II is built to last. There's nothing lightweight about this car. It's welded, not bolted, at hundreds of strategic points to help keep it tight and quiet.

The body is heavy gauge steel. And it has double paneling in the deck lid, hood and doors. You could probably sum it up best with three little words: Body by Fisher.

So come on. If you're a small car lover, stop by your Pontiac dealer's today. Tell him you want to see the new Ventura II. It's the small car that gives you more of what you want a small car for.

Don't forget to buckle up for safety.

DNR Plans to Double Size of State Deer Herd

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources last week unveiled plans to double the size of the state's deer herd as part of a sweeping forward thrust to revitalize its total wildlife program.

The overall plan, outlined before the Natural Resources Commission in Lansing, is keyed to proposed increases in hunting license fees which would yield an estimated $2.5 million in additional revenue annually.

Those recommended hunting fee raises, now up for legislative consideration, include $2 increases in both resident small game and deer licenses, and $5 hikes in non-resident licenses covering both small game and deer.

DNR Wildlife Chief Merrill L. "Pete" Petoskey pointed out that additional receipts from these increases, coupled with a more generous legislative allotment of available federal Pittman-Robertson funds, "will allow us to revitalize Michigan's wildlife programs and get moving to meet the public needs."

With more money to back the DNR's knowhow, he said Michigan forests can be managed to build the state's deer herd up to 1 million animals and regulations can be tailored to produce an annual hunter harvest of 200,000 whitetails.

Currently, hunters legally take about 100,000 deer a year from a herd which numbers about 500,000 animals in the spring.

Petoskey explained that the present herd can be doubled in the next 10 years if more funds are available to accelerate wildlife habitat work—mainly to set back natural forest succession through stepped-up timber cuttings. Specifically, he spoke of vigorous pulpwood production to encourage forest conditions which promote higher ruffed grouse and snowshoe hare populations, as well as larger deer numbers.

"To achieve these goals," he stressed, "means the redirection of some of our forest production goals—away from sawlogs toward pulpwood and wildlife."

Also figuring importantly in Petoskey's plan to build up Michigan's deer herd and double the hunter harvest is a full-scale attack against poaching, whose toll each year may equal the state's legal kill. "This illegal kill," said Petoskey, "should be transferred to the legal side of the ledger where it can be measured and controlled."

The DNR's master plan for uplifting both the state's deer harvest and the quality of the sport, which attracts some 700,000 followers, zeroes in on some other possible changes. These include striving for a better distribution of deer hunters, extending the Upper Peninsula's buck season, allowing any hunter to take one deer during the archery season and another animal during the firearm hunt.

The DNR's look-ahead plan, in addition to spelling out habitat improvements for deer, grouse, and other game; also focuses upon preserving remnant populations of such non-game species as prairie chickens and timber wolves. It also points its forest management sights at everything from tiny Kirtland's warblers, which draw thousands of sight-seers each year, to majestic elk and moose.

Under the DNR's plan for wetlands wildlife, Petoskey reported that 18 projects—either new or expanded—could be mobilized if the proposed license increases are approved. The cost of acquiring and developing these projects within the next 5 years would total $2.7 million. Adding impetus to these plans is the fact that Michigan's army of waterfowl hunters has increased dramatically in recent years and is expected to grow from the present level of 125,000 to about 200,000 by 1980.

As part of its farmland-urban wildlife program, the DNR would like to acquire 14,000 acres in the next five years to block in holdings at state game areas in southern Michigan. The purchase of those lands, aimed at providing more adequate recreation for the state's burgeoning population, would require slightly over $2 million from Michigan's Recreation Bond Program and the federal Pittman-Robertson Fund.

Petoskey reported that three other high priority projects are being planned to provide new recreational opportunities under the farmland-urban program. One involves a mini-game area program, approved by the Commission last week, to establish small units (from 80 to 320 acres) close to populated areas.

Idea of these pocket-size areas is to offer city-dwelling sportsmen places that they can easily reach for short hunts on rabbits or pheasants.

Another major move calls for making put-and-take releases of 80,000 adult pheasants on public lands in southern Michigan. The DNR is seeking $350,000 in its operating budget for next year to launch these releases before and during the 1972 hunting season.

Still in the planning stage is the third high-priority project which would involve two main facilities—a shooting complex at the Pointe Mouillee State Game Area and an access road, observation tower, and boardwalk at the Tobico State Game Area. These proposed developments, requiring $275,000 from the State-Urban part of Michigan's Recreation Bond Program, would be added to serve non-hunting recreationists at these areas.

Noting that more than 50 percent of the use at southern state game areas is non-hunting, the DNR is recommending that consideration be given to charging general recreationists at these sites. Such a charge, equivalent to the cost of a hunting license or state park entrance permit, would require non-hunters to pay their way for recreation which is being provided at state game areas.

U.S. Frees Corn For Hungry Deer

U.S. Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich) says that the Federal government has released an additional 25,000 bushels of corn in Michigan for the emergency feeding of deer starving in one of the most severe winters in recent years.

This brings the total amount of emergency feed made available to deer herds to 50,000 bushels since Feb. 10, Griffin said.

The corn is being released by the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) which will conduct the feeding operation.

Griffin said he has been advised that some areas of northern Michigan are reporting more than double the average amount of snowfall.

The feed is being released from binsites owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). The binsites are maintained by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Ironton

Mr. and Mrs. Glen De Foe, son James and family and son Kurt and friend of Lansing have been spending a week in their local summer home and enjoying some snowmobiling.

Mrs. Mary Bennett is spending several days in the Charlevoix Hospital, in East Jordan. Fortunately no bones were broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pearl have as guests their son Dan, Pearl and friend Randall Bickel of Harrisville, Pa., this week and on Thursday they drove to Mackinaw City to see the Big Mac Bridge. They report snowbanks at the Straits are higher than those in Ironton.

Special Olympics Slated May 21-22 in Petoskey

Bonnie Bowman of the Conway School has been named regional coordinator for the Michigan Special Olympics, a program designed to promote active athletic competition among retarded youngsters.

The regional meet will be held in Petoskey on May 21 and 22. Winners will go to the State Special Olympics meet in Adrian on June 18-19.

The State meet is sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation and the Lenawee County Intermediate School District and will be held at Adrian College.

The philosophy of the program is wrapped up in a statement by Mrs. Eunice Kennedy Shriver. "The mentally retarded may not be able to do everything normal children can, but they have the right to try. They know what they are missing. They know especially when they are missing the fun of play - - of competition - - of success."

The Special Olympics program was started two years ago with a single meet and in that short period has grown to 1,400 meets in 49 states, the District of Columbia, Canada and France and has more than 100,000 youngsters jumping and running.

There are 3,500,000 retarded children in America and research in the past ten years has indicated that the physical activity and the successes which come from athletics can mean a great deal in building a positive self-image, gaining confidence and self-mastery and in physical development.

Some 50,000 professional people, laymen, businessmen and youngsters have contributed millions of man hours to Special Olympics because they want the successful competitors to have the sense of accomplishment which goes with this competition.

This year's statewide competition will be held on the campus of Adrian College with David Beckman, an instructor in the Lenawee County Intermediate District's retarded children's school, in charge. Beckman is also an assistant football coach at Adrian College, and has extensive experience both in teaching youngsters and in coaching high school football. A staff of some 14 Lenawee County persons is working on the arrangements for all phases of the Olympics at Adrian and a large number of other persons are currently at work statewide to plan for the two-day program.

The local competition will consist of eligible students from each district taking part in events such as.

Bridges Featured On '71 State Maps

The 1971 Michigan Official Highway Map is ready for free distribution, the State Highway Commission has announced.

The new maps are available at the Courier office at 111 Bridge-st.

Long considered one of the most informative state highway maps in the nation, Michigan's annually updated map for 1971 includes routing for more than 1,400 miles of freeway; all 9,221 miles of state highways and most major county roads.

Enlarged panels on the reverse side separately show the major road systems for Detroit and vicinity, Battle Creek, Bay City, Flint, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Midland, Muskegon, Port Huron, Saginaw and St. Joseph-Benton Harbor.

This year's map features an artists's portrayal of six major Michigan bridges—the Mackinac, Houghton-Hancock, Blue Water at Port Huron, International at Sault Ste. Marie, Rouge River and Zilwaukee. In addition to the artist's sketch, accompanying panels identify the type of bridge and include statistics and information of its history and location.

One of the two cover panels contains an artist's sketch of the 104-year old wooden covered bridge over the Thornapple River in the Village of Ada in Kent County; with the other outside panel showing one of the two main towers of the Mackinac Bridge.

A feature included in the 1971 map for the first time is designation of Indian reservations by a colored shading. Other popular features include pictures of the state flag, state bird, state fish and state stone; fare and toll information at bridges; a mileage table providing distances between various cities; listing, with phone numbers, of State Police Posts and District Offices of the Michigan Department of State Highways; and a listing of state parks with vital information for each park on the type of recreational accommodations offered.

The State Highway Commission authorized printing of two million 1971 maps, the same amount as last year.

The maps were printed by Michigan Lithographing Co. of Grand Rapids on its low bid of $105,800. That figures out to 5.29 cents a map, up slightly from last year's cost of 4.99 cents a map.

Within the next two weeks, free maps will be available at all Highway District Offices throughout the state, at Chambers of Commerce in most Michigan cities and from area and regional tourist associations.

Copies of the 1971 map also are available by writing—on a postcard, please—to MAPS Michigan State Highway Commission, Lansing, Mich. 48904.

1971 Maverick 2-Door Sedan
1971 Torino Brougham 4-Door Hardtop
1971 Ford LTD Brougham 2-Door Hardtop

Consumers shop more carefully today.
Here's why they buy Fords.

Ford LTD, quiet and strong, is the luxury car without the luxury car price.

Ford LTD is the car that can match the luxury of cars costing hundreds of dollars more. And LTD's quiet ride is the standard that those same more expensive cars have to match themselves. That quiet strength is one reason for consumers choosing LTD over all other luxury cars in its class.

Torino is sized and priced right in the middle. Room for six, small car handling.

Consumers know the mid-size Torino gives them the roominess of a big car plus the easy handling of a small car. For a price that's right in the middle. As a result, Torino has become the most popular 4-door in its class. Your Ford Dealer has thirteen other models to choose from.

Maverick, the simple compact car, offers 2 doors or 4; 6 or V-8 power.

Take Maverick. Consumers know that the simple machine is simple to own and simple to run. And they learned recently that a leading independent survey found Maverick has the best frequency of repair record of any American car. That might explain why it's America's best selling compact.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross are spending several weeks with relatives and friends in California.

Due to the storm last week, our church services and Sunday school, were cancelled as well as the bake sale. The Ladies Fellowship has made plans for the sale on March 14 after the morning service.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen DeFoe and son James and family also their son Kurt and guest have returned to their homes in Lansing after spending several days in their local home and enjoying some snowmobiling.

Mrs. Mary Bennett returned home Friday after spending several days as a medical patient in the Charlevoix Hospital.

Rev. and Mrs. Harmon have returned after a visit of several days in Washington, D.C.

Six members of the Weekly Club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. N.C. Christensen.

Mrs. Louis Gilbert has returned to her home in Detroit.

We have been having some beautiful and welcome sunshine for several days, but below zero temperatures arrive at night. Much to our surprise our pet chipmunk came out of hibernation this past Sunday afternoon and enjoyed the sunshine. He has been out each day for peanuts and sunflower seeds and sits on top of the snow bank next door. I have never known or seen a hibernating animal come out this early and with so much snow as we have, but we do know he will have to return to his winter home for March is not over yet.

Rev. Harmon is having Lenten Services each Thursday evening at 7 p.m. until Easter. Everyone is welcome to meet with us. Choir practice follows at 7:30.

L. Michigan Level To Rise 9.5 Inches

For the coming summer, Great Lakes water levels are expected to be about the same or slightly higher than they were in 1970, except for Lakes Michigan and Huron.

Those two Lakes, according to the Lake Survey Center's Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels, will be in the neighborhood of nine and one half inches higher than they were last year.

Lake Superior is expected to be about the same as 1970; Lake St. Clair up about three and a half inches; Lake Erie up about two and a half inches; and Lake Ontario about the same or down slightly.

Lake Survey, formerly a unit in the Army's Corps of Engineers, is now with the Department of Commerce's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and operates directly under the National Ocean Survey. The Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels (which is free on request to: Lake Survey Center, Federal Bldg., Detroit 48226) shows in graph form present lake levels, highs and lows of record, 10-year and long-term average levels, a 6-month forecast of levels, and the low-water or chart datum line for easy reference by those using Lake Survey Great Lakes charts. The 6-month forecast is furnished by a speciality hydraulics unit which stayed with the Corps of Engineers when Lake Survey was transferred to NOAA.

Higher lake levels normally benefit commercial shipping and hydroelectric power production, but are detrimental to shoreline property. Lake Survey scientists explain that wave energy is expended directly against cliffs or beaches during high water, rather than being dissipated partially or completely on sloping inshore bottoms as is usually the case during lower water level conditions. Therefore, higher lake levels combined with severe wave action are the principal causes of shoreline damage. An excellent, illustrated 21-page booklet titled "Shoreline Damages Causes and Protective Measures" has been published by the Corps of Engineers and is available from Lake Survey.

The Monthly Bulletin shows that Lake Ontario is expected to reach its high for the year about mid-June, Lake Erie about the end of June, and Lake St. Clair about mid-July. Highs for Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron are not defined clearly enough to report at this time. The National Weather Service, a major NOAA element, publishes a one-month extended weather forecast which is used in part in forecasting lake levels.

Gamble Pays Off For City Council

Although it was a gamble pure and simple on the part of the city council, Charlevoixans can be thankful their elected representatives had the guts to turn down the first round of bids for the proposed waste water treatment plant.

Although the savings were not as great as they had hoped for, the new bids for general construction and electrical work are about $250,000 less than the original bids opened in December. The savings amounts to $193,000 on the general construction contract and $57,700 on the electrical contract.

Of the savings, approximately $60,000 resulted directly from modifications in plant design since the original bid opening, but the balance can be chalked up to the council's determination to get the best deal possible for the taxpayers of Charlevoix.

And the council's decision to ask for new bids was nothing less than a gamble. Members had no assurance that the new bids would come in one cent lower, and they were not at all certain that the state would stand for any delay in the awarding of contracts.

As it turned out, the contractors — all of whom were pressed for time in December because of the number of communities in the process of awarding sewer plant contracts — had more time to get the best possible prices for materials from their suppliers and to study the plans more carefully.

The state Legislature, in the meantime, came through like a champ, granting Charlevoix an extension until May 15 to award contracts, thereby securing both state and federal funds for the project. If the extension hadn't been granted, Charlevoix would have had to wait in line again for funds under the 1971 financing program.

Unfortunately, the council was forced last week to wrestle with a new dilemma in connection with construction of the plant. Should it award the general construction contract to the low bidder, Clark Construction of Lansing, or move up $255 and accept the bid of Shaw-Henderson of Cheboygan in hopes of keeping at least some of the money in northern Michigan where it is sorely needed?

At this writing, the Courier does not know what action the council will take. But we do know that every step of the project, beginning with the acquisition of land, has been beset by unusual problems.

We can only admire the skill and determination displayed by Mayor William Fochtman and the council in building the best possible sewage facility at the least cost to Charlevoixans.

Many Good Reasons For County Growth

Although many of us had suspected as much for some time, it is now official.

Charlevoix County is growing at a rate almost double that of the state as a whole.

Official U.S. Census Bureau figures released last week pegged Charlevoix County's population in 1970 at 16,541, an increase of 23.2 from the 1960 figure of 13,421.

During the same period, Michigan's population increased from 7,823,194 to 8,875,083, an increase of only 13.4 percent.

Although Charlevoix County still has about 4,000 fewer residents than it did during the lumber heyday in the early years of the century, the new increase in population should be good news to anyone doing business in the area.

However, population growth is not an unmixed blessing, as many of us have been made painfully aware in the past few years. New residents not only mean new business, but they also mean more schools, more factories and a more rapid depletion of our natural resources.

The Census Bureau doesn't attempt to explain why Charlevoix County has grown so much faster as the state as a whole, but we believe some of the answers are fairly obvious.

Charlevoix County is an attractive place to live, with its woods, waters and fresh air. Even with the new increase in residents, there is still plenty of room to move around, without offending your neighbors, which is more than can be said of most southern Michigan counties.

Secondly, new road construction during the 1960's has drawn all of Michigan closer together. Salesmen, manufacturers representatives and others have found it possible to make Charlevoix their headquarters, rather than Detroit, Flint or Grand Rapids.

Thirdly, a surprising number of families have elected to move north even though their jobs have remained "down below," a phenomena which has been increasingly evident ever since the Detroit race riots in 1967. The breadwinner settles his wife and kids in a home in Charlevoix County while he maintains a rented room or bachelor apartment in one of the metropolitan areas during the week. Such arrangements necessitate tremendous amounts of weekend driving, but many men believe the safety of their families comes first.

Fourthly, a number of new industries have gone into business in Charlevoix County in the past decade, providing jobs that just didn't exist before. It is no longer necessary for young people to pull up stakes and move south to find employment.

Lastly, former residents of metropolitan areas have chosen Charlevoix County for retirement, in spite of the severe winters. They are now numbered among our year-'round residents, thanks to liberal retirement pensions and Social Security.

Williams and Works, the Grand Rapids firm which is working on a planning study for Charlevoix County, estimates that the county's population could easily reach 35,000 by 1990.

Based on the county's growth in the past decade, we could well surpass that estimate.

This Week In Lansing

By RICHARD FRISKE
106th District Representative

The problems facing this state government tend sometimes to be overwhelming. We are considering a budget for the coming fiscal year while attempting to cut the current budget to bring spending in line with revenues.

We are finding an ever-increasing call for reform of our educational system, particularly as it applies to financing education.

Then there are the problems of pollution, transportation, housing and the list sometimes seems endless.

At first glance it would appear that past legislatures have not acted on these problems and so they have piled up. But this just is not true. The reasons for this sudden surge of problems come from many areas.

One such area is: More services demanded of government. I say no where can problems be better solved than at the local level.

Perhaps one of the most critical problems facing us today is the problem of drugs and alcoholism. Again this is one of those problems which has surfaced on us with unproportionate magnitude just in recent years. We recognize that to be effective we must attack this problem from both the law enforcement and treatment and prevention angles.

If Michigan's Senate follows suit, state voters will again cast their ballots on the question of allowing 18-20-year-olds to vote.

On a bipartisan vote of 96-6 the House last week approved a resolution seeking a change in Michigan's constitutional voting age regulations. As passed by the House, the resolution provides for the question to be decided at a special election this fall.

The sick fascination with bombs which has infected a minute segment of our society surfaced at the State Capitol last week.

Just as we were preparing to go into session, the House Clerk's office received a call claiming that a bomb had been planted somewhere in the Capitol Building. The anonymous call said the explosives would go off at 2:15, some 15 minutes after the start of the afternoon session.

State Police and Lansing firemen told legislators and employees to evacuate the building, and began a thorough search of the Capitol's many nooks and crannies.

No bomb was found, and none exploded. Since this threat came just one day after the bombing incident at the national Capitol in Washington, it probably originated from some person getting a parasitic thrill from the Washington incident.

Nonetheless, the bombing of public facilities is a very real threat today. Obviously, bombings from the extreme left are repulsive acts which should be investigated and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law and the public should know that these are not isolated cases but are the work of a well organized subversive group dedicated to the destruction of our free society.

House Bill 4194 received favorable action in the House last week. The House passed it by a vote of 73-27, a substantial margin for any bill to be passed. The House then voted to give it immediate effect. This bill does remove the revenue restrictions on the amount of funds local school districts could receive from school aid and local property tax, which are scheduled to take effect at the beginning of the new fiscal year this July.

Most legislation which is passed by both houses and signed by the Governor does not take effect until 90 days after the session ends. This would of course be too late in the case of the revenue restrictions, which would begin this July and could cause cut-backs in teaching staffs and programs if allowed to take effect.

Reconsidering an earlier action, the House last week passed a bill requiring all Michigan schools to provide their students with basic knowledge on environmental protection.

Many schools, of course, are already doing this and doing it very well. However, this bill is intended to insure that all districts provide information on this essential subject. The House took care to let schools know that this is not to be a vast, expensive proposition. The idea is for the schools to incorporate environmental education in their present class programs, rather than spending money for teachers and facilities for specialized instruction. I believe we ought to restrict our school teaching to basics and leave the bringing up of our children to the parents.

Blackout

By BOB CLOCK

With all due respect to Consumers Power Co. and the city electric department, it sure is nice to have an oil lamp handy when the lights go out.

A case in point is the two-hour blackout endured by residents of Charlevoix and Petoskey two weeks ago.

I was driving between the two cities when the lights went out and it didn't dawn on me until I reached Edwards' IGA that there was trouble afoot. The store was in darkness and I thought Dick Edwards had closed up early because of the blizzard in progress.

Then, as I drove south on Petoskey-rd., I noticed the street lights were out too and that the homes were lit mostly by flickering candles. However, those that had oil lamps shone like movie marquees, if you'll pardon a slight exaggeration.

When I arrived home, Judy had our oil lamp in the dining room going full tilt, with candles strategically located in every nook and cranny of the first floor. Our house looked like an operating room at Walter-Reed Hospital, compared to the rest of the homes in town.

I bought our oil lamp two years ago as an anniversary gift for Judy on grounds that we would soon have our summer cottage built over on Georgian Bay and since that beautiful stretch of shoreline is as yet unmarred by utility lines we might just as well get used to a more rudimentary form of illumination.

Since then, we have managed to get the privy erected but the rest of the land stands vacant. The lamp which we bought to light our cottage, however, does yeoman duty almost every evening on the Clocks' dining room table. It gives enough light to see what you're eating, without the frozen glare of the big chromium-plated chandelier that looks like it started out as a headlight for a Mercedes-Benz.

In fact, we have become to depend so much on our ornate kerosene lamp that it will probably never be moved to Canada, even when the cottage goes up.

Most of our neighbors-to-be on the Georgian Bay shore have discovered that you can live very nicely, thank-you, without electricity. Several have put in propane gas systems which are used for illumination, cooking, heating and refrigeration.

There is a gasoline engine somewhere on the premises to pump water and, for the die-hards, to generate enough electric power to operate TV's, sewing machines, emergency lights and small power tools.

Judy and I have rented cottages in the area so-equipped and found that the only thing we miss is the light inside the refrigerator—but I understand this problem has been solved by battery-powered lights in the newer models.

I could survive very nicely without an outside source of electric power, but I'm not so sure about my kids, who have grown up with the hum and whirr of such appliances as the blender, the mixer, the vacuum cleaner, the washer, the dryer. They like to watch toast pop out of the automatic toaster. They dote on television. They enjoy having the furnace click on—electrically—every so often to keep them warm. And they love to splash around in tubs of warm water, heated by a gas heater controlled by electricity.

That is why the blackout was such a traumatic experience for the poor little critters.

When I took Jennifer up to bed by candlelight I tried to tell her about all the little girls who lived in our house in years past who never had electricity, but she wasn't impressed.

"Didn't they even have a light in the hall?" she asked.

"Nope," I answered.

"What if they had to get up?"

"They kept a pot under the bed."

"What for?"

"Never mind what for and go to sleep."

The lights came on five minutes later but she didn't know it.

If it Fitz

Aunt Ella

By Jim Fitzgerald

The plan was to tunnel out of the country and go see Aunt Ella. Peace.

But first, reservations were necessary. I phoned in my name and a question came back: "Are you any relation?"

"Yassuh, Boss," I answered in my best Georgia accent.

My goodness, an ethnic joke? Shoot me.

Ella Fitzgerald isn't really my aunt. I just like to say she is because it would be groovy to be related to the best jazz singer in the world. For several years, I think my kids believed me. Then they got older and noticed that Ella was black and I'm not. That's what happens when kids grow up. They learn Dad isn't Superman, he's a phony.

Anyway, Aunt Ella was singing at the Elmwood, that huge barn of a nightclub in Windsor, Canada, just a few minutes under the river from Detroit. My wife and I had to go. And if a "Yassuh, Boss" would get us a seat nearer the stage, it would be worth the bruise to my liberal dignity. Heck, if it meant getting nearer Ella Fitzgerald, I'd order watermelon and tap dance on the table.

As it turned out, the headwaiter wouldn't have been impressed if I'd been Aunt Ella's long-lost father returned from 86 bleaching years in the desert. But he understood the dollar bills sticking from between my fingers. He grabbed one end of the bills and I didn't let go of my end until he had seated us close enough to reach out and touch Aunt Ella.

Oh my. Aunt Ella was only great. I couldn't describe that lady, whether she is skit-skatting or ballading. You had to be there. One for-instance: the finest song written in years is the Beatles' "Something." Until you've heard Aunt Ella sing it, you haven't heard it.

The warmest, most magic moment came at the end. Aunt Ella sang "Put a Little Love in Your Heart." She jazzed and souled that song so that your skin prickled and you couldn't catch your breath. And, as she sang it, she weaved along the edge of the big stage and reached out and touched hands with her fans. She reached out and touched white hands and black hands and she said put a little love in your heart.

Over 700 people stood up and reached out and seconded Aunt Ella's message: "Love is the answer; Brotherhood will conquer all if we'll just give it a chance."

Simplistic, right? A common trick of many entertainers. A lot of emotional malarky that sounds great to an integrated audience juiced up on jazz and booze. But when you wake up the next morning there's that lousy taste in your mouth. You know Aunt Ella is right on. But she's a sweet dreamer.

The next day, still humming "Put a little love. . . .", it was back to my desk and this lovely note from a reader: "Government by law is trying to force whites to love, mix and mate with a lazy shiftless bunch of darkies that love to rape, knife, burn, kill and rob."

How would you like to pry a little love into the heart of the jerk who wrote that?

Nevertheless, I'll dream along with Aunt Ella. Please pass the Love.

Ribbons.
Laces.
Bias Tapes, and ric-rac.
Elastic webbing.
Zippers, snaps, hooks and eyes.
Knitting needles, Filet shuttles.
Fancy buttons.
Thimbles.
Beads, Sequins and Glitter.
Wax candles.
Glue, paste or any adhesive.
Embroidery transfers for hot iron.
Craft and Needlework magazines.
Needlework direction pamphlets.
Nails, brads, screws, and miscellaneous small hardware.
Gift wrapping papers and plain white tissue paper.
Sheet cork or poster boards of any sort.
Wall paper remanents.
Small items (in new condition) suitable for prizes in competitive games.

Sims Baker, at 309 Mason St., goes to Grandview every day. He might be willing to have people drop their boxes of such supplies, at his home. Why not contact him? We go over once in a while, but not too often. Another item, which they need plenty of, is, old nylon stockings, etc. They use these for stuffing their many dolls and animals.

Just thought the people of Charlevoix would rather send such items to Grandvue, instead of to the dump. Take over please. It's all yours.

Says Politicos Squander Bucks

Mr. Bob Clock,
The Charlevoix Courier

Dear Mr. Clock:

President Nixon's revenue sharing proposal is encountering gripes from a number of Washington politicos.

They seem to feel that state legislators lack the ability to spend the money wisely.

While one cannot score up a strong argument against this viewpoint, it is amusing when one reflects on the wisdom and judgement they have demonstrated in their scattergun methods of squandering our hard earned bucks.

New Chicago Building To Dwarf N.Y. Giants

The city that invented the skyscraper hopes to be number one again. Chicago is planning the world's tallest building.

It's a big order. New York City now holds the rooftop title with the first of the World Trade Center's twin towers already putting in the shade the 20th century's most famous skyscraper, the 1,250-foot Empire State Building.

But when Sears, Roebuck's 110-story headquarters is completed in Chicago, it will stand 1,450 feet, topping the World Trade Center's towers by 100 feet.

Skyscrapers are sprouting taller and faster than ever. More than 200 new office towers have gone up in New York, containing about half the nation's office space built since World War II, the National Geographic Society says.

SKYSCRAPING COSTS

As buildings climb higher, they pull other values up with them: one square foot of land at 1 Wall Street is worth $700. A square foot of office space may rent for as much as $11.50 a month.

Skyscrapers have always had their critics, including the first one. As the Old Testament tells it, the builders of the Tower of Babel "had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar. And they said. . . let us build us a tower whose top may reach unto heaven. . ."

They were well along in their project when the Lord inspected and abruptly stopped it.

For challenging the Creator, man the builder was punished. Everyone on the job suddenly found he could no longer communicate understandably with anyone else, and the unfinished tower never reached heaven.

"MANHATTANIZING" CITIES

Critics say lack of understanding among skyscraper builders still holds cities short of heaven. They warn that San Francisco's hills are threatened with "Manhattanizing," that tombstone skyscrapers have turned New York into "slab city," and that "a new skyscraper comes looking like the box the old one came in."

The first skyscraper, built in 1883 by Chicago architect William Le Baron Jenney, looked like any other big city building. The only differences were that it was taller—it towered 10 stories—and it was held up by an internal iron and steel skeleton instead of thick masonry walls.

Within years, riveting guns were playing their own Manhattan serenade for sidewalk superintendents. Tourists soon were mailing home postcards depicting the marvels of Times Square's Flatiron Building or the "Cathedral of Commerce" that stood as a 60-story monument to F. W. Woolworth's five-and-ten cent stores.

Gigantic statues, stainless steel eagles, gothic buttresses, even huge stone Indians reclining among the pigeons decorated the "hats" of many early skyscrapers. Then designers turned to "architecture by the yard"—upended cigar boxes with severe glass walls and aluminum skins.

The Depression hit the sleek new kind of skyscrapers, and with 40 unrented floors it was known for a while as the Empty State Building.

"The skyscraper," wrote venerable Chicago architect Louis Sullivan, "is a proud and soaring thing." But no skyscraper has yet soared to the heights called for in one of Frank Lloyd Wright's plans: a proposed mile-high Chicago tower with 528 floors.

Sell Government-Owned Land To Private Parties: Friske

State Rep. Richard Friske from the 106th District has informed Lowell A. Kosloskey of R-1, Petoskey, that he strongly favors the sale of lands now owned by the state and federal governments to private owners.

Friske's startling sentiments relative to public lands came to light during an exchange of letters with state officials initiated by Kosloskey over the proposed swap of county-owned frontage on the Maple River in Emmet County with a private land developer. The land would be exchanged for other lands in the county.

In an attempt to block the move, Kosloskey wrote to Dr. Ralph McMullan, director of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in Lansing. He sent copies of the letter to State Sen. Robert Davis and Friske.

Friske answered the letter, saying that he favors the sale of state or federal land to private parties because the state and federal governments pay no taxes and any developing the state or federal government does costs tax dollars.

Thinking there had been some mistake, Kosloskey wrote again to Friske asking for a clarification. Friske reiterated his statement, this time exempting lands owned by the government for military bases as specified in the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8.

Because of the unusual nature of Friske's stand, and the growing importance of public recreational land in Michigan, the Courier is publishing Kosloskey's original letter to Dr. McMullan and his resulting correspondence with Friske.

Petoskey, Michigan
Dec. 20, 1970

Dr. Ralph McMullan, Director,
Dept. of Natural Resources,
Lansing, Michigan

Dear Dr. McMullen,

At the present time the Emmet County Board of Commissioners is considering trading a parcel of county-owned land which includes approximately a mile of frontage on the East branch of the Maple River to a private developer for lands elsewhere in the county.

The county-owned property was originally obtained from the Michigan Dept. of Conservation on Dec. 12, 1945. The deed contains the following reverter clause: "AND WHEREAS, it is expressly understood that the land herein described shall be used solely for County Forest purposes, and, when same ceases to be used for such purposes, it shall revert to the State of Michigan."

It is my understanding that the DNR has the authority to waive the reverter clause. A good number of local citizens strongly oppose any such trade. We believe that the property, with its river frontage, is too valuable as a public holding to be traded away. As you are aware, the amount of lake and river frontage open to the public is diminishing and we feel that every single foot of such frontage is, and will be, invaluable in providing sport and recreation for the people of Michigan.

The developer has stated publically, in the Dec. 12, 1970, Petoskey News-Review, that the land he presently owns is "...very adequate for a fine development--including a fair golf course..." Obtaining the county land would enable him to use a different sewage system and build a larger golf course. I cannot believe that this is sufficient grounds for the county and the DNR to approve such a trade. I hope that the DNR will thoroughly investigate all of the evidence and not allow Emmet Co. to give away another stretch of irreplaceable river.

Sincerely,
Lowell A. Kosloskey

cc Representative-elect Richard Friske.

Dear Mr. Kosloskey:

Thank you for your letter of December 20, 1970.

I strongly favor any lands now owned by the state or federal government be sold to private owners. My reasons for this are:

1. The federal and state governments pay no taxes.

2. Any developing the state or federal government does costs our tax dollars.

In my own opinion, it would be a real treat for Petoskey to have this property developed and made a tax-paying proposition.

I hope that this clarified my position and that you may be inclined to accept my views.

Any time I can be of service to you, please feel free to let me know.

Sincerely,
RICHARD FRISKE

Dear Mr. Friske,

Thank you for your Jan. 13 comments on my letter to Dr. Ralph McMullan concerning the Maple River land swap. I believe I understand your position, but I do have several questions.

1. What types of public land would you be in favor of selling to private individuals?

2. Since most of our property tax money is used to support our schools would you change your mind concerning the sale of public lands if, as some people suggest, our schools were supported by some form of income tax?

My main concern in asking these questions is not so much the problem of taxes as the consequence of developing all of our land. Will the increased tax base pay for the increased need for new schools, roads, sewer and water systems, police and fire protection that the increasing population will need? I really don't know. This is why I am concerned in trying to find answers to these questions.

Sincerely,
Lowell A. Kosloskey

Dear Mr. Kosloskey:

I appreciate your genuine concern in the area of public and private lands.

To question No. 1 of your last letter, all lands now owned by the government should be sold back to private ownership as specified in the United States Constitution, Article I, Section 8. Only lands used for projects as specified in the Constitution should be owned by the government.

As to question No. 2, in reality I can hardly see how we can raise the income tax much more and still survive as a nation of free men. We should not think about raising taxes, but rather of lowering them. I know this does not even sound reasonable these days, but it is imperative that we do just that.

I will introduce the Liberty Amendment which would do that and more to return our country to sound constitutional principles. I hope you will study the Liberty Amendment. If you are not at all familiar with the L.A., please let me know and I will try to make this information available to you and other friends. I will appreciate your support after its introduction.

The only way to make the tax load more bearable for everyone is to turn the land and the industrial concerns now owned by the government back to private enterprise which is taxable and revenue producing.

Sincerely,
RICHARD FRISKE
State Representative

License Plate Sales Lag

The Charlevoix Secretary of State's office still has some 1,600 sets of auto license plates to sell, with the deadline for buying the 1971 tags only two weeks away, according to Mrs. Mary Marshall, branch manager.

Mrs. Marshall said sales through Friday totaled only 1,300, less than half of her estimated total.

Truck plates are going faster. Mrs. Marshall said she has only about 50 sets of commercial plates left.

MRS. MARY Marshall, manager of the Secretary of State's branch office in the Oleson Shopping Center, reports she still has 1,600 sets of plates to sell before the March 31 deadline. Here she waits on Robert Miller, who bought early to avoid the rush.

The situation apparently is the same throughout Michigan, according to Secretary of State Richard Austin.

In early March, sales lagged about 90,000 behind 1970, Austin said, adding that the first three weeks of March are critical, unless "long lines, extended waits and pushing bouts with fellow procrastinators are your bag."

Austin said that it is easier to get plates this year than ever before.

A person may use the prepared application mailed to him in lieu of title, Austin said. He also needs proof of liability insurance, money to pay for the plates and an added $1 for the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. If uninsured, the vehicle owner must pay $35 into the fund—and still remain uninsured.

For the convenience of customers, Mrs. Marshall said her office will remain open from 9 a.m. Saturday, March 27. Regular hours for the Oleson Shopping Center office are 9 a.m. until noon and 1 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Mrs. Marshall said it may be easier to buy plates next year. The House has passed a bill which would allow branch managers to accept checks instead of cash. If the Senate concurs, the Charlevoix office will accept checks next year.

Kiwanis Tree Tapping Starts Soon

Ralph Hamilton reports that the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is ready to start tapping the city's sugar maples for syrup. Proceeds from the sale of the syrup are used to sponsor the club's youth activities.

Residents who do not wish to have their trees tapped are asked to afix a sign to the tree so indicating.

Jobless Rate Hits 12.7 Pct. in County

Freedman Layoff Not Included

Unemployment in Charlevoix County reached 12.7 percent of the labor force in January, according to figures released Monday by Leo Kelly, manager of the Michigan Employment Security Commission office in Petoskey. The rate is more than double the national average for the same month, which was six percent.

Kelly said the figure has been higher, but he couldn't recall just when.

The percentage was computed by labor market analysts in Traverse City on the basis of January employment statistics.

It does not include a layoff of 08 employes by the Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp. in Charlevoix two weeks ago.

Gordon Freedman, president of the corporation, said the layoff of production workers resulted from a "disproportionately large inventory" of retail display fixtures dating back to last June.

Also figuring in the layoff is a shortage of warehousing space and the fact that bad weather has held up some deliveries.

Although the future is "fuzzy," Freedman said the plant already has started calling back some employes as they are needed.

In contrast to the employment picture, he said the company's sales from November through February were the best on record for the period.

He also said that many of the large retail chains are opening new stores across the country, necessitating all new fixtures such as those produced by the plant.

Even with the layoff, Freedman says the company still has 106 men and women employed in shipping, production control, engineering, maintenance and other areas.

Kelly said he looks for an upturn in employment in the near future. He said the new Holiday Inn and the Giantway Shopping Center in Petoskey each will require about 120 employes.

In addition, Morweld Steel in Ellsworth is going into production this week on a federal government contract to build 105 mm practice round projectiles for anti-tank weapons.

Maurice Taylor jr. said the firm already has taken on 45 additional employes since tooling started in November and more employes will be added as the plant moves into BEAVER ISLANDERS turned out in force March 10 to welcome the Sundew on its first crossing of the season from Charlevoix. The Coast Guard cutter brought emergency supplies of fuel oil, gasoline and propane gas.

Sundew Reaches Island With Fuel Oil and Gas

ST. JAMES - St. Patrick's Day was still a week away, but the 200 Irish-Americans who inhabit Beaver Island in northern Lake Michigan were in a holiday mood March 10 when the first ship of the season arrived from Charlevoix bringing emergency supplies of gasoline, fuel oil and propane gas.

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew made the grueling 64-mile round trip through scattered fields of blue ice that measured up to four-feet thick in places.

When islanders sighted the vessel approaching, all normal island activity came to a halt.

Sister Rita, principal of the Beaver Island School, dismissed her students for the afternoon and youngsters joined dozens of islanders who trooped out on the ice of Paradise Bay to meet the Sundew, skippered by Lt. Cmdr. Berl Williams.

Some of the welcoming committee arrived on snowmobiles, the most popular mode of transportation on the isolated island during the winter.

Even the regular Wednesday afternoon safari was called off in order to give a proper welcome to the Sundew.

Other well-wishers arrived on foot, making sure to give the Sundew a wide berth as she made repeated plunges through the thick harbor ice to reach the Beaver Island dock. Each thrust sent booming shock waves through the ice, causing the faint-of-heart to scurry to safety.

Adventuresome youngsters put their ears down to the snow, the better to hear the ice cracking beneath them.

The cutter carried 2,100 gallons of gasoline, 3,600 gallons of fuel oil, 20 one hundred pound tanks of

Red Rayders Bow To Coleman, 64-62

Charlevoix cagers led at the end of the first period, 12 to 7.

They were tied at the half, 29-up.

They dropped back two points at the end of the third period, 47-45.

And they lost to Coleman by the same margin, 64-62, when the final whistle sounded, killing Charlevoix's hopes for a Regional victory Saturday night at the Grayling High School gymnasium.

The finale was a heart-thumper for Charlevoix fans who had followed the team through victories over Onaway, Boyne City and Kalkaska to the final rung of the Regionals.

High point man for Charlevoix was Bruce Meggison, who was sidelined for a month during regular season play because of a leg injury. Meggison scored 19 points on seven fieldgoals and five freethrows.

Bill Carey, who usually wears the scoring crown, came through with 16 on eight fieldgoals. He scored three in the first period, two each in the second and third period and only one in the final stanza.

Also scoring were Roger Crain, 10 points on three field goals and four freethrows; Kevin Swanson and Jerry Pease, four points each on fieldgoals; and Tim Carey, four points on one fieldgoal and two freethrows.

Ron Ives paced Coleman with 25 points on 12 fieldgoals and one freethrow. Randy Aultman rang up 22 points on seven fieldgoals and eight freethrows, followed by Jim Roman, seven (3 and 1); Ken Smith, six (3 fieldgoals); and Greg Paxton, four (2 fieldgoals).

In the Regional eliminations March 9, Charlevoix defeated Kalkaska 75 to 67. That game also was played at Grayling.

Kalkaska led for the first half, with quarter scores of 18-16 and 34-32.

However, Charlevoix came back with 21 points in the third quarter, compared to 16 for Kalkaska, giving the Rayders an edge of three points, 53-50.

Charlevoix did even better in the finale with 22 points, over Kalkaska's 17, to win the game.

High point man for Charlevoix was Bill Carey, 19; followed by Bruce Meggison, 19; Kevin Swanson, 10; Larry Potter, nine; Roger Crain, eight; and Jerry Pease, four.

For Kalkaska, Doug Ryckman scored 21; Jon Lantzer, 15; Kevin Clark, eight; Tim Clark, Dennis Andrews and Dennis Fry, six each; Greg Elzinga, three and Jim Hiller, two.

14-Day Time Limit Set for City Docks

Pleasure craft may tied up at the city docks no longer than 14 days at a time from June 1 through Labor Day under a new set of dock regulations adopted Monday night by the city council.

The time limit was added after a study of harbor use last summer showed that many vessels were moored at the city dock for 20 days or more. Some owners were aboard only on weekends.

The new regulations include two sets of dock fees, one for pre and post-season dockage and another for June 1 through Labor Day.

The pre and post-season rates, beginning May 1 through May 31 and from the day after Labor Day until Sept. 30, range from $1.20 a day for boats 20-feet and under to $3.75 a day for vessels 51-feet and over.

The summer rates range from $2.50 a day for boats 20-feet and under to $6.50 a day for boats 51-feet and over.

The new rules and regulations will be enforced by the dockmaster, who is responsible to the chief of police.

In other business the council:

—Agreed to sell one 40,000-gallon fuel oil tank from the diesel plant.

—Turned down a request by the Charlevoix Township Board for permission to build a road across city-owned property at North Point. The township proposed the road in order to make more beach area accessible to the public.

—Accepted, with regret, the resignation of Kenneth Staley from the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission. A member of the commission since its inception in 1965, Staley said other activities are taking too much of his time.

—Deposited $142,000 from the electric fund and the water fund with the Charlevoix County State Bank at 5.5 percent interest.

—Learned, from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that bids will be opened April 6 for construction of 358 feet of steel revetment on the north bank of Pine River Channel in front of the Weathervane Inn. The project will complete revetment work on both sides of the channel. The Corps said work will start in May.

—Learned from City Superintendent Thomas Hanna that the city golf course has been closed to snowmobilers because of the mild weather.

—Heard a presentation by Lee Moerland, representing the County Board of Commissioners, asking for a joint effort by the county, Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Beaver Island to improve airport facilities. He suggested an initial outlay of $20,000 by the county and $5,000 each from each community with an airport to provide planning funds. The council said it would like to meet with the commission on the proposal. Moerland said he also would like the city to take an active role in reapportionment, once the final 1970 census figures become available. Speaking as an individual, said there is a need in the county for some type of organization to keep local residents abreast of pending legislation in Lansing and Washington.

Mayor William Fochtman appointed Alderman Roger Westenbroek, Nathan Boss and Robert Gill to a committee to draw up a job description for the city superintendent's office, on the recommendation of Westenbroek.

There was no action on the labor contract with city employes. Mayor Fochtman said the council needs more time to study it.

NOT SO NEW

Incas of South America discovered freeze-dried food centuries ago. A Spanish account of 1609 described how the Indians set out potatoes at night to freeze, then trod on them to squeeze out the moisture. After drying in the sun they kept "for a long time."

'Ego States' Blamed For Generation Gap

Three different "ego states" working within each individual are responsible for the so-called generation gap, or communication gap, the Rev. James Sherman, former associate pastor of the Charlevoix Congregational Church told the Charlevoix Women's Club at its March meeting at the Weathervane Inn.

Rev. Sherman said the Eric Byrne in his book "The Games People Play" points out everyone embraces the ego states of a parent, child and adult within him and his reaction to given situations depends on which one is in control.

The parent represents the conditions and attitudes people are taught by their parents, teachers and the mores of society.

The child is the part that wants to respond freely and without inhibition, not weighing the effect of actions.

The adult is the ego state that begins to take over greater control as the parent phase declines in importance. The adult tries to be objective, to weigh accumulated information and experience, and, in the mature individual, is more in control than either the parents or child.

Rev. Sherman said the younger generation often rejects the words of older members of society, but not necessarily their values, because the words have a different meaning to them.

He suggested that parents and concerned adults learn to listen more, rather than to overwhelm young people with words which will be rejected.

Turning to "law and order," he cautioned against reacting to violence without considering what caused the violence.

"When you try to suppress something that has a valid basis, because it frightens you, that creates real revolution," he said.

In the business meeting following Rev. Sherman's talk, Mrs. Gordon Rower reported that the benefit card parties held in February netted $75 for the Girlstown Building Fund. Girlstown is a home for emotionally disturbed girls which is supported entirely by the Federated Woman's Clubs of Michigan.

Shirley Green, 508 W. Lincoln, was winner of the broiler-rotisserie, the prize in another fund-raising activity.

Hostesses at the meeting, which featured a green and white St. Patrick's Day tea table, were Mrs. George Nipson, Mrs. Harry Custer, Mrs. Kit Carson and Mrs. Wayne Beltel.

Friends and several local neighbors met with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neilsen Saturday afternoon at our local church for the wedding of their daughter, Sharon, and James Huff, both former students at Ferris State College. After the ceremony a reception was held in the church dining room. The couple have the very best wishes of all their local friends and neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ritchey of Traverse City were guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William LaValley, last Wednesday and Thursday before leaving for three months in England and France on business for Mr. Ritchey's company.

The sun is shining bright and much warmer (25 degrees on Thursday) after another stormy weekend with schools closed on Monday and Tuesday. Hard telling what this weekend will be, the weather being so unpredictable. I really don't know what we will do with much more snow. It's has been hard keeping roads clear and driveways shoveled.

Library Notes

Books by the Pound Still Good Reading

For the past two weeks we have been suggesting and reviewing light slim easy-to-read volumes in our column. The sort of book which can be read and enjoyed quickly. This week our titles can almost be judged by their weight in actual poundage, and each book is worth every ounce of its material.

Lady Bird Johnson's "White House Diary" is a warm and sensitive account of the First Lady's years in the White House. There are marvelous, intimate photographs and 82 pages of interesting antiedotes. Mrs. Johnson, if not the most attractive or dynamic First Lady, has left a very lasting impression. She helped awaken the nation to increasing problems of poverty and the need for better education. She was deeply interested in the beautification of America and the arts at the grass-roots level. Written as a diary, it is a simple absorbing book to read and it brings a new insight into the Johnson administration.

"Stilwell and the American Experience in China" by Barbara W. Tuchman is another ponderous volume, weighing about five pounds. The author, whose previous works have examined World War I and the origins of the world's most violent century, turns her attention, in this book, to the sources of America's involvement in Asia. It is a timely, informative book, and not so scholarly that it cannot be read with pleasure by everyone who enjoys nonfiction and books about real people.

"Great Lakes Indians" by William J. Jubiak is a large book, but it probably tips the scales at just under five pounds. It will appeal to both adults and children because of the countless illustrations–some in color–and at least one on every page. It is a pictorial guide in every sense of the word. Fun to look at, fun to read. This informative book will awaken a new appreciation for the first citizens of North America.

Since we are using the highly unorthodox method of reviewing books by the pound this week, we cannot overlook "The History of Printing in America." Tipping the scales at a healthy seven pounds and beautifully boxed, as befits a Limited Edition, it is a real discovery.

Band Concert Slated Tuesday, March 23

The band concert scheduled for Wednesday, March 17, has been postponed until Tuesday, March 23, because of the frequent school closings, according to Director C. A. Odmark.

The concert, which will feature three Charlevoix School Bands will be held at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

Participating bands will be the Eighth Grade Band, directed by Gary Stutzman and the high school concert and symphony bands, directed by Odmark.

The annual Band Booster candy sale will begin at the concert to raise money for band activities. Chocolate almond bars will be sold before and after the concert.

The Eighth Grade Band will open the concert with a number of selections, including some performed by the group at the recent Junior High Band Festival. The program includes the "Fitzwilliam Suite" by Byrd, the "Beau Galant Overture" by Telemann and the "Allegro Adagio and Alleluiah" by Akers.

The Concert Band, made up of Freshmen and some sophomores, will then present such selections as "The Gypsy Baron" by Strauss, arranged as a concert band march of Harold Walters, "The American Folk Rhapsody" by Clare Grundman and "Prairie Lament" by Walters, based on a well-known cowboy song.

The Symphony Band will close the concert with a group of selections including "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral", arranged by Lucien Cailliet; the contemporary work "Joi" by Robert Logan; the French military march "Father of Victory" by Ganne and "Song of the Bells", a lilting waltz tune by Leroy Anderson.

Although three bands will perform, the program is planned to last no longer than 90 minutes. Tickets are available from any band member and will be available at the door.

Red Rayder Cagers Brightened Long Winter

The Courier offers congratulations to Coach Barry Anderson and his Red Rayder cage squad for their fine showing in the tournaments.

Although the Rayders were stopped by Coleman in the final stage of the Regionals, their sportsmanship and cage savvy during the past two weeks have provided some moments of high drama for basketball fans in northern Michigan.

However, as exciting as the tournament games always are, it was the Rayders' regular season play that kept the fans coming back for more throughout the winter.

To Coach Anderson and his players --- Bill Carey, Bruce Meggison, Kevin Swanson, Larry Potter, Roger Crain, Tim Carey, Dave Swanson, Jerry Pease, Ned Henley, Rick Donaldson, Randy DeYoung, Mark Westenbroek and Paul Osterberg --- we say thanks for making a long, hard northern Michigan winter a little brighter than it might have been.

Barricades, Chains Foreign to Education

Time was when the jobs of the school marm, the school principal and the school superintendent were considered sedentary occupations at best. There was no more spine-tingling drama involved in running a school than there was in knitting a pair of socks or mixing up a batch of fudge.

But such is no longer the case in Detroit, judging from a confrontation last week at MacKenzie High School involving school officials and student protesters.

According to Mary Ellen Riordan, the salty president of the Detroit Federation of Teachers, school officials and faculty members were held hostage and physically threatened by the students until they had secured a written agreement granting amnesty to protestors who staged a sit-in at the school.

Asked whether he was prevented from leaving the room when he was negotiating with students and parents, Regional Superintendent George Adams answered: "Place your own interpretation on what it means when tables and chairs are piled against the door and people carrying chains are blocking the door."

Our question in what kind of an education are the students at MacKenzie High School receiving with the students themselves, aided and abetted by their parents, calling the shots?

We prefer the "good old days" -- which still exist in Charlevoix, by the way -- when the teacher was boss and a visit to the principal's office was something akin to entering the gates of hell.

Chains and barricades are foreign to any definition of the word "education" in our dictionary.

Council Cooled By Hot Temper

"I'm fighting for a million-dollar contract;" Tom Shaw, president of the Shaw-Henderson Construction Co. of Cheboygan told the Charlevoix City Council last Monday night.

Then he proceeded to say some very uncomplimentary things about the Clark Construction Co. of Lansing, low-bidder for the general construction portion of Charlevoix's new waste water treatment plant, and to discredit the professional integrity of John Holland, the Ann Arbor engineer who has worked closely with the city council since the inception of the project.

All of which was unnecessary and left a bad impression on the council, which, in the end, abided by Holland's recommendation and awarded the contract to Clark.

Shaw's main argument was that one of Clark's subcontractors had underbid his portion of the work and had withdrawn the day after the bids were opened.

Which, so far as we can see, is neither here nor there. Clark has agreed to build the plant for $1,190,245 --- $255 less than the Shaw-Henderson bid -- and we are confident that any new subcontractors engaged by Clark will be fully qualified.

Before Shaw's outburst, many members of the council were on the fence. They would have liked nothing better than to award the job to a northern Michigan contractor, just to keep some of the money in the area.

But Tom Shaw learned too late that the quickest way to lose a job is to lose your temper. He might have won the contract if he had stayed home.

Snow Blowers Beat Plows

Dear Mr. Clock:

The road crews deserve praise for their skill and persistence in removing snow from the roads this winter, but the snow plow equipment builds snow banks and these banks have several undesirable effects in rural areas.

The snow banks tend to create progressively bigger drifts and snow banks as the season progresses.

The plow drags snow from the roads along the snow banks until they come to a vacant space in the snow bank and then all of the snow is pushed into the vacant space, and that space is usually someone's cleaned-out driveway.

The snow banks obstruct vision at intersections and driveways. Snow blowers apparently build little or no snow banks. If the trucks could be equipped with snow blowers instead of plows, and the driver could control the direction of the snow discharge chute from his seat, perhaps the objectionable aspects of snow removal from the roads could be eliminated in rural areas.

OFFICE OF THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF
STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND
OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE,
NEBRASKA, 68113

9 MAR 1971

Dear Mr. Clock:

On behalf of the officers and airmen of the Strategic Air Command, I wish to thank you for your editorial of 13 January 1971 concerning the crash of one of our bombers into Lake Michigan off Charlevoix. While many speculated about other aspects of that tragic accident, you were the only writer – to my knowledge – specifically to remind your readers that nine men, nine fellow human beings, died that night.

Their deaths underscore the fact that training to fight a war, a war we hope will never occur, can be hazardous. Colonel Lemmon's mission was routine, however, and not particularly dangerous. He and his crew were highly trained and flying a practice sortie over a well-designated route. The B-52, such as the one in which they flew, has an excellent safety record, equal to or even better than most other aircraft. Still something failed, and they fell to their deaths, as other Americans have fallen before them, in defense of our country and our freedom.

All of us pray for the day when such sacrifices no longer will be requested of any of us. Until that distant time, though, we must maintain a posture of preparedness and strength that, hopefully, will prevent a nuclear conflict.

Your appreciation of our role in this endeavor is a source of great satisfaction to me, and again I want to thank you for your understanding and to thank the people of the Charlevoix area for their many kindnesses to the SAC people who live among you.

Sincerely,
B. K. HOLLOWAY

UP Visitors Critical Of Co. Snow Removal

Pickford, Michigan
March 11, 1971

The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Mich. 49720

Dear Sir:

Charlevoix, the Beautiful!

It sure is in the summer time, but we are not so sure that we shall visit it in the winter time soon again.

The people in your town are most friendly, the snowmobiling on the hills in the country is wonderful, but, your snow removal equipment after a snowstorm such as the one last weekend leave something to be desired.

We were obliged to visit Burns Medical Center over the past weekend. We thought what a good time to take along the snowmobile and visit some friends in the Barnard-rd. area of Charlevoix County. We did and we got caught in the snowstorm of the weekend.

We did not object to being stranded the weekend as it gave us an excellent chance to see the countryside by snowmobile, and we would recommend the area to anyone for this sport.

But we did object to the poor effort made by the County Road Commission Monday and Tuesday to get the road plowed so we could come home. We live in the eastern end of the Upper Peninsula where snow is nothing new and where we have 25 inches more than we had last year and it is all moved back nicely from the roads so when a storm comes we are able to be out and going with little delay, visibility usually keeps us home more than plugged roads.

As we were on our way to our friends home we commented about the high banks which appeared to never have been moved back, cut down with a bank-slicer or wing plow, and blown away with a Sno-Go. Our friends informed us that your country does not even own such equipment as a Sno-Go blower. To us this is unthinkable in an area that is as close to Lake Michigan as your county is and an area that gets winds and snow like you received over the past weekend.

When it became apparent that the road was not going to be opened for sometime, this was Tuesday morning, our friend and my husband went hunting for some snowremoval equipment to see what the prospects were for getting to us that day. No equipment in the immediate area. A neighbor told us that she had heard that the snow removal machines were broken down, this in addition to the Michigan loader that had been laid up for repairs prior to this time.

So we began to look for other ways to get out. My husband had already missed two days work. Scouting around we found a team of horses that would for a fee pull our pickup across the fields about a mile to a road that was plowed after a fashion. This we did, taking two hours and lots of sweat for both the horses and men. We could just see our pickup stuck out in the field until the spring thaw. We are out and we are thankful that Old Dobbin is still around in some areas.

While all this was going on I inquired about previous times when this area had been stranded and to my surprise I found that this happens more often than they would like. We couldn't help but think how expensive this must be to the farmers in the areas who must of necessity let hundreds of pounds of milk run down the drain in the milkhouse floor. This is their livelihood and it is just like lighting a match to your money and watching it burn.

In addition to this what would happen if there was a serious accident such as a heart attack, on one of these unplowed roads, a person gets scared just thinking about the consequences of such a happening to say nothing of all the mothers who must be ready to climb the walls after having the children home for days from school.

There is an old saying, "the squeaking wheel gets the grease." When property taxes are what they are in your county, as farmers we sure would holler, squeal or whatever is necessary to get some up to date equipment to remove snow in your area

We did enjoy the extra time spent with our friends if it hadn't been for the little nagging in the back of my mind of being stranded and not being able to get to work. We will no doubt be back to visit but you can be sure if there is one cloud in the sky and its winter we will leave our truck on a main road and ride our snowmobile

We Grew Twice as Fast As State During 1960's

Charlevoix County's official population in the 1970 census was 16,541, up 23.2 percent from the 1960 figure of 13,421, the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, reports.

The official population of the state was 8,875,083, up 13.4 percent from the 1960 population count, which was 7,823,194.

The 1970 census counted 16,277 white persons in Charlevoix County, 98.4 percent of the total; and 264 persons of other races. In 1960, 98.2 percent of the population was white.

The census showed 1,440 children under 5 years; 4,847 in ages 5 through 17; 8,376 people 18 through 64; and 1,878 who were 65 and older. The population 14 years and over included 7,824 married people; 961 who were widowed, 261 divorced, and 2,618 never married.

Charlevoix County's 1970 population was classified as 39.2 percent urban, and 60.8 percent rural.

There were 5,002 households, with 16,376 persons, including 817 one-person households. In addition 165 persons were living in group quarters.

The 1970 census counted 7,617 housing units in Charlevoix County, 4,118 of them occupied by owners, 884 occupied by tenants, and 2,615 vacant. These included vacant units for seasonal use. The proportion occupied by owners in 1970 was 54.1 percent, compared with 48.6 percent in 1960.

Among year-round dwelling units there were 5,549 single family houses, 403 housing units in multi-unit buildings, and 281 mobile homes or trailers. The percentage of occupied units with more than one person per room was 8.3, compared with 9.6 in 1960. Of all the occupied housing units, 4,687 had piped water, toilet, and bath, while 315 lacked some or all plumbing.

The median value of owner-occupied houses in Charlevoix County was $12,000, compared with $6,600 in 1960. The median rent paid by tenants in 1970 was $77 per month, compared with $66 in 1960. Half were over and half below the [illegible] figures.

Friske Questionnaire: Who Is He Kidding?

By BOB CLOCK

For many years now, our elected representatives to Washington and Lansing have been using the questionnaire to gauge public sentiment about legislative matters before they come up for a vote in their respective houses.

The validity of such questionnaires has been doubted in some quarters because:

–It is virtually impossible to send a questionnaire to every constituent.

–Only a fraction of those sent out actually are completed and returned to the representative, and, thirdly,

--The questions are sometimes heavily weighted to reflect the representative's own thinking on any given issue.

The last point is the downfall of a recent questionnaire mailed out by Richard Friske, the new state representative from the 106th district. Friske's "editorializing" in his questions is so obvious that only the most naive recipient would actually believe that Friske is interested in his opinion. But Friske leaves no doubt as to where he stands and how he intends to vote on almost every single issue.

His mind is already made up and the questionnaire certainly will serve no earthly purpose.

The situation would be laughable, if the issues at hand were not so serious and if the constituents were not footing the bill for the printing and distribution of the questionnaire through their tax dollars.

Apparently Friske's questionnaires were sent only to married couples, because there is a column of "yes" and "no" answers to be checked off by both the husband and wife.

Here are some samples of Friske's "loaded" questions:

ABORTION LAW REFORM

Should the state ignore the principles of the Bible, which is the Law of God, and morality and legalize murder by abortion?

ENVIRONMENT

Do you think that Michigan should enact Gestapo type laws that would reward citizens for spying on and reporting on other citizens for such offenses as air or water pollution?

Should a proposal be placed on the next election's ballot for a state bonding program to make long-term, low interest loans to firms that are unable to find private financing for needed pollution control equipment and facilities, knowing that such programs will be directly paid for by your, the taxpayer?

Air pollution in the big metropolitan areas is a similar problem. Should the Legislature spend a higher percentage of your tax dollar to combat this so-called plight? (Ed's note: He probably means blight.)

TAXATION AND SPENDING

Would you object to paying LESS taxes each year if you felt government could–by trying a lot harder–get along with LESS revenue?

If I were to acquaint you with a plan to reduce federal spending to the extent that the personal income tax would no longer be required, would you support the plan? (Keep in mind that Friske is our state representative and has nothing whatsoever to do with the federal government.)

Do you believe that taxes on farms and farm lands should be subject to the whims of the government?

If you know the federal functions authorized by the Constitution could be covered by all other present forms of revenue, would you insist upon retaining the personal income tax simply because it has become an "American Institution?"

Do you believe that farmers and other citizens should be penalized when selling their property because they made a sound investment?

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Would you favor a further infringement upon free enterprise by permitting the law to require all retail products to be priced per unit, that is, by the pound, ounce, quart, etc., instead of by the package, or as preferred by the packer?

Should we leave the free market system to the free enterpriser and let the best and thriftiest come out on top, as was intended by our Constitution?

Do you favor a mingling of the state in your private affairs or anybody else's?

DRUG ABUSE

Recent research indicates marijuana may be more harmful than many medical authorities previously believed. Considering these facts, do you think the selling of marijuana should be regarded as a crime, and punishment administered accordingly?

Of course, not all of Friske's questions are as "loaded" as these, but in order to have any validity at all any questionnaire should strive for objectivity.

In his preface to the questionnaire, Friske writes: "The problems and issues we will be dealing with in the months ahead are numerous and serious. I will need the benefit of your attitudes and opinions to effectively represent our district. That is why I ask that you take a few minutes to complete this questionnaire and return it to me.

"Your answers will provide me with a guide in many areas and, together with other information I will obtain will assist me in making decisions on our behalf."

Just who is Friske trying to kid?

Soggy Pillow

By Jim Fitzgerald

A romantic guy could get his pillow wet.

Stop right there. If you know what the above sentence means, without readying any further, you win a prize. You win the F. Scott Fitzgerald Memorial Trophy, suitable engraved. But it won't be back from the engravers for several weeks. I'll call you.

Scott Fitzgerald was no relative of mine. But he is my favorite novelist. I was hooked by his "The Great Gatsby" many years ago and never shook loose.

Life magazine, and other slick sources, report that this country is currently having a nostalgic fit over the 1920's and 1930's. Ruby Keeler has returned from the dead to tap dance in a Broadway revival of "No, No Nanette," choreography by Busby Berkley, for Lord's sake. There's a W.C. Fields film festival on every channel. And isn't that Ricardo Cortez leering at Delores Del Rio?

I love the memories – and I'm doing my part to keep them alive. Scott Fitzgerald glowed in the 20's, and dimmed in the 30's, always fascinating. So I just read "Zelda," the splendid biography of Fitzgerald's wacky wife, and "The Garden of Allah," the incredible tale of a Hollywood motel written by Sheilah Graham, the gossip columnist who was Fitzgerald's mistress.

Which finally brings us to the subject of the day, that pillow that might have got wet. Here's a paragraph Sheilah wrote about Scott:

"The Garden. I always went there with Scott on Saturday after lunch at the Hollywood or Beverly Hills Brown Derby. There was the time I took a bath in his apartment, and he came in and put a pillow under my head. That small gesture bound me to him forever."

Ah. He pillowed her as she bathed and, presto! She was his forever. That devil.

How many of us mortal slobs would think to do a thing like that? I didn't even know women like pillows in their tubs. I certainly had no idea a life-long conquest could be made simply by dipping a pillow.

I can't even understand how Scott got in the bathroom. My wife always locks the door.

I asked her about the pillow business. She said if I gave her a pillow in the tub she would sit on it. Somehow that doesn't sound so romantic.

"But would such a romantic gesture bind you to me forever?" I asked.

"I would be more impressed if you would take the Christmas lights off the front of the house before July," she said.

"F. Scott Fitzgerald is remembered as one of the most romantic men ever. Don't you want me to be like him?" I asked.

"He drove his wife insane and he died a drunk," she said.

"Yes," I said.

Onward and Upward.

Ancient Olive Challenged As Prime Source of Oil

The olive is being squeezed by some aggressive challengers.

Sunflower, peanut, sesame, and vegetable oils are all vigorously competing with olive oil in world markets, the National Geographic Society says.

Alarmed by the threat, several counties bordering the Mediterranean have sent representatives to the new International Center for the Improvement and Demonstration of Olive Production Techniques in Alameda del Obispo, Spain.

SEEK HIGHER YIELDS

Located near Cordoba, the Center offers courses in olive tree culture and modern oil production methods. Research programs will examine nutritional value of the fruit, experimental plantings of higher yielding varieties, and mechanical harvesting.

Mediterranean countries have relied on the olive for centuries. Rose, sage, and coriander were mixed with oil in "unguent boilers" to produce a perfumed product that became a major export and royal monopoly of Bronze Age realms.

Ancient Greeks paid taxes in olive oil and offered it in rituals to their gods. It was used in cooking, burned in clay lamps, and spread like butter on bread.

The fragrant yellowish-white flowers and silver-green leaves from dense groves of the "Tree of Abundance" provided medicines as well as the garlands that crowned victorious warriors and Olympic champions.

The Romans contended that a long and pleasant life depended on two fluids: "wine within and oil without."

HEAVY YIELD

Rome's bitter enemy Carthage also depended on olives as a major crop. They remain a staple in modern Tunisia, where one tree may yield half a ton yearly and serve several owners. Each tends his own branches.

Today, Italy, Spain, and Greece lead the world in oil production. In a few places the pressing still is done by crude, wooden hand devices similar to those used in Biblical times, but most of the oil is extracted by hydraulic or gear-driven equipment.

Olive trees were introduced into the United States by Spanish missionaries in the 18th century. The trees thrived in southern California, which now produces the fruit primarily for the canning industry.

Oil is extracted only from olives that fail to meet canning standards. As a result, the United States in 1968 produced just 1.3 million tons of edible oil; it imported 58,000 tons.

Until the 20th century, many of California's olive trees served primarily as windbreaks for citrus orchards. Then in 1901, a professor at Berkeley showed that olives could be canned like other fruit, and the olive industry was born.

propane gas and a new radiator for the diesel engine which powers the island's electrical generator.

The ship made a second trip to the island March 11 with more fuel to relieve the shortage, which has been aggravated by an unusually severe winter on the island.

The Sundew would not have traveled to the island if the fuel could have been delivered by commercial carriers, Lt. Cmdr. Williams said. But clearance was received from 9th Coast Guard District headquarters in Cleveland after officials were satisfied that no other vessel in the area could make the trip.

Lt. Cmdr. Williams said the Guard takes pains not to compete with private enterprise.

Mrs. Vernon (Dick) LaFreniere, wife of the proprietor of one of the island's two general stores, reports that the gasoline shortage was growing acute before the Sundew arrived. Two of the island's three dealers were out completely and the small amount left in the LaFreniere's own tanks was being reserved for the island's only doctor.

Mrs. LaFreniere says other supplies on the island are holding out well, "although we'll probably run out of 25-lb. sacks of flour before it's over."

She said she still has flour in smaller quantities, but the big 25-pound bags are popular with island housewives, many of whom bake their own bread during the winter.

Other foodstuffs, like fresh meat and vegetables, are flown in daily from Charlevoix by Joe McPhillips, manager of the Charlevoix Airport. McPhillips also delivers the mail after the ferry Beaver Islander ceases operations in December.

But one commodity essential to the success of the island's annual St. Pat's party — beer — is still in plentiful supply, Mrs. LaFreniere said. Islanders laid in ample quantities before the Beaver Islander made her last trip Dec. 26.

Vo-Ed Topic At PTO Meet

Jim Shepard, consultant in vocational - technical education for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, will discuss the April 12 millage vote for vocational education at the next Charlevoix PTO meeting, scheduled Wednesday, March 24, at the Elementary School at 7:30 p.m.

He also will help make plans for the April PTO meeting, which will be a clinic on vocational education for parents and students.

Also on the March 24 program is a discussion of instructional materials centers by Mrs. Joy Mudge and Mrs. Marie Webb.

A short open-house with refreshments will be held in the all-purpose room after the meeting, hosted by parents of First and Second Grade students.

Bells Bay Owners Ready Plat Despite Protests

The drive to have the Department of Natural Resources purchase property in the Bells Bay area to prevent residential development is picking up steam, but plans for the subdivision are continuing regardless.

Here are the latest developments:

--Engineer Richard Bidstrup of Harbor Springs said Monday that he planned to present preliminary plans for a 200-homesite development to the Norwood Township Board Tuesday night.

--Wesley McAtee, a representative of the Howard Keating Corp. of Birmingham which is developing the property says he hopes to have development of the property under way this summer.

--The Charlevoix Board of Commissioners last Wednesday passed a resolution urging the state to preserve the Lake Michigan shoreline in question "as a wilderness area for state park or state forest purposes."

--William Cooper of Charlevoix last week presented to State Sen. Robert W. Davis and Rep. Richard Friske petitions containing 500 signatures of Charlevoix residents objecting to the development of the land and urging that it be acquired by the Department of Natural Resources.

The property considered for development lies to the south of the Jordan River State Forest campground at Bells Bay and extends south along the shore to a point about one-quarter of a mile north of Fisherman's Island.

Plat books show the property belonging to the Branch Corp. (northern portion) and John P. O'Neill (southern portion).

However, Grover Geneit, register of deeds, says that the property was transferred Nov. 4, 1970, to a Robert J. Fries, 22060 W. 13 Mile-rd., Birmingham, an officer in the Keating Corp.

McAtee, representing Keating, says the land to be developed does not include the portion opposite Fisherman's Island, which he says is still in O'Neill's name.

Ownership of the land has been confusing for several years, Geneit says, because it has been transferred on his books from John P. O'Neill to the Branch Corp. and back to John P. O'Neill on several occasions. However, the entire tract is now recorded under Fries' name, he reports.

Contrary to popular belief, the property does not begin at Inwood Creek, but at a log cabin, just south of the campground, owned by Lester A. Wheeler.

Bidstrup says the development involves about 360 acres and extends about one-quarter mile south of Inwood Creek.

McAtee says he is aware of local efforts to have the state acquire the property and has been contacted by Department of Natural Resources officials.

However, with the state's present austerity program, he said the state would be unable to come up with sufficient funds to buy the land for another eight or ten years.

Plan Is Submitted To Norwood Board

He said acquisition of the land does not have a No. 1 priority so far as the state is concerned.

Jack Lockwood, area forester at Boyne City, says the state has been interested in buying the land for several years but has been unable to come up with sufficient funds.

Although it is difficult to put a price on the property, the best estimates have it that the entire tract would go for about $1 million, including Fisherman's Island, although the island is not included in present development plans.

County Commissioner Ken Staley says money for the purchase may be forthcoming from a number of sources. He suggested specifically Michigan's voted recreation bond money and proceeds from the licensing of snowmachines.

Lockwood said snowmobile money goes into the general fund and it would take an act of the legislature to earmark any for land acquisition.

Dean Mikulski, chief sanitarian for District Health Department No. 3, says his office has been not been contacted about the development, although his office must first approve the plat before any lots are sold.

However, he said two men visited his office within the past year, identified themselves as representatives of the Branch Corp. and inquired about requirements relative to plat development.

Mikulski believes there are two major drawbacks to residential development in the area, namely a high water table and outcroppings of limestone. Both conditions pose problems in water supply and sewage disposal.

Bidstrup said no soil sampling has been done in the area to date, but that it will begin as soon as the weather breaks. He reportedly has worked from aerial photos of the site.

The Keating Corp. has handled approximately 100 home developments in Wayne and Oakland Counties, although it has done no work to date in northern Michigan, according to McAtee. He said the company plans a high-quality development of which "Charlevoix can be proud."

Following is the text of the resolution passed by the County Board of Commissioners:

"Whereas, the Board has been advised that development and subdivision of the so-called "Fishermans Island" property in this county is eminent, and

"Whereas, the Board recognizes that said "Fishermans Island property is one of the few remaining undeveloped shore line area long Lake Michigan and,

"Whereas, the Board is of the opinion that the overriding public interest and public good would be served by maintaining said property in its original undeveloped state as a wilderness area or for use as state park or forest purposes.

"Now, therefore it is unanimously resolved by the Board that the State of Michigan be and hereby is strongly urged to preserve one of the few remaining undeveloped shore line areas of Lake Michigan by purchasing and holding for public trust as a wilderness area of for state park or state forest purposes the so-called "Fishermans Island" property located in the townships of Charlevoix and Norwood, Charlevoix County, State of Michigan."

Rep. Robert Davis sent a copy of the resolution to Samuel A. Milstein of the DNR's Parks Division.

"My constituents are vitally interested in the State of Michigan acquiring the property south of Bells Bay State Forest, which includes Fishermans Island on Lake Michigan in Charlevoix County. There are additional petitions being circulated to be present to me at a later date.

"As a former resident, I know you are very familiar with the property involved. We have had many discussions on this property, and I again want to reaffirm to you my position of wholehearted support for the purchase of this land.

"I ask that you immediately pursue all avenues and explore every possibility so that this area might be preserved before the development company which now owns it commences to sell."

AF Tests Bomb Routes

To Stay 6 Miles From Consumers

Strategic Air Command (SAC) headquarters in Omaha, Nebr., has announced that a B52 bomber crew will try out three new approach routes over the Bay Shore Bomb Scoring Site today (Wednesday).

The flights were discontinued Jan. 7 after a B52 bomber out of Westover AFB, Mass., crashed and burned in Lake Michigan off Big Rock Point, claiming the lives of the nine crewmen aboard.

SAC said three revised low-level training routes will be given trial runs Wednesday, weather permitting, during daylight hours.

The aircraft will spend approximately three hours in the air, making several passes on each of the three proposed routes.

SAC said the B52 will not carry nuclear warheads and will fly no lower than 500 feet and no higher than 2,200 feet.

The aircraft will stay six miles from Consumers Power Company's nuclear plant at Big Rock Point. Previous flight plans used a target within a mile of the plant, and Consumers protested after the plane crashed.

If weather conditions are unfavorable Wednesday, the Tax Lag Worries Board

The Charlevoix School District could find itself scratching for pennies by the end of the school year because of lagging tax collections and delinquent state aid, according to Superintendent Robert Miller.

Miller told the Board of Education Monday night that tax collections stand at 68.39 percent—which means a quarter of a million dollars to the school district.

Miller said the district had anticipated $921,919.56 in property taxes, but has received only $671,938.47.

Although tax money is still dribbling in, the slow collections are causing the school administration some sleepless nights.

In addition, the February state aid payment was shy $18,000 from what it should have been, and another cutback is anticipated in April.

Complicating the picture is the fact that the district will receive less state money than it originally anticipated because of Gov. William Milliken's revised aid formula.

In the face of diminished operating funds, Miller and Business Manager Harold Kaufman are in the process of drawing up next year's budget, which will be submitted to the board at the next meeting April 12. The tentative budget must be approved and submitted to the County Tax Allocation Board at its April meeting.

Miller says he hopes the Allocation Board will continue to earmark [illegible] mills of the 15-mill allocation to schools, but he says other county units will probably ask for more revenue.

He mentioned specifically

Chance of Peace 'Zero', Pastor Says

The outlook for a speedy settlement to the war in Vietnam is not encouraging, Rev. Bruce Pierce of the Boyne City United Methodist Church, reported last week after conferring with peace negotiators in Paris.

Rev. Pierce, who talked with representatives of North Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary government as well as members of the American delegation and spokesmen for the Saigon government, said the situation appears deadlocked with neither side willing to budge.

He said the United States insists on release of 339 American prisoners of war and a cease-fire before withdrawal of troops.

North Vietnam, on the other hand, says that the United States must set a date for the withdrawal of military forces and to promise to withhold any and all support of the Saigon leaders before it will talk peace.

"The probability of success at the peace table right now is zero," Rev. Pierce said.

In addition to the official peace negotiators, Rev. Pierce talked with representatives of the Cambodian government, western journalists, Laotian students, an ex-minister of the Saigon government and a Buddhist monk named Thich Nhat Hanh.

He said the Buddhists in Vietnam appear to be motivated as much politically as they are religiously.

Rev. Pierce said the delegates meet only an hour or so a week at Paris' Majestic Hotel and then go home.

He pointed out that the United States is attempting to act as "middle man" in the negotiations, despite America's military commitment to Saigon.

The pastor said it has been suggested that the talks be turned over to the United Nations, but that North Vietnam has declined.

He said the North also has objected to bringing the U.N. Secretary General U Thant into the talks as a private person.

"Because of his U.N. connection, U Thant can't be a private person," he pointed out.

Rev. Pierce feels that progress could be made if the United States, through pressure on the present Legislature and the election of more sympathic legislators, would soften its stand on conditions for peace.

Rev. Pierce's trip was sponsored by The American Friends Service Committee, Clergy and Laymen Concerned and the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

About 170 delegates made the trip. Rev. Pierce was one of 12 who met personally with David Bruce, the chief U.S. negotiator.

To date, Rev. Pierce has 10 speaking engagements lined up before social and service organizations in the area.

REV. BRUCE PIERCE, pastor of the Methodist Church in Boyne City, has returned from a week long visit with peace negotiators in Paris. His prognosis for an early settlement of the Vietnam war: Gloomy

County Earmarks Airport Funds

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Wednesday:

--Allocated $20,000 for airport development in Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and on Beaver Island – providing the communities where the airports are located kick in $5,000 each.

--Approved payment of $25 a meeting for members of the County (Whiting) Park Commission, plus 10 cents a mile to and from meetings. The pay is retroactive to Jan. 1. Chairman William Taylor and Commissioner Ken Staley voted "no."

--Increased the salary of the Whiting Park caretaker from $2,000 to $3,000 a year and relieved him of the responsibility of running the concession stand. Instead, the caretaker will remove dead elms in the park.

--Approved the appropriation of one-half mill from the county's 1971 allocation to be used to buy equipment for the Road Commission. William Korthase jr., chairman of the commission and commission member Ivan Phillips made the request. The county has spent $100,800 so far this winter on snow removal alone, Korthase said.

--Set aside $10,000 to assist in the hiring assessors in the various taxing units if needed in order to comply with state law.

--Approved four annual payments, rather than one lump sum, for the Northwest Michigan Economic Development District, the Child Care Fund, the Copy and Recording Fund and the Department of Social Services, whose combined budgets total about $55,000. The money will be invested, bringing a return of about $2,000 a year.

Stroud was appointed by County Clerk Clarence F. Rabach, County Treasurer Anah Potter and Sheriff Philo Sumner.

The Allocation Board meets every April to divvy up the county's 15-mill levy between the county, schools, townships and the Intermediate School District.

Stroud will represent townships on the board.

Other members of the board are the treasurer, the chairman of the ways and means committee of the County Board of Commissioners, the Intermediate District superintendent, a member of a school board within the county, a resident of a municipality within the county and a member not officially connected with any local governmental unit.

DNR Lists Streams Open On April 3

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources is now offering anglers free lists designating some 60 Great Lakes streams which will be opened April 3 to extended hook-and-line fishing for steelhead, brown trout, lake trout, and salmon.

The lists, available from the DNR's Publications Room in Lansing, also pinpoint about 40 streams of lakes Michigan, Superior, and Huron where these fish may be taken by anglers throughout the year.

Limited supplies of the stream directory have been distributed to fishing license dealers and DNR district field offices throughout Michigan to serve as reference copies at these various points.

About 300 dealers in the major fishing areas of Muskegon, Manistee, Benzie, Leelanau, Grand Traverse, Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, Kalkaska, Oceana, and Mason counties have a modest number of the free lists to pass out to fishermen.

Anglers wishing to be sure of obtaining their own individual copies of the list should write to: Early Trout-Salmon List, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Publications Room, Stevens T. Mason Bldg., Lansing, Michigan 48926.

In urging the planting of trees during the week, Gov. Now that the weather has calmed down from front page news - would like to report that the little red balls and flags are still flying on the cars - and folks coming home early from the south are finding 4 to 6 foot snow banks in their front yards. But Lake Michigan is breaking up gradually - and we still have nine below for our winter low temperature. Now everyone is starting to look for that first robin.

Legion, Auxiliary Host District Meet

By Beth Genelt

The Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 American Legion and Auxiliary hosted the quarterly district meeting at the Legion Post Home on Sunday March 14.

Representatives attending the meeting from Alpena, Bellaire, Ellsworth, Cheboygan, Harbor Springs, East Jordan, Petoskey, Wolverine and Charlevoix.

A turkey dinner was enjoyed by the members, and at the joint social hour which followed door prizes were awarded which had been furnished by Oleson's, Topside and Parsels. Winners were Vern Jones, Tom Ferguson (Lower 11th District Commander) of Alpena, Mack Densmore (4th Zone Commander) of Midland, Bill Stephens of Petoskey and Herb Wardle.

After the social hour the Legionnaires moved to the County Building for their business meeting.

One of the main items of business was the introduction of a resolution by Bob Wasocki that the group endorse the objective of having the start of Vietnam hostilities effective date be moved back to Feb. 1, 1955, instead of 1962 so that veterans can obtain many of the benefits which have been denied them, such as schooling, disability benefits, and other benefits now available to others.

The Auxiliary held their meeting in the Post Home. Many business items were discussed, centering on membership, music contest, Poppy Day, Rehabilitation, Handkerchief program, Junior Activities and Child Welfare.

The Betty Crocker coupon campaign for a kidney machine has been extended and all cooperating members can send coupons direct to Mary Lou Breakey in East Jordan or given to any member. Nine past presidents were introduced to the group.

A School of Instruction is to be held in Alpena at 8:30 a.m. April 3. Breakfast and lunch will be served.

The next District Meeting will be held at Ellsworth on Saturday June 13.

Need Lawyer? Call 800-292-7950

You don't have a lawyer and you don't know how to choose one. You think you have a legal problem but you're not really sure, and you're afraid of what it might cost to even find out.

Help may be as close as your telephone.

A new statewide Lawyer Referral Service began operating in Michigan on March 1. Sponsored by the State Bar of Michigan, the service makes it possible for a person in any part of the state to obtain legal advice from a lawyer in his own or a nearby community, for a modest consultation fee.

The process starts with a telephone call to the State Bar Lawyer Referral Service. A caller in any part of Michigan can reach the Service toll-free by dialing his local Direct-Dial Access Code followed by 800-292-7850. Calls to the Lawyer Referral Service may be placed Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

After a brief determination of the nature of the problem and the caller's location, the Lawyer Referral Service staff will furnish the name, address and telephone number of a participating lawyer near him. The caller then makes his own appointment with the attorney.

Michigan lawyers who participate in the State Bar Lawyer Referral Service have agreed to afford referred clients an initial conference of one half-hour for a fee of $10, which is less than the customary rate for office consultation.

If discussion in the initial conference indicates a legal problem requiring further legal services, it is up to the client to decide whether he wishes to proceed. Neither client nor lawyer is obligated to go beyond the initial conference and $10 fee. Arrangements for further legal services which may be required will be those agreed upon between the client and lawyer.

Commenting on the new service, State Bar President Charles W. Joiner said:

"We know that many people of moderate means erroneously fear that they cannot afford legal services, and hesitate even to explore possible legal problems with an attorney.

"Local bar associations in some of our larger cities have done much to meet this problem by sponsoring lawyer referral services in their own communities. The State Bar of Michigan is pleased that it can now offer the same service—the opportunity to discuss possible legal problems and receive professional advice at reasonable cost—to all citizens of Michigan, wherever they may live."

Library Notes

New fiction titles which we are pleased to recommend this week include: John Wain's eighth novel, "A Winter in the Hills."

This young Englishman is widely known in our country as being one of the first of the Angry Young Men writers. His newest book speaks directly to today's human condition—as well as tomorrow's. It is a troubled world and yet one in which a man may live in hope a member of a distinguished Army family. She has travelled extensively and most of her new novel was written while she was in residence at the MacDowell Colony. This is an absorbing novel about a young mother and daughter during wartime. The action begins in Pearl Harbor the day of the infamous attack. From these two women, with totally different viewpoints, we learn of the outer and inner devastation that occurred rather than in despair if he chooses.

The setting is North Wales and it is about a young philologist who has come to the university town to continue his studies on the Welsh tongue. When he hijacks the local school bus, he becomes involved not only in local but perhaps universal affairs. It is a masterful book and highly entertaining.

"The Lion in the Lei Shop" was written by Kaye Starbird among the women during the bombing and its aftermath. Told with humor and compassionate insight, this new book recaptures a dramatic period in the American past.

"THIS IS NO JOKE! I'VE HIDDEN A BOMB ABOARD THIS PLANE. I CAN SET IT OFF ANY TIME WITH A RADIO." And with this warning, the reader is caught up immediately in "Hijacked" by David Harper. The instructions were written in bright orange lipstick on the mirror of one of the restrooms. None of the passengers or members of the crew had any idea which of them was the hijacker. The author is a true storyteller. "Hijacked" is a rare combination of intricate plotting, careful observation and attention to detail that marks the most enjoyable of the best sellers.

"Whistle and I'll Come to You" by Agnes Sligh Turnbull is especially recommended for readers who are weary of being too much "with it." This charming book provides a delightful escape "out of it". The setting is a small town of Callaway, the time is the turn of the century, and it concerns Alice Newcombe, the marriageable daughter of the president of the local bank. We won't disclose the plot but this new title is Agnes Turnbull at her very best which is awfully good, indeed.

We have been having some beautiful sunshine this week that has taken much of our snow which is now dirty and grimey, typical of late March weather. Both of our pet chipmunks get out each day and we have seen horned larks on the roadside, so it won't be long and we will have those welcome April showers to clean the dirt and winter debris away. But it makes one sad to see the empty bottles and trash along the roads that the winter travelers have discarded for others to pick up and carry away.

The Weekly Club met with Mrs. Tom Harrison this St. Patricks afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alexander and daughter Diane are spending this weekend with the latter's father, R. E. Miller who lives in the Porter Hills Presbyterian Home in Grand Rapids and also with friends in Belding.

Friday morning and our weather has changed we are having snow and it looks like another stormy weekend with high winds. Some schools are closed today and driving is getting hazardous. We will still need our shovels before March is over.

Township Officers Study Accounting

The first area-wide training program in township governmental accounting systems, provided at Northwestern Michigan College as a special educational service to township clerks and treasurers, was concluded Saturday with a concentrated work and study session in the college science building.

The program, which began last May, is aimed at updating and revising township accounting procedures so they will conform with a newly developed township governmental accounting system. Under a recently enacted law, all Michigan townships are required to adapt and follow the new system to assure uniformity throughout the state.

Enrolled in the first session here were 17 township clerks and treasurers from Benzie, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau and Wexford counties.

Attending from Charlevoix Township are Mrs. Virginia Cunningham, clerk, and Mrs. Rose Bergmann, treasurer. Studies included 50 hours of specially structured accounting instruction at NMC from May through July, a week-long conference in Lansing in mid-August for training in the use of the uniform accounting system, and two work-study sessions at NMC for specialized assistance with localized matters.

The training course just completed is the first of a planned series, to be held annually, with the second program scheduled to get underway May 3. Joint sponsors of the studies, and similar ones held concurrently throughout the state, are Michigan State University's Institute of Community Development and Services, the Michigan Township Association, and the state Treasury Department's Bureau of Local Government Services.

Two Northwestern Michigan College instructors were selected to direct the program here. They are Glen Anderson, director of the college business division, and William Faulk of the business department faculty, utilizing a team-teacher approach in their instruction of the township officials. Both attended the Lansing conference and both have been asked by the program's sponsors to continue as instructors in the second annual series, beginning in May, which will be held for area township clerks and treasurers who were not enrolled in the program which ended Saturday.

CHARLEVOIX Weight Watchers have lost well over 1,000 pounds since the local chapter was started the first week in December. Here the group listens to lecture by Mrs. Pat Sweet of East Jordan who attained her trim figure via the Weight Watchers' scientific eating regimen.

53.1 Billion Miles Driven In State in '70

Motorists in Michigan drove a record 53.1 billion miles in 1970, the Department of State Highways reports.

The total includes miles driven on all state highways, county roads and municipal streets and exceeds the 1969 total by 2.2 billion miles, or 4.3 percent. Total mileage driven in Michigan has increased each year since World War II.

While mileage was going up, the accident fatality rate dropped from 4.9 deaths per 100 million miles in 1969 to 4.1 in 1970. State police reported 2,177 highway deaths last year--310 fewer than the record 2,487 fatalities in 1969.

The national average fatality rate in 1970 was five deaths per 100 million miles.

Michigan's record fatality rate of 16.8 deaths per 100 million miles occurred in 193 .

The total miles driven is computed on the basis of motor fuel taxes paid to the state's Motor Vehicle High- Fund.

LOTS OF WATER

The water in 22-mile-long Lake Tahoe could cover a flat area the size of the State of California to a depth of more than 14 inches.

Do Lawyers Create Work For Selves?

Dear Mr. Clock:

I appreciate the scholarly reply of Mr. Charles A. Duerr Jr., U. of M. law student, in response to my suggestion that "the courts should confirm that laws are constitutional before they are passed."

I was under the impression that the legal profession is directly responsible for the conduct of the judicial system. However, by convincing the electorate that through education and training lawyers would also make superior legislators and government administrative executives the legal profession has come to dominate all three branches of government.

As a result they can pass unnecessary laws, vague laws, conflicting and contradictory laws, as well as unconstitutional laws, thereby assuring themselves of an abundant supply of "cases or controversies" for the courts to decide, and their colleagues to prosper.

If this is an accurate concept of the system, it was to partly counteract this trend that I suggested that "the courts should confirm that laws are constitutional before they are passed".

It is not difficult to understand why the legal profession, and the courts, disagree with this concept. It is not unusual for the Supreme Court to refuse to hear cases that are clearly within its jurisdiction. The Massachusetts challenge of the constitutionality of the Vietnam War for example.

Obituary

Mr. Warner

Funeral for Harrison H. Warner, 55, was held March 18 at the Winchester Funeral Home, with burial in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Warner died suddenly March 16 while logging near Newberry in the Upper Peninsula.

He was born April 17, 1915, in Norwood Township and lived there all of his life with the exception of six years in the U.S. Army during World War II.

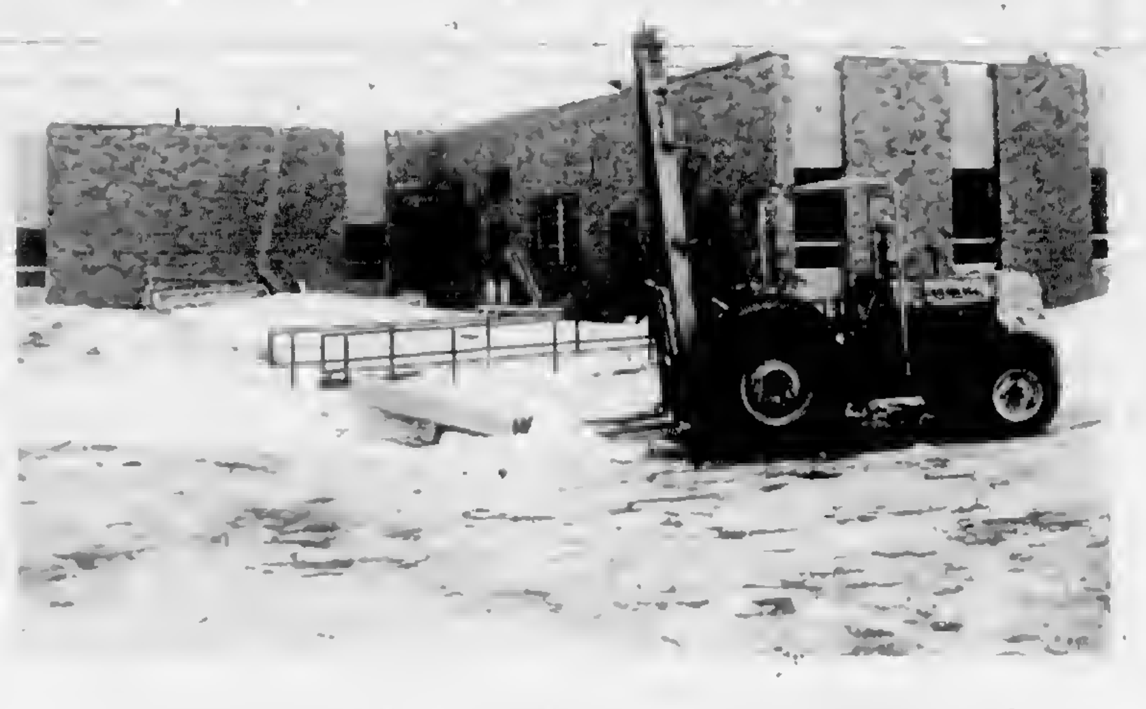
He worked as a farmer and lumberman.

Mr. Warner was married in 1918 to the former Grace Baumbach.

He is survived by his widow; one son, Douglas K., at home; seven brothers, Dickson of Dearborn, Giles of Grand Rapids, and Burton, Clyde, Jasper, Harley and Doyle, all of Charlevoix; and three sisters, Mrs. Raymond Nadeau of Taylor Center, Mrs. George Anderson of Lansing and Mrs. William Habel of Charlevoix.

Makes All A's

Karolyn Odmark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Odmark of Charlevoix, was one of 153 Eastern Michigan University students to achieve a perfect 4.0 average during the fall semester, according to the office of information services.



CONSTRUCTION of the new Charlevoix County jail on Garfield-ave. is almost completed, according to County Clerk Clarence Rabach. The new building will be dedicated this spring.

Griffin's Bill Would Help Poor Kids Get Education

An additional one million college students could receive needed federal assistance to complete their education under legislation co-sponsored by U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.).

Griffin said the bill -- the Higher Education Opportunity Act of 1971 -- "would make it possible for every qualified student, regardless of economic status, to have the necessary financial assistance to go to college."

The Senate's Assistant Republican Leader said he believes it is a "fundamental right" of each American to receive an education--including a college education if he has the aptitude and intelligence.

When he served in the House of Representatives, Sen. Griffin co-authored the National Defense Student Loan program which has benefited some two and three-quarter million students since it became law in 1958.

"Now, additional steps are needed to make sure that no qualified student is denied an education because he happens to be poor," Griffin asserted.

The new legislation would authorize the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to provide a program of grants, work study payments, subsidized loans and loan guarantees to assist qualified students.

Under the proposed Higher Education Opportunity Act of 1971, Griffin said, the National Defense Student Loan revolving fund would continue in its present form.

"Although new federal money would not be added to that fund, it is estimated that an additional $1 billion for both subsidized loans and guaranteed loans would be made available from non-government sources through the creation of a new National Student Loan Association," Griffin said.

Medics Seek Limit On Snowmobile HP

The licensing of snowmobile operators with age restrictions and other requirements comparable to those required for auto licenses is advocated by the Michigan State Medical Society.

The Michigan medical profession also urges "appropriate federal and state legislation to be enacted limiting horsepower and speed of snowmobiles."

"Physicians feel obligated to express our concern over this health-threatening sport," declares a statement approved by the MSMS board of directors. MSMS reports there are over 180,000 snowmobiles in Michigan and that there has been 22 deaths this winter, through March 15.

"It is particularly distressing that many of the casualties are children who are passengers or who are actually operating the snowmobiles," points out Paul W. Gikas, MD, Ann Arbor, chairman of the MSMS Committee on Highway Injury.

Dr. Gikas pleaded for better judgement on the part of snowmobile operators and the development of safety-oriented attitudes.

The medical society statement about snowmobile dangers pointed to high speeds, relatively poor maneuverability, lack of crash worthiness, and "the obstacle-ridden terrain over which many snowmobiles are operated."

The Michigan physicians are urging an expanded safety-educational campaign "in the interest of the health of the people."

Beaver Island

The Beaver Island Flying Club sponsored a hayride recently. About 30 young people went along the ride and enjoyed hot chocolate and donuts and the adults hot coffee and donuts at Joy Green's home after the hayride.

The school children grades one through eight enjoyed a snowmobile safari to Barney's Lake the afternoon of March 4. Russell and Joy Green served them hot chocolate and cookies at the lake. The high school had its safari March 5 in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Gregg went with them.

Portside to Sponsor Boy's Baseball Team

With the basketball season all but over, local sportsmen are looking forward to the summer baseball season.

Larry Ford, baseball coordinator for the Charlevoix area, reports that Portside Sports, owned by Dick Oestrike, will sponsor a team during the coming season in the Northern Michigan Baseball League.

Ford says the team will be made up of boys 16 to 18 years of age and that any interested youth is welcome to try out for the team.

The Portside team will play against teams from Indian River, Boyne City, Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Gaylord, Central Lake and Elk Rapids.

Ford will coach the team and practice will start in May.

Ford says he also is looking for four sponsors and four coaches for Little League teams in Charlevoix. The cost to sponsors will range between $350 and $400 for uniforms and equipment.

State Park Fee is $2.50 As of May 15

Effective May 15, the daily fee will be upgraded to $2.50 for most of Michigan's 14,500 state park campsites, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

The increase of 50 cents per day, approved last week by the Natural Resources Commission to help meet spiraling operational costs, will cover modern-equipped state park campgrounds which offer electrical service at all sites.

About 90 percent of Michigan's state park campsites feature these complete, first-class facilities.

At those state park campsites where modern facilities are available except for electrical hook-ups, the overnight charge will be raised from $1.75 to $2 on May 15.

The camping fee increase, first to be adopted since 1966, will add an estimated $500,000 in annual revenue which is needed toward meeting this season's operating expenses at state parks.

Not covered by these rate changes are state park campgrounds which offer rustic-type facilities. Those units will continue to carry a basic overnight fee of $1.50 plus a daily charge of 25 cents for the use of electricity.

Kids to Get Ecology Data

Three booklets on ecology are being distributed throughout the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District to grades three through six, according to Charles A. Robinson, superintendent.

Prepared by an organization called Soil Conservation for America and made available in bulk quantities for the classroom by Consumers Power Co., the booklets are entitled "The Wonder of Water", "Food and the Land" and "Working Together for a Liveable Land."

The booklets are being packaged for each district and grade and will be delivered by itinerant staff members on their regular schedules.

Topside Upsets Andy's

By Dave Novotny

In Independent Basketball League play last week, Topside upset Andy's Tire World 72-62 and Martin's defeated Medusa 74-55.

Topside led Andy's all the with quarter leads of 14-10, 31-24 and 51-38. Andy's came back once in the fourth quarter to within three points, but then fell back to lose by 10.

Lee Cross led Topside with 27 and Jim Klugie had 13. Sam Supernaw had 20, Davy Novotny 13 and Bob Etienne 10 for Andy's.

In the second game, Martin's got off to a slim 10-9 first quarter lead over Medusa. At the end of the half they had increased their margin to 14 points, 32-18, and stayed in the lead, 53-33, after three quarters.

For Martin's, Ike Boss had 22, Dan McKenzie and Leroy Buchanan 12 each and Mark Blanchard, 10. For Medusa, Roger Putnan scored 11, and Dick Putman and Jerry Stewart scored 10 each.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Judge W. Richard Smith.

Jerry Yettaw, 24, East Jordan, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, assessed $50 fine and costs and ordered to pay $10 restitution on a charge of breaking and entering. He will serve an additional 15 days if the fine and costs are not paid.

William Farmer, 32, East Jordan, was assessed $50 fine and costs, ordered to pay $10 restitution and placed on one year's probation on a charge of breaking and entering. The first three days of probation were to be spent in the county jail.

Leon Zitka, 26, East Jordan, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, assessed $50 fine and costs and ordered to pay $10 restitution on a charge of breaking and entering.

Yettaw, Farmer and Zitka were charged with breaking and entering at the Don Hawkins residence in Horton Bay.

John P. Didur, 36, St. Clair Shores, was assessed $175 and ordered to pay $200 restitution on a charge of larceny. Didur was found guilty by a jury of taking a deer from the Charlevoix Airport which did not belong to him. The animal was flown from South Fox Island to Charlevoix, where Didur allegedly paid the air freight and picked up the carcass.

Raymond Nemecek, 19, East Jordan, was assessed $35 as a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages.

Friske Has Road Maps To Give Away

State Rep. Richard Friske (R-Charlevoix) says he has a limited number of official 1971 Michigan Highway Maps to distribute to citizens in his 106th legislative district.

Rep. Friske said that copies of the new map may be obtained by writing to him at the State Capitol in Lansing. The maps are offered free of charge on a first-come first-serve basis, until the supply is exhausted.

The 55th edition of the official Highway Department map reflects changes that have taken place in Michigan's road network during 1970, and indicates some additional construction currently in progress.

The maps also are available at the Courier office.

Fisherman's Island Scene of Early Murders

By Bernice Wexstaff

Recent rumblings through the press and via rumor that Fisherman's Island and the adjacent shore land is slated for development as a new suburbia set up a vigorous protest from Charlevoix County citizenry.

Many had been unaware that the property was not state-owned land. At one time a scenic drive was projected to link Charlevoix and Norwood by a lakeshore route, but the venture died in the sand dunes of Inwood Creek when the WPA collapsed with the advent of World War II.

Perhaps the situation is a just retribution in that the White Man allowed himself the delusion that Fisherman's Island would forever be available for adventuring. The Indians believed that all the land belonged to all the people.

Such naivete might be amusing if the consequences were not so serious. With private ownership of the adjoining property, even though the Island may be undeveloped for the present, it is forever lost to Scouts and other youngsters who made repeated jaunts to the little island with dreams of pirates and buccaneers in their venturesome little minds.

The Indians called it "Ma-Na-Shan" which actually means "Little Island" and it had little significance to anyone when Charlevoix's pioneer civil engineer, David Nettleton, staked a claim to the Island, later selling it to Horace Harsha, pioneer real estate dealer.

Harsha sold the island to Mrs. John (Martha) Baker who built and operated the once plush Beach Hotel at the foot of Dixon-ave. The Bakers planned to build a gambling casino on the island and had ordered a sea-plane (one of the first) to transport hotel guests and other resorters to the summer fun-island.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Baker died before the plan materialized. However, real estate broker Earl Young, recalls that the Island was valued at only $500 in the 1920s, but upon Mrs. Baker's death he resold the island for $5,500.

In the 1940's the island was purchased by Clark C. Coulter, retired Detroit attorney and a native of Charlevoix. Coulter and George Finucan, another well-known Charlevoix retiree, built a crude shack on the site of the original shanty which once housed a couple of pioneer fishermen. It was a gesture of nostalgia in an effort to recapture in their golden years some of the adventure of their boyhood.

Lige O'Brien of Barnard-rd., recalls that the two fishermen that finally gave the island its present name, were murdered on the island they called home. O'Brien says he was about seven years old when Irish Mike Martin and his Swedish companion known only as "Swede" came often to his father's home atop O'Brien Hill on U.S.31 South. They usually came at mealtime angling for an invitation to join the family as Mrs. O'Brien's cooking skill was well known. Later, he remembers hearing his parents talk of the strange disappearance of the two fishermen.

It was many years later that the mystery surrounding the two deaths was finally revealed: An aged, skid-row derelict confessed to the murder on his death bed in a Chicago Hospital. The murderer related how he had lain in wait for the victims when they returned to their shack on the little Island from Charlevoix where they had sold their daily catch of Lake Michigan trout.

The assailant felled Mike and Swede with rocks as they came ashore, somewhat the worse for a few too many stops at Charlevoix's five saloons and dumped their bodies on the leeward side of the island.

A couple of days later the murderer learned that the disappearance of the fishermen had created a stir and a reward had been posted for their bodies or information of their whereabouts. So he retrieved the bodies of his victims and claimed the reward.

Today, many feel that Fisherman's Island and the adjacent shore property should be developed for the benefit of the public in general insofar as Bell's Bay--a scant mile to the north, is now a popular camping site for visitors from coast to coast. Campers and trailerites have signed the guest register from as far away as Maine, California, and Florida.

There is much history encompassed in the few miles of shoreline. The steamer Champlain caught fire and burned off Fisherman's Island loaded with summer resorters and cargo in June of 1887. The survivors swam ashore and took refuge in the Nick Shore's boarding house across from Fisherman's Island.

Smithson's pioneer saw mill was located in the area, turning the virgin timber into stacks of building material that at the time seemed a never-diminishing supply.

They are events in themselves, but truly are a part of Charlevoix County's heritage along with the wild flowers, the cedars, birches and hardwoods. The wind-swept sand dunes and the wide sandy beaches laced into fantastic patterns by wind and wave.

Now all this will be lost to row after row of summer cottages if the land developers move in.

However, now that the citizenry has veen alerted perhaps there is still time to save the little that is left of free countryside for adventurous youngsters, solitude-loving grown-ups, wild geese, seagulls and songbirds.

Friske, Others Fight Free School Supplies

Elimination of the requirement for local school districts to supply textbooks, paper, pencils and other supplies to all pupils, is the ~~theme of a~~ proposed constitutional amendment co-sponsored by State Rep. Richard Friske (R-Charlevoix).

"The present system is the result of a Michigan Supreme Court decision last July. Their ruling was that the constitutional language stating that the Legislature would 'maintain and support a system of free public elementary and secondary schools' meant that all local school districts were required to furnish each pupil with free textbooks and other educational supplies.

"The result of this new approach is that there is a growing spirit of waste and reckless utilization of the supplies which are provided free of charge and frequently without limit to the pupil," Rep. Friske said. "For this reason and others I have decided to seek an amendment to our constitution in order to clarify the language and return to the former system."

"There is also a very real problem with this program. Every thinking person knows that we don't get something for nothing, and what may be referred to as 'free' books and supplies, aren't really free at all.

"Since this court decision, school districts have had to absorb this expense which inevitably must ultimately be borne by the property tax payers, since no additional state aid has been provided for this purpose," Friske said.

Rep. Friske remarked that he and other members of the Legislature were flooded with protests from citizens when publicity was given to this new requirement. Legislators, according to Friske, found difficulty in explaining to the tax payers that this new development was much of a surprise to them as it was to the general public and that is did not result from any action which the Legislature had taken, or any substantial changes in the State Constitution.

"In fact," Friske said, "I can see very little difference between the provisions of the 1963 Michigan Constitution regarding this situation and the provisions of the 1908 Constitution which required that 'every school district in the state shall provide for the education of its pupils without charge for tuition.'

NOW THAT the snowbanks are beginning to melt, whitetails are on the move throughout the Charlevoix area. And once again the deer pose a hazard to motorists. This doe was killed on the Boyne City-rd. last week. Although deer normally are most active from dusk until dawn, many have been sighted in broad daylight during the past week as they search for windfall apples in abandoned orchards.

County Gets $14,945.46 In Taxes on State Land

Checks totaling nearly $1,271,000 were recently sent to 82 Michigan counties by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), covering most of the 1970 tax payments due on purchased state conservation lands.

Charlevoix County's share of the total was $14,945.46. Emmet County received $15,943.45, Antrim County $15,326.58 and Otsego County $14,262.48.

Overall, the department owes almost $1,457,000 for these state holdings but it lacks about $186,300 from its current budget to meet all tax obligations. A deficiency appropriation from the Legislature is being sought by the DNR to complete its tax payments by mid-1971.

The department's latest tax payments for purchased conservation lands are based on the same local millage rates which cover private property. They are up about $384,351 from last year, partly reflecting higher equalized ratios which were applied.

Also accounting for the department's heavier tax load are increased millage rates of some southern townships.

Early this year, the DNR paid about $703,000 in lieu of taxes to 81 Michigan counties for some 3.3 million acres of tax-reverted conservation lands.

Those payments, at a rate of 20 cents per acre, also covered gifted conservation properties above Townline 16 and purchased parcels which were bought before 1933.

Taxed as such were state forests, parks and recreation areas, wildlife areas, public access sites, and other similar holdings.

Stand on Public Land Shocks Friske Backers

Even some of the staunchest supporters of Rep. Richard Friske were shocked to learn last week in the Courier that their newly elected state representative is dead set against government ownership of land.

Rep. Friske's startling position came to light in a series of letters exchanged with Lowell Kosloskey of Petoskey who had sought Rep. Friske's support in efforts to save a portion of Maple River frontage in Emmet County from passing to private ownership.

In his answer to Kosloskey, Rep. Friske wrote: "All lands now owned by the government should be sold back to private ownership as specified in the United States Constitution, Article 1, Section 8. Only lands used for projects as specified in the Constitution should be owned by the government."

As usual, Rep. Friske is reading more into the U.S. Constitution than is actually there. Article, I, Section, 8 makes absolutely no reference to the selling back of government land to private ownership.

In fact, the only mention of land in that particular Article has to do with creation of the District of Columbia and to exercise authority over "all Places" purchased in any state for the "Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards and all other needful Buildings."

If the truth were known, our founding fathers probably never gave much thought one way or the other to government ownership of land.

In 1787, it didn't matter much who owned the land, since there was, plenty to go around. Only the eastern seaboard was settled to any great extent and the great heart of America spread westward as an uncharted wilderness.

The founding fathers can be forgiven if they were unable to look forward to a time when the wilderness they took for granted should be gobbled up by a burgeoning population.

They didn't envision cities covering hundreds of square miles.

They didn't dream that industrial pollution would blanket entire states.

They couldn't foresee the day when metropolitan areas would be circled by endless miles of suburban communities.

In short, they probably never saw the need for publicly owned land -- islands of untrammeled wilderness where the city dweller can catch a breath of fresh air and where the deer, the fox and the bear who share this planet can be afforded some protection from the inroads of civilization.

Fortunately, those lawmakers who came later had the foresight to place vast areas of wild land into public custody for the enjoyment of all of the people.

Apparently it is these lands that Rep. Friske would like to sell to private parties, thereby providing a new source of tax dollars -- one of the most short-sighted opinions we have ever heard expressed by a public official.

If Rep. Friske means what he says, East Park in Charlevoix should be sold to restaurateurs and trinket merchants and the Bells Bay campground should be turned over to land developers.

Although Rep. Friske doesn't realize it, some things in life are more important than tax dollars. And public land is one of them.

Capitol Report

Unicameral System Only Sounds Good

By Sen. Robert Davis

Every now and then, when people are unhappy with their government--especially with taxes--the idea of having a one-house (or Unicameral) legislature is proposed.

Proponents argue that it would save money because it would reduce the size of the legislature and staff and would be more efficient.

A few days ago, a member of the House of Representatives (Rep. Joseph Swallow of Alpena) said he would introduce a proposed constitutional amendment in the Legislature to set up a 76-member legislative body in Michigan called the "Senate".

As an alternative to legislative action, he announced the launching of a huge initiative petition drive to obtain the signatures of 350,000 Michigan residents to insure getting the issue on the 1972 ballot in 1972.

Theoretically, the one-house legislature sounds good, and I feel the proposal has some merit. It deserves consideration and discussion by the Legislature, and I would not object to a vote of the people on this issue.

Only one state--Nebraska--has the one-house system. It has been in effect since 1937 and most Nebraskans, although with several significant exceptions, like it.

Three other states--Vermont, Pennsylvania and Georgia--once had one-house legislatures and threw them out. Vermont's existed for 57 years until 1836 and that state hasn't seriously entertained thoughts of returning to the old system.

It is interesting to note that since Nebraska adopted its Unicameral Legislature in 1937, not a single other state has adopted the idea.

Over the years, the one-house system has been rejected by many states--including Alabama, New York, Oregon, Ohio, Arizona, Massachusetts, Illinois, Washington, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota and California.
Washington, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota and California.

Throughout much of history, the two most unstable governments in the world have been France and Italy, both of which had one-house legislatures.

Just recently, the non-partisan, independent Citizens Conference on State Legislatures concluded an exhaustive study of the nation's legislatures and rated Nebraska, with its one-house system, below Michigan, with its two-house legislature.

The principal virtue of the two-house system is the vital built-in check-and-balance feature which enables one house to catch the errors and machinations of the other. The two-house system also makes it more difficult for lobbyists to control legislation.

It might also be wise to consider the possibility of cutting the memberships of the Senate and House in half, thereby saving tax dollars, if this, in fact, is our main concern.

Dear Bob:

This will acknowledge receipt of the petition of Charlevoix area residents for no reduction of lake trout plants in the Charlevoix and Petoskey area waters this year. Frankly, I am glad that we have no real problems in this instance and I am very favorable impressed that you people feel so strongly about restoring the Great Lakes fishery.

Sometime later this spring I plan to visit your area and see your fine fishery firsthand.

Best wishes for every success this coming season.

Mr. Richard Friske,
State Representative
106th District
P.O. Box 119
House of Representatives
Lansing, Mich. 48901

Dear Mr. Friske:

On March 12, 1971, we received in the mail a questionnaire from you, our state representative, in which you state: "I need the benefit of your attitudes and opinions to effectively represent our district." With this statement we emphatically agree. One need only read through this questionnaire to realize this.

In this questionnaire, Mr. Friske, you ask for our opinion on such questions as:

"Do you think that Michigan should enact Gestapo type laws that would reward citizens for spying on and reporting on other citizens for such offenses as air or water pollution?"

"If you knew the federal functions authorized by the Constitution could be covered by all other present forms of revenue, would you insist upon retaining the personal income tax simply because it has become an American institution?"

"Do you believe that taxes on farms and farm lands should be subject to the whims of the government?"

"Should the state ignore the principles of the Bible, which is the Law of God, and morality and legalize murder by abortion?"

"Do you favor a mingling of the state in your private affairs or anybody else's?"

If you, Mr. Friske, really want your constituents' opinions, then you should ask reasonable, objective, and unbiased questions which are not slanted in their statements. It appears that you really do not want your voters' opinions, but wish to force your own on those people you represent. As our representative, you should be trying to represent and seek honest and objective opinion.

As your constituents, we strongly oppose such tactics and suggest that you examine the questionnaires mailed out by Robert Davis. We are only too happy to answer an honest and forthright questionnaire which seeks our own opinion as a method of keeping our representatives informed.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Haggard

Richard Friske
State Representative
106th House District
P.O. Box 119, House of Representatives
Lansing, Michigan 48901

Dear Mr. Friske:

After reading through the questionnaire, we find it difficult to believe that as an elected official, you are truly concerned with the opinions and feelings of your constituents.

You see, having been an elected official for four years myself, I know the importance of knowing how the people you represent feel on many of the issues you will be making decisions on.

But Mr. Friske, we ask. . . are you seeking the opinions and feelings of those whom you represent? We are more inclined to believe that you are prejudiced in your own personal feelings on issues that affect all the people throughout the State and the entire country.

My husband and I feel that your questionnaire is very deceiving and directed at giving you the answers you want to back up your own beliefs. Because of this, we are refusing to answer your questionnaire and hope that many others will thus express themselves.

When you are able to put together a questionnaire that truly allows the individuals to express their opinions and attitudes for your value in representing this district, we will be very happy to answer any and all questions objectively and honestly. We feel that you owe it to the people of this district to search within yourself and make yourself a representative of the entire populace of the district and not just a few whom you may have talked to personally with the same views as yourself.

Realizing the difficulty and impossibility of contacting all the people, face to face, we would appreciate the questionnaire being put on more open ground, rather than a leading, biased piece of propaganda that it is.

Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mathews, Jr.

Liberty Amendment: Birch Society Boondoggle

By BOB CLOCK

Just what is the Liberty Amendment, referred to by Rep. Richard Friske in his exchange of letters with Lowell A. Kosloskey of Petoskey? The letters appeared in the March 17 Courier.

One of our subscribers did some sleuthing and came up with the full text of the so-called amendment, which appeared in the John Birch Society Bulletin for October, 1970.

As you will recall, Rep. Friske is a leader of the John Birch Society, a right-wing organization dedicated to sniffing out and exposing communists.

The Birchers also believe that the nation has strayed too far from the letter of the U.S. Constitution and they would like to return to the good old days, "on the double."

In his correspondence, with Kosloskey, Rep. Friske says he intends to introduce the Liberty Amendment "which...would return our country to sound Constitutional principles."

Here is the text of the amendment from the John Birch Society Bulletin:

Section 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, profession, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

Section 2. The constitution or laws of any State, or the laws of the United States shall not be subject to the terms of any foreign or domestic agreement which would abrogate this amendment.

Section 3. The activities of the United States Government which violate the intent and purposes of this amendment shall, within a period of three years from the date of the ratification of this amendment, be liquidated and the properties and facilities affected shall be sold.

Section 4. Three years after the ratification of this amendment the sixteenth article of amendments to the Constitution of the United States shall stand repealed and thereafter Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates and or gifts.

There it is, just as it appears in the Bulletin.

Needless to say, the sixteenth article referred to in Section 4 is the "income tax amendment" which went into effect Feb. 25, 1913. The amendment says simply: "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

At the conclusion of the Liberty Amendment in the Bulletin, Birch Society founder Robert Welch writes:

"The basic purpose, of course, is simply to undo what Karl Marx and his Communist successors have done to our Constitution for the specific purpose of destroying our nation, exactly as announced in their "Communist Manifesto" published 122 years ago. Once that fact were fully understood by even a major segment of the American people, the income tax would soon be repealed, and much of the socialism which it finances would have to be curtailed. Our job, of course, is to create that understanding. And persuading good but gullible citizens actually to read the "Communist Manifesto" is one excellent way to doing so."

The trouble with so much of the John Birch Society line is that it sounds just great--in theory. There is not a man in the country who would not welcome repeal of the income tax amendment, if it were possible.

Unfortunately, it isn't possible and, from where I sit, it will never be possible. Whether we like it or not, American society has become far too complex for the Constitution of 1787, even with its many amendments.

Our population has grown from 3,929,214 at the time of the first census in 1790 to about 200,000,000 in 1970.

Our land area has increased from 888,811 square miles to 3,615,210 square miles.

We have changed from a primarily agricultural economy to a primarily industrial economy.

Our enemies (and we have a few) are no longer weeks away by sailing ship but minutes away by supersonic bomber.

Our horizons have expanded from the "back forty" to the moon.

With the sum total of human knowledge doubling every 10 years, our educational problems are staggering.

And we have learned, much to our chagrin in many instances, that the federal government, with its taxing power, can come up with answers to problems that are clearly beyond the scope of the individual, the city, the county or even the state.

Rep. Friske and his John Birch Society cohorts are living in a dream world if they ever expect to abolish the income tax.

Rather than waste his time on such Birch Society nonsense, we wish Rep. Friske would chuck his JBS Bulletins in the waste basket and get down to the serious business of finding practical solutions to the economic, social, educational and ecological problems facing Michigan.

After all, we did elect him our STATE representative.

Sorry, I Don't Care

By Jim Fitzgerald

The $20 million hoopla over the Ali-Frazier prizefight reminded me again of an important freedom.

That is the freedom to not give a damn.

It seemed the whole world was turned on by that fight. It was broadcast live on TV in Yugoslavia at 4 o'clock in the morning for Lord's sake. People actually paid hundreds of bucks each for seats near the ring where those 2 brutes belted each other. Incredible.

I've never been to a horse race because I'm not convinced the horses enjoy it. I've never shot a deer because I've never been attacked by a deer. I've never owned a snowmobile because they make sense only when you want to go where a warm car won't go and I've never wanted to go there.

So I can relax and sip my tea when the boys get in terrific hassles over such earth-shaking question as:

1. Should racetracks be run by guys who belong to the Mafia according to testimony given before Congressional investigating committees? (Such testimony never leads to arrests because Efrem Zimbalist Jr. doesn't attend Congressional hearings for fear of bombs).

2. It is right for greedy, brutal hunters to kill female deer, thus preventing does from spawning bucks to be "harvested" by nice blue-eyed guys who go hunting simply to enjoy the fresh air - but come home angry if they haven't shot anything bigger than a squirrel?

3. Should 2-year-old children be allowed to drive their snowmobiles alone across freeways after 10 p.m. or should it be required that they tow a sled carrying 2 people whose combined ages add up to at least 12?

It is arguments like those that make me the world's champion coat-holder. I couldn't care less. Of course, I figure I'm holding coats for a bunch of idiots but . . . to each his own. If I owned a snowmobile, a deer rifle and a season's pass to the racetrack I'd trade all three for a quiet weekend of good reading and indoor sinning.

So it was with me and Muhammed Ali and Joe Frazier. There is no more stupid activity than 2 men beating on each other until 1 of them falls unconscious. It is not a sport. It is the old Lions-vs-the-Christians scene with the drooling Romans jamming the coliseum in search of blood. It's ambulance-chasing made profitable.

I don't blame Muhammed and Joe and their promoters for cashing in on the modern Romans. If they didn't, someone else would.

But the biggest thing wrong with this world is that people won't stop killing people. So go tell your kid that violence is wrong and stupid. And then tell him how you paid $100 to watch 2 guys slug each other. Tell your kid wow! you sat so near the fighters you got splattered with their blood.

Don't ask me for all the wise answers.

But also, when you and he are fighting, don't ask me to give up my freedom to not give a damn who wins.

'Claims Council Goofed In Rejecting Beach Rd.

Dear Bob,

It is with great concern, that I read in the Courier that the Charlevoix City Council, after supposedly several weeks in committee, turned down a gift from the township of Charlevoix, to open one of the best beaches in the Charlevoix area.

I felt the people should know what is going on. The city fathers are always telling what they do for the non city residents, but are as narrow minded and short sighted, and non-progressive as anyone can be at times, especially when it comes to giving something to the people who pay the taxes.

The Charlevoix Township Board voted to open up a beautiful section of beach located at the end of Pleasant St., which is the street the ski run is on. This project would provide a new black top road down on the beach, which would feature a turn around. What a wonderful addition to our community, to have access to this sand dunes beach. The only argument a council member gave, was that it might require some trash pickup, so they voted it down. I say, a few barrels could take care of this problem, and there is trash pickup each week at North Point, so that could be easily solved. This would also alleviate the broken glass and trash that is there now, because there are no receptacles provided.

Some said it couldn't be done, but last spring, Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud got a $50,000 project at Bell's Bay done for a little pocket change, with the good help of several civic minded equipment operators, including, Stub, Johnny, Bob, Joe, Mo, a couple of city and county boys, Medusa employees, and many others. Well, this project would be similar, only a complete blacktop road and turn around on the beach would be provided at NO COST TO THE CITY. What in the world is wrong with an old fashioned work bee such as this, to benefit everyone, plus the fact that blacktop would be used, and not cheap tar and chips.

If this project was going to cost $100,000 and the government were to pay 90 percent of the cost, the council might be interested. But, due to the fact that someone like Oscar, with a little drive, can get it done for perhaps $3,500 cash, the council turned up their noses. You city people, fortunately, voted for new blood for mayor, and if the council can't be progressive, maybe a couple more changes are in order. I don't honestly feel they have thought this out, and trust some of you will appeal to them to be progressive, and not stand still because of personal feuds.

Sincerely,

Dale Boss

Proper English Butlers Are Vanishing Breed

A stalwart of the Establishment has become a missing personage.

The proper English butler is victim of forces beyond his power, which seemed awesomely endless in the heyday of his reign in the great houses of England, America, and the Continent.

Butlers have joined the thinning ranks of the backstairs minions they once ruled with unbending authority: the footmen, chambermaids, gentlemen's gentlemen, chefs, pantry boys, chauffeurs, gardeners, and scullery girls, the National Geographic Society says.

"Who needs them?" asks the proprietor of a Washington, D.C., employment service. "Even with big taxes there are plenty of people who can afford butlers. But they have been displayed by an easier, labor-saving, less formal way of life."

Even England today counts no more than 600 bona fide butlers. Only a few households in Washington as well a embassies still keep butlers.

Besides buttling, many have to assume chores the household majordomo of the past would deign to take on only with stiff-lipped protest.

They become part-time chauffeurs, part-time valets in charge of the master's wardrobe, part-time housemen keeping the silverware polished, and – to the dismay of servants' wing ghosts – sometimes part-time gardeners.

For all this they receive four square meals a day, including high tea, and about $500 monthly. They may work a six-day week from breakfast to bedtime with every other Sunday off.

A Washington "butler's union" had the sound of outright anarchy until closer inspection revealed a social organization devoted to card playing, and with membership now watered down by waiters.

Originally, butlers – bouteilliers or bottle bearers in France – presided chiefly over a household's wine and spirits supply.

The real English butler, often as stately as the mansion he inhabits, may have his own valet, and at mealtimes is served by lesser servants who run his errands and address him as Mister.

Only a veteran valet, a gentleman's gentleman such as P.G. Wodehouse's Jeeves, could match a seasoned butler in elegant aloofness or with impaling rejoinder when subjected to "lese majeste" by an underling.

Some butlers are – or were – inherited, passed down from father to son, or traded between venerable families, except when the butler himself felt his new would-be employers were not highly enough recommended.

The best butlers now available, according to one employement agency, are jobless actors "with some experience in drawing room drama."

the County Road Commission which is seeking one-half mill to buy new snow removal equipment.

Although no action was taken, the board discussed operating millage for next year, which will be voted in June. The voters probably will be asked to approve 6.5 mills which is retiring, plus an addition 2.5 mills just to maintain the present program in the face of reduced state aid and rising costs.

City Employes Win Pay Hikes, Fringes

3-Year Pacts OK'd by Council

The City Council and city employes who belong to the Communications Workers of America have ratified three-year union contracts covering uniformed and non-uniformed city employes, the first in the history of Charlevoix.

The council Monday night authorized the mayor and city clerk to sign the contracts which provide a wide range of fringe benefits and salary adjustments.

Although City Superintendent Thomas Hanna said it was difficult to put a dollar-and-cents figure on first-year pay increases, since they consist chiefly of job classification changes, workers will receive a 20-cent an hour increase during the second year of the contract and a 20-cent an hour increase during the third year of the contract.

In the area of fringe benefits, workers will receive a seventh paid holiday this year — Good Friday — and an eighth paid-holiday next year, Christmas Eve.

Employes also will receive $1,000 life insurance policies, an increase in accumulated sick days from 60 to 70 over three years (on the basis of 12 sick days a year).

The vacation policy was liberalized to provide a four-week vacation for employes with more than 20 years service.

The contracts stabilize the workweek at 45 hours, eliminating the 48-hour week. During the third year, the work week will drop to 44 hours.

In other business the council:

–Gave Marina Owner David Irish permission to construct a seawall across 30 feet of city property at Ferry Beach, connecting with the old boat ramp. The seawall is part of an extensive construction and dredging project at the former Stover Creek Marina (now Irish Boat Shop) which will start this spring. Plans call for construction of slips for more than 100 boats, erection of a hoist, and construction of a large boat storage building and workshop. The dredging and seawall plans are awaiting approval by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the state.

–Approved the "petunia" as the official city flower, on request of the Charlevoix Garden Club.

–Waived a 25-foot rear yard restriction on the former McCann property at Upright

FIFTH GRADERS in Mrs. Edward McNamara's English class at the Middle School read letter from Gov. William Milliken in response to their letters to the governor asking that the state buy the Fisherman's Island area south of Charlevoix as a natural wilderness area. Seated is Laurie Helms, flanked by Jim Alger and Lynda Long. Laurie, Jim and Lynda were winners in a journalism exercise sponsored by the Charlevoix Courier.

Kids Ask Gov. Milliken To Help Save Island Area

Fifth graders at the Charlevoix Middle School have taken it upon themselves to let Gov. William Milliken know that they would like the Fisherman's Island area south of Charlevoix preserved as a wilderness area.

Language arts students in the homerooms of Mrs. Edward McNamara and Mrs. Brian Seymour have written individual letters to the governor as a class project asking for his help in saving the Lake Michigan shoreline from resort development.

A Detroit-area land developer presently is platting a section of the shoreline north of Fisherman's Island as cottage sites.

The students received the following response from the governor:

Dear Students:

Thank you for writing to me about your interest in the Fisherman's Island area along Lake Michigan near Charlevoix.

I am familiar with this beautiful area after living in the northwest Lower Peninsula for many years. As you may know, Mrs. Milliken and I still spend whatever time we can at our home in Traverse City because of our love for the north country.

Your concern for the loss of public access to the shoreline of Lake Michigan is truly commendable. As the Governor of our state, I am also deeply concerned about the rapid development of our natural resources. It seems as though we are continually having to make difficult choices between developing or preserving our resources.

The State of Michigan is blessed with nearly 3,200 miles of shoreline on the Great Lakes. Naturally all of the

Weathervane Sued For Use of Songs

Liza Music Corp., Famous Music Corporation and Blue Seas Music, Inc. and JAC Music Company, Inc., all members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, have filed suit for copyright infringement against Weathervane, 106 Pine River Lane, Charlevoix, alleging that their copyrighted songs were performed at the establishment without authorization.

The songs involved in the suit are "Around The World" by Victor Young and Harold Adamson, published by Liza Music Corp., "Moon River" by Johnny Mercer and Henry Mancini, published by Famous Music Corporation, and "This Guy's In Love With You" by Hal David and Burt Bacharach, published by Blues Seas Music Inc., and JAC Music Company, Inc.

In their complaint, the plaintiffs asked the court to restrain the defendant from publicly performing the songs in the future, and to award statutory damages, together with court costs and attorneys' fees.

Weathervane Inn, Inc., was named defendant in the suit which was filed in the United States District court for the Western District of Michigan Southern Division.

TENNIS, ANYONE?

Davenport Tells Results Of Recreation Survey

A recreation survey taken for Charlevoix last summer has been compiled and as a result some interesting findings have been made by Recreation Director Dean Davenport.

More than 100 questionnaires were returned and sorted into three categories, replies by youngsters, teenagers and adults.

One interesting aspect is the overwhelming interest shown in tennis. One hundred percent of the replies stated that Charlevoix needs and would use tennis courts.

All age groups indicated a desire to learn and play tennis.

Another note of interest was the response received on the idea of a new year-round swimming pool. There was tremendous support for Charlevoix developing such a facility. Other new program ideas that received some support included a teen center and a senior citizen drop-in center.

Davenport reported that it was gratifying to see that so many people, young and old alike, utilize the city's bathing beaches and city parks.

"We spend a great deal of money and effort keeping the three beaches and parks attractive and also safe with well qualified lifeguards and apparently it is worth our efforts," Davenport said.

Results showed that the most popular directed activity offered in the program was softball, with 50 percent of those returning questionnaires stating they participated in either the boys, girls or adult leagues. The instructional programs in swimming and golf were next with 23 percent of those returning replies stating their participation.

The facilities operated by the city showing the most usage, as was mentioned previously, were the beaches where 77 percent of the people stating they enjoyed using them. Forty-six percent indicated they enjoyed the city band concert program, with parks and picnic areas close behind with 39 percent.

Forty percent of the city teenagers reported using the city's ice skating rink and a surprising 35 percent used the shuffleboard court.

An impressive 60 percent of the adults reported using the city docks and boat launching facilities.

Of those that answered the question proposing alternatives to financing our recreation program, most indicated favoring a special millage for support. There were a few who favored a pay-as-you-go policy.

Davenport concluded, "It must be remembered that this was simply a survey and findings indicated only the results of those participants that returned their questionnaires. It should give us some criteria to evaluate our needs and success, but is only one instrument of evaluation."

Rev. Pierce To Speak April 12, 15

Rev. Bruce Pierce, the Boyne City Methodist Church pastor who conferred recently with peace negotiators in Paris, will speak at the First State Bank meeting room in Charlevoix at 8 p.m. April 15. The public is invited.

On April 12, Rev. Pierce will address the Charlevoix Lion's Club at the noon luncheon.

Chamber Competing: Cooper

William Cooper reports that a number of Charlevoix businessmen have expressed an interest in starting a "Charlevoix Businessmen's Association" to counter what they believe is a growing tendency by the Chamber of Commerce to compete with private enterprise.

Cooper, manager of the King's restaurant, says a questionnaire is being mailed to Charlevoix businessmen to gauge the amount of interest in such an organization.

Cooper said he and others feel that the Chamber's bid to take over the operation of the city docks is an indication that the Chamber is getting into private enterprise and is forsaking its primary aim of public relations.

He said he and his group also object to the fact that voting rights in the Chamber are contingent upon payment of a membership assessment established by the Chamber's board of directors.

"I think the Chamber belongs to all the people, and

Tax Collections Hit 92 Percent

The Charlevoix Board of Education, meeting in special session Monday night, approved the purchase of $40,000 worth of debt retirement bonds due in 1985, resulting in a saving of approximately $26,000 to the school district.

The purchase was made possible by funds on hand in the debt retirement fund for bonds issued April 1, 1959. Because these funds were available, the board was able to purchase $40,000 of the $60,000 worth of bonds offered for sale by the holder, First of Michigan, which offered the bonds $940.70 per $1,000 bond plus accrued interest. By purchasing the bonds at this time with monies in the debt retirement fund, the school district will realize a saving of $23,741.60 in interest and $2,372 on the principal for a total saving of $26,113.

The district will purchase $15,000 of the bonds April 1 with the First State Bank purchasing the remaining $25,000 in bonds on the same date and holding them until June 1 when the school district will purchase them from the bank.

Supt. Robert L. Miller reported to the board that taxes paid to the schools now total $862,149.57 or 92.71 percent of the total tax collections. He said that Charlevoix Township had the best tax payment record of all units in the Charlevoix school district. The township reports payment of 98.235 percent of its total taxes have been paid.

With tax monies reaching this total, the board voted to pay $50,000 on outstanding State Aid notes on April 1. The school district has an additional $120,000 in State Aid notes to be paid.

Mr. Miller said that State Aid payments continued to lag behind schedule. In a communication from the Department of Education, the board was told that the Department had received a directive from Gov. Milliken to process only 60 percent of the April 1 state aid payment. The Governor's directive also indicated that it is probable that funds will be available to pay the remaining 40 percent of the April payment on May 1. The directive made no mention of when the balance of the February payment will be available.

School districts financed to a large degree by State Aid will be hardest hit by this new directive from Gov. Milliken. Though the Charlevoix district has had to borrow against anticipated State Aid payments, it receives less than 25 percent of its revenue in State Aid thus is not as hard hit as other districts might be.

The Charlevoix district did receive an unanticipated cut of $13,000 in its State Aid revenue.

A report on expenditures for the current school year showed instruction, administration, health, trans-

150 Help Willis' Mark Anniversary

Approximately 150 friends, neighbors and relatives called on the Fred Willis' Sunday afternoon to wish the "bride and groom" well on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Open house was held at the Willis' home at 306 Dixon-ave., with the couple's three daughters as hostesses.

Willis and the former Alice Burns were residents of Hayes Township when they were married March 28, 1921, at the Methodist parsonage in Boyne City.

They raised cattle and sheep on the Waller Farm (now Ed Shanahan's) for 20 years before moving to Charlevoix.

Willis was manager of the Charlevoix Co-op for 26 years, retiring in 1964.

The Willis' daughters are Mrs. Richard (Betty) Lennox of Avon, Conn.; Mrs. Alfred (Freda) Torrey of Oxford, Mich.; and Mrs. Harold (Mary) Pomeroy of South St. Paul, Minn.

They also have 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Good Friday Rites Planned

The Community Church of God will host Union Good Friday services this year on April 9 from 1 until 3 p.m., sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

Many of the community's pastors and churches will participate in the special service.

In all, seven services will be held, with each pastor speaking on "Faces at the Cross."

The Ministerial Association hopes that the entire community will worship at some time during the two-hour service.

A complete schedule will appear in the Charlevoix Courier next week.

New Phone Books

New Charlevoix-Emmet County 1971 telephone directories will be delivered by Michigan Bell beginning Saturday, April 3.

Kenneth T. Harrold, local Michigan Bell manager, said some 29,000 directories will be delivered in Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Pellston, Petoskey and Walloon Lake.

The covers of the new telephone books feature a color reproduction of an oil painting, "Jolliet and Marquette." This is another in the series of historical paintings done by Robert Thom under a commission from Michigan Bell

Challenger Arrives

The Medusa Challenger arrived in Charlevoix Monday afternoon, officially marking the opening of the 1971 shipping season in the Charlevoix area.

Crew members said the cement carrier had very little difficulty reaching port although the harbor entrance is still clogged with ice.

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew opened up a path through the ice to the Medusa slip before leaving on an ice-breaking mission in the Straits of Mackinac.

Light Turnout Expected

City residents will go to the polls Monday, April 5, to elect a new mayor, city clerk, city treasurer, three aldermen and three ward supervisors on an all-Republican slate.

Polls at the City Hall will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m., according to the clerk's office. Voter registrations as of March 1 totaled 1,716.

With no contests on the ballot, a relatively light turnout is expected, unless a last-minute write-in campaign developes for Mayor William Fochtman.

Fochtman was defeated in the February primary by Andrew Essenburg jr. by a margin of 566 to 482.

Fochtman said Monday that he knows of no write-in campaign being organized on his behalf.

Fochtman was first elected mayor in 1966 and has been re-elected every year since.

Essenburg, who owns and operates Essenburg's Grocery on W. Garfield-st., has pledged to fire city attorney John Michael if elected and to make it illegal for city officers to do business with the city.

Running unopposed with Essenburg will be Ida Heise, clerk, and Annabelle Cunningham, treasurer.

In the First Ward, Howard Otis is candidate for supervisor and Roger Westenbroek for alderman. In the Second Ward, Robert Somerville is running for supervisor and Robert L. Gill for alderman. Third Ward candidates are Theodore Browe, supervisor, and Clifton F. Sundberg, alderman.

JIM SHEPARD, consultant in vocational technical education for the Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District, discusses April 12 vocational millage vote at meeting of Charlevoix Parent Teacher Organization March 24 at Elementary School. Voters will be asked to approve one mill to operate voc ed programs throughout the district

Library Notes

With Easter vacation close at hand, we thought we would suggest some good stay-at-home reading for youngsters for the days when school is not in session and outdoor weather may not be play weather.

"INDIANS ON THE MOVE" is a beautifully illustrated book with fine large print and young people of all ages will enjoy it. The author, Robert Hofsinde (Gray-Wolf), discusses how the Indians traveled. Although walking and riding were the most widespread means of travel, the author also takes up special forms–by boat, through snow with sled and snowshoe and overland with horse-drawn travois. There are marvelous diagrams for young readers who may want to make the canoes and rafts and saddles and mocassins mentioned in the book.

"BROGEEN AND THE BRONZE LIZARD" by Patricia Lynch is a delightful Irish tale by an author who has written many books for children. It concerns a monster who strides through the mountains and forests with more teeth than any other creature. It has great claws and its tail could shatter a castle. Its shadow destroys crops and withers the tallest trees. When the Queen hears that the monster threatens to march against her fairy fort, she pleads with Brogeen the laprechaun to go in search of him. There is nice print in this book and fine illustrations.

"THE SURPRISE PARTY" is a wonderful picture book for the small fry, with large, brilliant illustrations in gold and green by the author, Pat Hutchins. Word of the rabbit's party travels fast through the forest, and as the news travels, it becomes a little mixed up.

"It was market day in the village. An old man and a boy were taking a donkey to market. They were going to trade the donkey for three hens. 'Let's be off, said the old man. 'It's time to go,' said the boy. The donkey said not a word.

"So begins another delightful book by Ann McGovern. "Hee Haw" is supposed to be a book for pre-schoolers, but secretly it is a book for all ages.

And so is "SCHOOL FOR SILLIES" by Jay Williams. The book concerns King Kilian who considers himself to be the smartest man in the kingdom. If he said a thing was so everyone said, "Yes, Your Majesty." But the wise king has a few things to learn and youngsters will love this book, because they discover very soon that they are even smarter than the king himself.

THERE IS still plenty of cage action Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium as the Independent Basketball League heads for the annual Jimmy Bogart tournament in April.

Medusa Posts 1st Victory

By Dave Novotny

In Independent Basketball League play Tuesday night, Martin's upended Hess 78-61 and Medusa won its first game of the season by trouncing the First State Bank, 72-48.

The first game found Martin's ahead 22-12 at the end of the first period, with Norm Ostrum scoring 14 of Martin's points.

Hess came back in the second quarter, out-scoring Martin's 22-12, behind Ralph Dohn's 10 points, to tie the score 34-34 at the half.

Martin's then took command of the game, ringing up a 53-44 third quarter lead and out-scoring Hess 25-17 in the final period.

Norm Ostrum scored 41 of Martin's 78 points, while six other teammates made up the balance, scoring from four to eight points each.

Joe Beaudoin led Hess with 18 points, followed by Ralph Dohn with 16.

In the second game, Medusa unleashed the power they've been storing up during the season to cement a 72-48 victory over the Bankers. Player-coach Joe Battie, the mastermind in Medusa's first victory, kept his team in a tight zone defense and a ball control offense.

Medusa led all the way, with quarter leads of 22-11, 41-22 and 50-31.

The Bankers' hopes of a come-back were stopped short when their leading scorer, Gary Stutzman, crashed into the bleachers in the opening minutes of the second half and was taken to the hospital.

Leading Medusa in scoring was Roger Putman with 20, followed by Bob Holtzman with 14 and Jerry Stewart with 11.

The Bankers were led by Bruce Bartlett with 10, Gary Stutzman, 9; Bruce Morgan, 9; and Willie Niachinski, 8.

Shippers to Comply With Pollution Law

The Shipping Federation of Canada and the U.S. Great Lakes Shipping Association, representing all overseas foreign and domestic salt-water vessels operating on the Great Lakes, have pledged they will make every effort to comply with Michigan's Watercraft Pollution Control Act.

Restrictions included in the 1970 law have been challenged by members of the Great Lakes Carriers Association in a recent lawsuit.

Michigan Water Resources Commission staff, members said a number of the ocean vessels already have the required retention sewage systems on board, and those without the facilities plan to use portable retention units while in Michigan waters. The shipping representatives have indicated they will shut down all sanitary overboard discharge facilities while passing through the Great Lakes.

"This is an important boost to Michigan's program of Great Lakes pollution control," said Wayne Verspoor, WRC boat pollution control specialist. "The overseas vessel owners and their representative associations are to be commended for taking this voluntary action to comply with our intensive pollution control efforts."

1. The piers, docks and wharfs of the City are numbered in accordance with the berthing spaces.

All others are to be used for non-commercial purposes only and for berthing of vessels not engaged in commercial enterprises, except as otherwise provided herein.

3. The commercial docks are under the immediate control and supervision of the Harbor Master and the berth and dock facilities used for the passenger vessel "Beaver Islander" shall be leased with the provision that the "Beaver Islander" shall be required to vacate its berth whenever the accommodations for larger vessels require it in the interest of the City and in the judgement of the Harbor Master.

4. All other commercial vessels using the commercial docks shall first secure an official permit therefor from the Harbor Master or Dock Master from May 1, through September 30, and at the office of the City Clerk the remainder of the year, and pay to said official for the City of Charlevoix dockage and wharfage in accordance with schedules to be established by the Common Council, provided that there shall be no charge for taking on fuel and no charge for loading and unloading fish or fishing gear provided the same is not stored on the dock; the dock is kept clean and vacated promptly; and the orders of the Harbor Master are promptly observed.

8. No person shall moor a vessel in the berth other than that assigned to the vessel.

An Open Letter To Ellsworth School District Voters

The Ellsworth Community School Board of Education has asked a vote of the people for additional operating millage for the 1971-72 school year and for four additional years. The vote for 5 mills for 5 years will be on April 12 at the Ellsworth Village Hall. The polls will be open from 7:00 AM to 8:00 PM. The Board strongly urges a YES vote on this proposal.

We feel that many improvements have been made to our school system during the past few years. It is our full intention to maintain these additions to our curriculum. In order that we may do this, additional revenues are needed. It is common knowledge that the cost of education is increasing. Along with the cost increase, however, the quality of education has increased. Definite quality improvement have been made in Ellsworth to benefit the education of the youth of the community. Let us continue improving with a YES vote on April 12.

We would like to make it clear to the voters in the Ellsworth School District that the amount of individual tax being requested is very minimal. The average taxpayer in the district would pay an additional $35 per year to maintain our school at its present level of operation. To compute ones individual tax simply multiply your equalized valuation by .005. You will be paying $5 for each $1000 of equalized valuation. Is an average cost per taxpayer of $35 per year too much to pay for the education of Ellsworth students? We think not.

St. Ignace Abortion Hearing April 6

By Rep. Richard Friske
106th District

Michigan's House last week agreed with congress that the United States Constitution should be amended to allow 18-21-year-olds to vote in all elections.

By federal law and court decision, the 18-year-old vote is already the law of the land for federal elections. However, a constitutional change is necessary to extend the lower voting age to state and local elections.

The vote on ratifying the amendment was 82 to 22 in the Michigan House. The measure was then sent to the Senate, where agreement was expected.

Oddly enough, there were more votes against the amendment in the 110-member Michigan House, than there were in the U.S. House, which numbers 435 members. The House vote in Washington was 400 to 19. The reason for the relative high "no" vote in Lansing is the fact that Michigan voters have turned down the 18-year-old vote proposal twice in recent years by wide margins. Some legislators, while not necessarily opposed to the concept of a lower voting age, voted against the measure as a reflection of that voter sentiment.

On the other hand, proponents argued that the decision lowering the voting age for federal elections had completely changed the situation since the last popular vote. Failure to adopt the federal amendment, they said, would force Michigan into a confusing and expensive dual system for both registration and voting. All Michigan citizens over 18 would be able to vote for president and Congress, but would be barred from state and local balloting. An estimate printed in the New York Times put the cost of the dual system, on a nationwide basis, at up to $20 million.

Chances for ratification of the proposed 26th amendment are considered excellent. A total of 38 state legislatures (three fourths) must approve for the amendment to be ratified. It now seems likely that 18-year-old vote will be uniform by 1972.

The House Social Services and Corrections Committee, now considering the Senate-passed abortion reform bill, has announced a total of 13 public hearings on the bill. The opinion gathering meetings will be held during April.

For persons interested in attending one or more of the hearings to express a personal or group viewpoint, here is the complete schedule: Houghton-April 2, Marquette-April 3, Escanaba-April 5, St. Ignace-April 6, Alpena-April 7, Traverse City-April 8, Bay City-April 12, Grand Rapids-April 13, Lansing-April 14, Flint-April 23, Detroit-April 26-27, Benton Harbor-April 30.

Despite the fact that abortion reform has been the subject of several years of debate and more than a dozen public hearings by the Senate, the House Committee felt the 13 hearings were necessary to allow it to fully air the issue.

Citizens who wish to attend can obtain specific information about the meeting time and place for any of the hearings by writing to the committee at the State Capitol.

The committee chairman was reported as saying that after the month-long series of hearings, the committee would spend about another month or so considering the bill. He estimated that his committee wouldn't vote on reporting the bill to the full membership until late May or early June. House supporters have indicated an effort to discharge the bill from the committee, or some other action to bring the issue before the full House, will be made if the committee has failed to act by early May.

In a related development, a committee of legislators and private citizens last week announced they are considering a petition drive to place the issue directly before the voters.

Chances appear good for toughening Michigan's drunk driver law this year. The Senate recently passed a measure to cut by one third the permissible amount of alcohol in the blood. Similar legislation has also been under consideration in the House. The bill cuts the alcohol content limit for "presumption of influence" from fifteen hundredths of one percent (0.15) to ten hundredths of one percent (0.10). The alcohol level for presuming "impairment" in driving would also be lowered; from 0.10 to 0.07. Further tightening of drunk driver restrictions seems to me an excellent and necessary step, and I hope this or another bill to accomplish this traffic safety goal is passed this year.

MANY CHARLEVOIX Nursery activities center around a big hooked rug in the middle of the nursery floor. Above, the youngsters play "Hide the Easter Egg" with Mrs. Sam Supernaw in charge. Below, the children sit on the rolled up rug while they wait for their parents to pick them up.

Nursery Helps Kids Get Along Together

The Charlevoix Children's Nursery will wind up its first year of operation the end of May and the founders are well satisfied that they are providing an educational service needed by many Charlevoix pre-schoolers.

During the first year, the nursery has held classes twice a week for 12 three-year-olds and 19 four-year-olds, at the Charlevoix Library.

Mrs. Thomas Erber reports that applications are now being taken for next year's enrollment. Blanks are available at the library and should be returned to Mrs. Ricky Davis, 1220 State-st., Charlevoix, before April 15.

The only changes anticipated for next year are lengthening the class for four-year-olds from two hours to two and one-half hours and the addition of afternoon sessions. Classes will start the first week of October.

Mrs. Erber says the classes run largely toward arts and crafts and that no specific effort is made to teach youngsters the alphabet or numbers unless they come up in connection with other activities.

The youngsters also learn poems, songs and dances and take field trips.

Probably the most important function of the school is teaching youngsters how to get along with one another.

During the year, the children have visited The Pastry Shop, the Post Office, the state fish hatchery, a bank and the fire hall. A trip to a farm is planned for later in the spring.

Two dentists, Dr. Jeff Porter and Dr. Robert Tollas, have visited the classes to discuss dental hygiene and a guitarist was invited to sing and play for the children.

Mrs. Erber says the nursery would appreciate contributions of toys and shelves for storage.

More Cherry Recipes Asked

Since 1968 when the National Cherry Festival first requested Michigan women to send favorite cherry recipes for use in festival publications and by food editors, hundreds of delicious recipes for cherry dishes have been received by the festival office in Traverse City.

It is estimated that these recipes have reached 125,000 via festival publications alone and approximately 12 million through newspapers, radio and TV.

Additionally many, many more individual recipes are mailed on request by the National Cherry Festival.

Once again Michigan women – and men – are being asked to assist in this promotion of cherries, a product important to the economy of the state.

Cherry recipes should be sent to National Cherry Festival, P.O. Box 141, Traverse City, Mich., 49684.

Mrs. Dorothy Walkmeyer, executive director of the National Cherry Festival, says that each recipe will be acknowledged and donors whose recipes appear in the National Cherry Festival material will receive copies.

Credits are also given when the recipes are distributed by mail or to media.

BUT IS IT FAIR?

Electric Fund Lays Golden Eggs for City

We hope one of the first things Mayor-elect Andy Essenburg does after assuming office in April is take a long, hard look at Charlevoix's electric fund to determine if the city is not raising money via electric rates that should more properly be levied through property taxes.

It is not that Charlevoix's electric rates are out-of-line with other nearby communities. They are right in the ballpark.

In Charlevoix, for example, the average homeowner pays $12.29 a month for 500 kilowatts of electricity. The same homeowner in Petoskey would pay $12 and in Boyne City $12.60.

The problem, if there is one, lies with that fact that Charlevoix's electric fund shows an extremely healthy balance at the end of each fiscal year. Last year, for example, the city transferred $69,000 from the electric fund to the general fund, to be used for city operating expenses and improvements.

In the 1969-70 fiscal year, $95,000 was transferred from the electric fund to the general fund --- just $1,000 less than the city raised with eight mills on an evaluation of $12 million.

Down at the City Hall they refer to the electric fund as "the goose that lays the golden eggs." And rightly so.

Thanks to the money from the electric fund, Charlevoix has been able to keep taxes down and to finance a number of projects, witness the restroom and shower facility in East Park, that otherwise would have been impossible.

Our question is whether the city's year-'round users of electricity should be asked to subsidize the city via the electric fund, when the money more properly should come from a tax levy on all property owners.

City Superintendent Thomas Hanna points out that Charlevoix would have to double its eight-mill tax levy in order to provide the same money that the city skims off the top of the electric fund every year. And he is no doubt correct.

But it seems to us that year-'round residents who contribute most heavily to the electric fund would come out ahead if their electric rates were reduced and their taxes increased.

Furthermore, they would be able to claim a larger property tax deduction on their federal income tax if their share of the electric fund surplus were entered as taxes rather than as a utility charge.

How does the city Electric Department manage to make so much money?

It's a matter of simple mathematics, coupled with excellent management of Charlevoix's electrical utilities over the years.

The city buys power from Consumers at slightly more than one cent per kilowatt hour. It is resold to customers at a sliding scale, starting at $1.40 for the first 24 kw hours, 4 cents a kilowatt for the next 26 kw hours, 2.5 cents for the next 50 kw hours and 2.15 cents for every kw hour thereafter.

Similar, but not identical, rate structures are in effect for both Boyne City and Petoskey.

Charlevoixans are fortunate that the city Electric Department is able to end up so far in the black every year.

But it seems to us that the Electric Department, like all city departments, should be established on a "break-even" basis, allowing, of course, for capital outlay for improvements.

We can't help but feel that summer residents and seasonal businessmen, who pay their electric bills only a few months out of the year, are being deprived of an opportunity to contribute their fair share toward the cost of running Charlevoix.

Pollution Laws Pinch Pocketbooks

Citizens in every part of the state are beginning to feel the pinch of pollution control on their pocketbooks.

Each month a new group of communities is called before the Michigan Water Resources Commission to receive orders for pollution abatement - in most cases for the discharge of raw or inadequately treated sewage into Michigan streams. In nearly every case, community representatives list first their citizens' alarm at the cost of constructing or expanding waste treatment plants. At present, state and federal grants cover 55 percent of the "eligible costs" of each treatment project. Municipal wastes represent the greater part of the state's pollution problems today, according to the WRC agency.

At a show-cause hearing before the Commission last week, Roscommon officials expressed fear of too great a financial burden on their community, which has been ordered to halt sewage discharge to the south branch of the Au Sable River. Dr. L.R. Ballard, village president, said Roscommon citizens are aware of the importance of the well-known trout stream to Roscommon, both economically and scenically. However, he relayed the protests of many village citizens who will be required to help pay for new sewage treatment facilities while not being connected to the service.

"We will strive to remedy our contribution to the tearing down of this beautiful stream," Ballard assured the Commission.

Roscommon received a Final (pollution abatement) Order of Determination in June, 1968, but did not authorize engineers to draw up waste treatment plans by required dates. The Commission declared the village in default of the order and referred the case to the Attorney General for enforcement action.

In the "Thumb Area" of Michigan, the city of Lapeer and the townships of Elba and Mayfield (Lapeer County) were cited this month for violating the water pollution control law.

During the March 18-19 Commission meeting, Final Orders were adopted against the Upper Peninsula's city of St. Ignace, Central Michigan's city of Owosso, Northfield Township in Washtenaw County, Niles Township and Galien in Berrien County (Southwest Michigan) and Wayne County.

Many communities balk at joining with neighboring areas in regional waste treatment plans. Owosso Township officials protested at a March 19 show-cause hearing that their refusal to connect to the city of Owosso's sewage plant may forfeit their approval for state and federal grant funds. The hearing was recessed for a month, while working in the Commission's prepared order is changed to require pollution abatement either by joining Owosso or proceeding independently.

Township members must reconsider their denial of pollution of state waters during the 30 days or the project may be delayed for several months by referral of the case to the Hearings Commissioner. The township has not presented sufficient evidence to the Commission to show that building independent waste treatment facilities would be more economical than joining the Owosso system.

On a larger scale, the cities of Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor await approval for expansion of their waste treatment plants on the Huron River, while downstream communities have petitioned against allowing the plants to continue operation. Proponents of a Huron River Regional Plan contend that the cities should be connected to their system to protect the Huron's water quality.

High state standards have been set for the stream to provide swimming and other recreational uses of the water. An Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor consulting engineer told interested citizens at the Commission conference that removing treated discharge of the two plants from the river would reduce the stream's flow by 20 million gallons of water per day.

The WRC staff and area communities are to provide more detailed operating and construction cost figures at the April Commission meeting, so the Commission may determine the best route toward highest water quality at least expense to the taxpayers.

Michigan industrial dischargers face annual stream surveillance fees under the "Truth in Pollution Law" (Act 200) of 1970. At its March meeting, the Commission studied a proposed rate schedule which must be set for the industries this year. The statute specifies a minimum rate of $50 per year for each industry, and a maximum fee of $9,000 per year for industries in compliance with Commission restrictions for waste control. Rates are to be figured on a graduated scale by volume of discharge and "strength" of the treated industrial wastes.

Staff members reported to the Commission that 174 Michigan industry applications for waste treatment control tax exemptions have been certified, under Act 222 of 1966. The exemptions certified represent industrial waste control facility costs of $70,736,643.

Clockwise

Deer Watching

By Bob Clock

Maybe it's too early to be overly optimistic, but it appears that the deer herd — at least in the Charlevoix area — has survived the winter in fine shape.

In fact, I can't recall a spring when so many deer have been in evidence so early.

The Tom Dammanns who live on the Boyne City-rd. have counted as many as 50 in a single day.

I haven't seen that many, but almost every time I take a trip out of town I can count on seeing two or three.

And although the winter has been one of the worst on record, the deer appear plump and contented as they paw for apples under ancient apple trees or browse in thickets alongside the road.

Last Sunday, Judy and I took the kids for a ride down Quarter Line-rd. in hopes of seeing a few. We weren't disappointed. In one open area we counted seven, three in one group and four in another.

Inbetween, with his red tail flying was a big fox doing acrobatics in the snow.

I stopped the car to watch. And the deer, unafraid, stopped their browsing to look back. I wouldn't have been surprised if one of them had whipped out a camera and taken our picture.

What is so surprising is the apparent condition of their health, inspite of the long, cold, snowy winter. Their coats were sleek and they were so plump you couldn't see a rib-cage in the lot.

Friday night, Judy and I counted 10 of them along U.S. 31 between Charlevoix and Elk Rapids. And Saturday we saw three in the field across from the Bob Bergmann home on the Boyne City-rd.

We also have heard an interesting theory on how the deer have survived the winter so well. Our informers credit the snowmobile, which leaves trails of hard-packed snow through the wilderness.

More than one snowmobiler reports that his favorite trail is often marked by hoofprints, indicating that the deer are using the snowmobile trails to leave their yarding areas, even when the snow is belly-deep, to find fresh supplies of food.

If this is the case, the snowmobile has been vindicated.

A few years ago, when the snowmobile was new, conservationists were worried that the noisy machines would spell the end of wildlife in northern Michigan. They theorized that the intursion of man in the wilderness during the winter would so frighten the poor beasts that they would run themselves to death, trying to get away.

Not it appears that the snowmobile may provide at least a partial answer to survival of the deer herd.

Of course, the snowmobile has been of more direct assistance, hauling bales of hay and baskets of corn into the more inaccessible areas.

Although I am not much of a hunter, I still get a kick out of seeing wild game in the woods. And when the animal is the size of a Michigan whitetail, I come down with a bad case of goosebumps, probably a primitive reaction handed down by my cave-man ancestors.

And I expect most people experience the same kind of a thrill when they see a white flag bouncing off into the underbrush.

That is why it is nice to know that our deer herd has come through the winter as well as it has.

Without deer and other wildlife, the northern Michigan woodlands would lose much of their beguiling mystery.

President Nader

By JIM FITZGERALD

I ordered ham on white bread but the waitress brought rye bread. I don't like rye bread but I ate it anyway, without a murmur. And I left a tip. I like to think I'm a sweet guy who doesn't want to cause any trouble.

But Ralph Nader is right. I'm really a cowardly ass and it would serve me right if I woke up tomorrow with rye bread growing out of my ears.

Nader says the consumer should assert himself. Ralph would have sent that rye bread back. In fact, he would have investigated the waitress and subsequently written a book revealing that her father is a rye-bread mogul whose product is unsafe to chew at any speed.

I wish I could be like that. I am always paying people to stomp on me. I never complain. I tell my wife I don't want to create a scene. The whole truth is, I'm afraid the scene will feature some brute socking me in the nose. Or some woman throwing a hysterical fit because she has 16 starving children and I won't tip her $1. I'm not nearly so sweet as I am chicken.

Ralph Nader is my hero. He complains about everything. When he walks by, GM pulls down the shades. I'd like to see him elected President and I think it could happen. Nader's bag is to insist that consumers get their money's worth. I'd sure like to get my money's worth out of the federal government. We've been paying for Cadillacs and getting scooters. Nader is just the guy to cut the nonsense and take in paying boarders at the White House.

As I type nice words about Ralph Nader, I keep glancing fearfully over my shoulder. I know a lot of car salesmen. I don't know why this is, but I suspect it has something to do with my life style. If I hung around libraries, I might be chummy with professors. But I have always been partial to murkey poolrooms and dim bars. The kind where you can't see until it's too late. It's incredible how many car dealers I've met this way – all of them nice guys with a healthy disdain for wise-guy newsmen who would dare to write something nice about a jerk like Nader.

So this column could mean I have to start paying for my own drinks. But no sacrifice is too great if it furthers Nader's noble cause. He wants the customers to yap; to read the fine print on the warranties; to insist on quality and safe performance; to refuse to accept everything the salesman says as Gospel truth.

Marvelous. If enough people would speak up like Nader, the waitress would stop bringing me rye bread. And then I wouldn't have to say anything to her about it.

Because I really don't want to create a scene.

Norwood Could Use Revenue

A Letter to the Courier:

As a resident and taxpayer in Norwood Township, I would like to point out a few things concerning the development of property within this township in the Bells Bay area near Fisherman's Island.

Property taxes are our main source of revenue for our township to meet its expenses which we find harder and harder to be able to do.

We did not raise any objection to Charlevoix Township for their Medusa plant on the beautiful shores of Lake Michigan from which I am sure they receive a bountiful income, or the developments in the Mt. McSauba area.

And if this 360 acres were developed and sold to home owners, Norwood Township could possibly be able to meet growing costs for road construction and maintenance, school taxes and maybe even pay their township officers a salary they deserve. Probably right now they are the lowest paid in Charlevoix County.

If this land were sold back to the state, the taxes received from it in Norwood Township would have to be levied on the remaining property owners in the township, because we need every cent of revenue we get at the present time.

The land from Clipperview south to Norwood is state-owned and probably will be preserved for wildlife and or parks.

If I had owned and paid taxes on property for years and people in the town had used it for whatever suited their desires such as camping, fishing, riding, snowmobiling, etc., I would not be happy if those same citizens tried to influence the state to take it from me.

And I understand that this property is in Norwood Township alone, not Charlevoix and Norwood Townships as stated in the Courier.

It's always interesting and makes for good conversation to hear both sides of the story. This I sincerely believe and I will make sure that both Bob Davis and Mr. Friske will hear from some of the citizens of Norwood Township, too.

School Pay Hikes Sign of Optimism

If you are looking for signs that the northern Michigan economy is on the upswing, you might take heart from the hefty pay increases granted Charlevoix's school administrators last week by the Board of Education.

Although the county has an unemployment rate of more than 12 percent and the school district is in the financial doldrums, the Board of Education apparently sees a light at the end of the tunnel.

The pay increases range from three percent for Elementary School Principal Glenn Snider to 12 percent for Business Manager Harold Kaufman.

Superintendent Robert Miller will receive an increase of 10 percent next year, High School Principal Vane Smith is in line for an eight percent boost and Middle School Principal Max Novak will receive a hike of seven percent.

In dollars and cents, Miller's salary will rise from $19,000 to $21,060; Kaufman's from $14,000 to $15,730; Smith's from $15,900 to $17,160; Novak's from $14,500 to $15,548; and Snider's from $15,000 to $15,418.

Ironically, although Snider has been a school administrator far longer than any of the others, his increase was the smallest and he is now the lowest paid school administrator in Charlevoix, dropping from third place to fifth place.

It must be remembered that the increases come at a time when government leaders from President Nixon on down have been pleading with the American people to keep wages in check in an effort to curb inflation.

And even if the administrators received no increase whatever, they would still be drawing salaries well above the median for the area.

At the same meeting at which the increases were approved, Miller revealed that tax collections to date were only 68 percent, although the figure has moved considerably higher during the past week.

Furthermore, the district received only a partial state aid payment in February and only a partial payment is expected in April, a grim commentary on the state's financial condition.

Even more disturbing is the fact that the school district will need an additional two and one-half mills in operational money next year — just to maintain the same program we have this year.

Yet in view of such financial uncertainties the School Board has seen fit to increase administrative salaries from $78,400 to $84,916. Based on an enrollment of 1,500, administrative costs per child will jump from $52.26 to $56.51; an increase of $4.25, exclusive of secretarial and bookkeeping salaries.

Although Charlevoix's economy is relatively low-key in comparison with the rest of the state, we are forced to compete with the metropolitan areas when it comes to such things as school salaries.

School Board member Jack Rader points out, for example, that it is virtually impossible to hire a school superintendent for less than $20,000 a year. Superintendent Miller says that his increase will only bring him up to the salary he received at Hartland before moving to Charlevoix last year.

Which is all well and good for the school administrators. We are sure they are worth every cent they receive.

What bothers us is how the Charlevoix School District is going to foot the bill, particularly if the teachers ask for and receive similar increases.

That is why we detect a note of optimism in the new school administrative salaries. The School Board apparently sees something ahead that has escaped the rest of us.

Eggs Pre-date Easter As Symbol of Spring

The gaily decorated eggs that brighten the Easter basket are filled with tradition and legend.

As a symbol of new life, the egg was associated with spring and rebirth long before the Christian Eastertide, the National Geographic Society says.

Early Egyptians, Greeks, Jews, Romans, Chinese, and Norsemen all welcomed the waking Earth with the egg's assistance. Hard-boiled eggs still play a part in the Jewish Passover feast.

DYED BY ANCIENTS

Red and yellow were favorite colors centuries before dyes came neatly wrapped in cellophane packages. Extracts from herbs, roots, berries, flowers, and plants stained the eggs exchanged at ancient rites.

In Christian times, European countries found a means of expressing national individuality in their egg decorating art. England's King Edward I ordered 450 eggs to be boiled, dyed, and decorated for his household and servants in 1307.

Poles, Hungarians, Rumanians, Czechs, and others developed intricate and painstaking designs. Flowers, portraits, verses, and landscapes glorified the shells.

JEWELED EGGS

None were more elaborate than the jeweled eggs fashioned from precious metals around the turn of the century by Peter Carl Faberge, jeweler to the court of the Russian tsar.

Between 1884 and 1917, Faberge's workshop created more than 50 of the masterpieces. The tsar traditionally presented them to his wife on Easter morning. The eggs opened to reveal surprise interiors that became the international news of the season.

In one a Russian double eagle set with rose diamonds framed a cameo of the tsar's son dressed in a sailor suit. Another contained gold chickens with ruby eggs. Others held coronation coaches, statuettes of the royal family, and a clock that released a singing cuckoo.

EGGS BRING HONEY

The Ukranians still carry on the decorative tradition, but without precious jewels and metals. They sometimes hide geometrically designed Easter eggs--Pysanky--in thatched roofs and under haystacks.

The hidden eggs serve as charms against high winds. Bee-keepers slip them under hives to insure a good supply of honey, and farmers bury them to bring a rich harvest.

In Germany, Switzerland, and Belgium, children often fashion nests in the grass near their homes so the Easter rabbit can fill them with eggs.

The animal's ancestors date to pre-Christian times when the hare was sacred to an exotic European spring goddess. Later, the pagan diety obligingly gave her name–Eostre–to the most Christian of holidays–Easter.

Tax Collections Up, State Aid in Doubt

portation (after the board voted to finance rather than pay cash for its two new buses) and community services within the 1970-71 budget but operation $8,000 over the budget. Maintenance over approximately $12,000. Fixed costs, $12,000; capital outlay, $9,000 and student services, $1,000. Anticipated expenditures will reach $1,256,000 for an $11,000 deficit.

An explanation of the overages showed most of the increase in operation coming as the result of custodial pay increases, overtime and custodial supplies; under maintenance, the cost of solving the heating problems and electrical work in the Middle School; heating controls in both the high school and the Middle School; moving of two portable to the Middle School; snow removal and installation of fences and replacement of equipment in the Middle School; under fixed costs, interest on monies borrow against State Aid payments and increased insurance costs as the result of Blue Cross-Blue Shield rate increases; under capital outlay, fences, site for the house being constructed by the Building Trades class, furniture and equipment, a vacuum pump and air compressor for the Middle School and the deficit in the lunch program under the heading of Student Services.

A portion of the increased expenses resulted in unanticipated increases in costs, unanticipated repairs such as in the heating plants and the purchase of several items such as the vacuum pump and the air compressor that had been ordered for some time.

Projections for 1971-72 show a budget of $1,331,000 or a six percent increase over this year's expenditures.

He added that the present Chamber has come up with "ideas that don't belong within the structure of a Chamber of Commerce."

Cooper also feels that the increase in the number of Chamber directors to 12 has created an unwieldy body which will be unable to function effectively.

He said that a public meeting will be called if response to the Businessmen's Association questionnaire is favorable.

and Bridge-sts. on the request of the new owner, Steve LaBlance. LaBlance plans to tear down the house and construct a four-unit office complex. The waiver is contingent upon approval of Leo Carey, who lives on Bridge-st. next to the McCann property. The council objected to LaBlance's tentative plans to provide a parking area north of Upright-st. Members pointed out that the lot posed a safety hazard, since autos would have to cross the sidewalk. Revised plans are being worked out with Supt. Hanna.

–Received approval of the state Highway Department to use major street funds to upgrade Burns-st. from Dixon to Division. When the work is completed, Burns will be designated a major street, instead of a local street, and will be used by school buses traveling to and from the Elementary School. The state also approved the city's request to change the designation of Meech-st. from Dixon to Division and Michigan-ave. from Division to Petoskey-rd. from major to local. The moves may make it possible to restore parking on both sides of Michigan-ave., depending on results of the budget hearing in May.

–Returned plans for Eaton Court Subdivision to builder Ralph McRae, with a suggestion that the cul de sac be moved further to the rear of the property to allow for snow removal.

–Set April 26 as the date of a zoning hearing requested by Dick Way. Way wants his Westport Subdivision rezoned from R-3 to R-2.

–Learned that state and federal money for Charlevoix's proposed waste water treatment plant has been held up because of a complaint filed by an attorney for Tom Shaw of Shaw-Henderson Construction Co. of Cheboygan, second low bidder. Shaw claims Clark Construction Co. of Lansing should not have been awarded the contract, since one of Clark's subcontractors withdrew the day after bids were opened after discovering an error in its quotation. He says the move allows Clark an opportunity to "shop the job."

–Heard a report by Hanna that he intended to drive to Lansing Tuesday in an attempt to secure state recreation bond money for proposed tennis courts and to meet with officials of the state Department of Aeronautics in a bid to get state money for planning airport improvements.

–Agreed to advertise for group life insurance bids, to be opened Friday, April 23.

–Learned that the Mayors' Exchange will be with Hancock May 17.

–Appointed George Lusk to the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission, replacing Ken Staley.

–Heard that Northern Michigan Electrical Cooperative plans to lay an underwater electrical cable to Beaver Island from Cross Village this spring.

shoreline is not available to use by the public because of private ownership. Nevertheless, we are fortunate to have at least 37 state parks located along our Great Lakes. That is almost half of the 78 state parks located in our entire state. In addition, we have several miles of lake frontage in state forest and national forest ownership located along the shores of the Great Lakes.

In fact, as you mentioned in your letters, the State of Michigan presently administers state forest lands immediately north and south of the Fisherman's Island location. The state forest lands are administered by the Department of Natural Resources. The Department has informed me that they have been interested for several years in acquiring additional lands in this location. However, it has been difficult for them to place a high priority on these lands when they have such limited funds and a large demand to acquire land throughout the State of Michigan. Similar requests are received almost daily from other citizens and there simply are not enough funds to be used for everything we would like to acquire.

I do not know at this time if the Fisherman's Island area can be saved from private development. However, I can assure you that the Department of Natural Resources will be requested to evaluate their Great Lakes shoreline acquisition programs to determine the significance of this area in their overall needs.

I have the feeling that the future of our natural resources is in good hands after reading letters received from youngsters like yourselves. It is very gratifying for me to know that the young people of today have a sincere and dedicated interest in the future of our natural resources.

Contractor's Complaint Stalls Sewage Funds

Charlevoix's proposed waste water treatment plant, which has been plagued by problems since its inception two years ago, faces a major new hurdle this week.

Charles A. Boyle, an attorney for Shaw-Henderson Construction Co. of Cheboygan, has filed a complaint with the federal Water Quality Office in Chicago charging irregularities in the low bid for general construction submitted by Clark Construction Co. of Lansing.

The complaint has withheld the granting of all federal and state monies for the project, according to Charlevoix City Attorney John Michael.

And unless the difficulty is resolved before May 15, the city will lose its priority for 1970 state and federal grants and Charlevoix will have to stand in line with other communities for the 1971 divvy.

Any delay undoubtedly will put completion of the project well beyond the state's December, 1972, deadline.

Shaw-Henderson's complaint charges that Clark's bid, amounting to $1,190,245, was "grossly irregular and should have been summarily rejected in favor of the Shaw Henderson bid" which was only $255 more.

Shaw-Henderson cited the following alleged irregularities:

1. Clark's bid contrained a $70,000 understatement of cost by its mechanical and plumbing subcontractor, Axtel Hardy.

2. Clark's bid omitted the mandatory requirement of naming the pipe work subcontractor.

3. Clark's stated bid was $10,000 less than the total sum of itemized costs for labor and materials.

4. Clark's bid on the deductible items was less than Shaw-Henderson's.

Michael said the city "finds itself in a simply unbelieveable situation in that for over a year and a half considerable time, effort and expense has been expended by the city, state and federal governments to insure clean waters in Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix by creation of a tertiary waste water treatment plant.

"Now that we are on the verge of realizing such a badly needed facility, it would appear that Shaw-Henderson Construction Co., as an unsuccessful bidder, can merely by making false and unfounded allegations to the federal Water Quality Office, terminate the entire project."

"I have been advised by this federal office," he added, "that they will not act as judge and jury in this situation and that unless this complaint is withdrawn by May 15, federal and state funds will not be forthcoming."

Shaw-Henderson's complaint points out that the bids were opened at 2 p.m. Feb. 23, 1971, but alleges that at 4 p.m. on the same day Axtel Hardy of Traverse City, a mechanical and plumbing subcontractor, contacted all of the general contractors, including Clark Construction Co., that its bid of $580,000 was "grossly erroneous, and was in fact understated by $70,000. Axtel Hardy requested all of the contacted contractors that its bid be raised by $70,000, to approximately $650,000, or be withdrawn."

"Thereafter, McNamee, Porter and Seeley's John Holland, the consulting engineer assigned to the project, became cognizant of the egregious miscalculation by Axtel Hardy," the complaint continues. "Without notifying the City Council, Holland permitted Clark's representatives to have access to the other general contractors' bids which were now unsealed. Clark, therefore, became privy to all the bids and discovered that his nearest competitor's bid, namely Shaw-Henderson, contained a much more favorable figure for the mechanical and plumbing portion. Clark's representatives then contacted Shaw-Henderson's subcontractor, Wares & Son, and sought to have them perform the mechanical and plumbing work instead of Axtel Hardy for the amount recited and incorporated in Shaw-Henderson's bid."

"This information was conveyed to Holland, who approved the replacement and in so doing, condoned the 'pirating' or 'shopping' of subcontractors by Clark after the bids were opened," the complaint continues. "This practice of permitting 'shopping' is in direct contravention of the affirmation under seal required of all general contractors upon the submission of their respective bids."

The complaint further charges that Clark failed to designate the subcontractor for the pipe work in violation of mandatory instructions to bidders.

Shaw-Henderson further charges that Clark's bid figure of $1,190,245 was approximately $40,000 less than the itemized total of all costs for materials and labor.

"Even a layman could conclude that the Clark bid was not substantiated by the supporting itemized figures and, therefore, the consulting engineer would have to be a mind reader to ascertain not only the quality of work to be performed, but where the shortcuts were going to be taken to make up the difference of $40,000," the complaint reads.

In answer to the complaint, Michael told the Courier:

"The Shaw-Henderson complaint is primarily a complaint against the city's consulting engineer, McNamee, Porter and Seeley, and in my judgment is completely without any engineering or legal merit whatsoever as to setting aside the awarding of the contract to Clark Construction Co., but even so the city may well suffer as a result.

"In awarding this contract, the Council, with full knowledge of all of the facts and circumstances, selected the bid of the lowest responsible bidder in accordance with general practices.

"I personally have never seen a contractor so demean himself as did one of the officers of Shaw-Henderson by approaching the elected and appointed officials of this City, soliciting the awarding of the contract, and going to the extent of, personally himself his agents and attorney, making unethical promises of favor to the city if the contract was awarded to Shaw-Henderson.

"If this facility is lost to the City because of the actions of Shaw-Henderson both the City of Charlevoix and the other successful bidders will have a very substantial cause of action for damages for adjudication by the courts."

Essenburg Elected Mayor

THERE WAS ALMOST a 50 percent turnout at the polls in Charlevoix's city election Monday. Andrew Essenburg jr. defeated write-in candidate William E. Fochtman 615 to 165.

Woman Killed In Crash

Funeral for Mrs. Clyde (Cynthia M.) Eggett, 22, of Charlevoix was held at SS. Peter and Paul Church in Wisconsin Rapids, Wisc., April 5, with burial in New Rome, Wisc.

Mrs. Eggett was killed instantly Friday morning while she was driving from Charlevoix to Petoskey, where she was employed as an aide at Little Traverse Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies say Mrs. Eggett apparently lost control of her 1966 Mustang on U.S. 31 about 5½ miles north of Charlevoix and skidded into the path of a southbound car driven by Robert Bidus, 42, of Petoskey. Bidus was injured slightly.

Mrs. Eggett lived at 307 W. Upright-st., with her husband, Clyde, who has been assigned to the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station for the past 18 months. He is to be discharged June 11. They had no children.

The former Cynthia M. Doughty was born in Wisconsin Rapids July 9, 1948 and graduated from Lincoln High School. She married Mr. Eggett in 1969.

She is survived by her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Doughty; a brother, Timothy W.; six sisters, Penny, Alita, Donnata, Ju Lynn and Tina, all of Wisconsin Rapids, and Mrs. Michael Schultz of Hechoosa, Wisc; and her grandparents, Mrs. Rose Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Horn, all of Durand, Wisc.

MRS. THOMAS LABLANCE models hostess gown from the Carriage Wheel at spring Fashion Festival staged Saturday at the Weathervane Inn. Proceeds will go toward tennis courts. The show and luncheon were sponsored by the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma sorority.

Fochtman Loses Despite Write-Ins

Andrew Essenburg jr. was elected mayor of Charlevoix Monday, defeating incumbent write-in candidate William E. Fochtman 615 to 165.

The campaign for Fochtman, who was defeated by Essenburg in the February primary, developed late last week when a letter signed by "A Group of Interested Citizens" was sent out to a number of Charlevoix residents asking a write-in vote as "one way of telling Bill that we appreciate all the time and effort he has contributed while serving the city as mayor during the past five years."

Fochtman, who said earlier that he did not intend to run as a write-in candidate, claims he has no knowledge who launched the last-minute campaign.

Essenburg, 42, who owns and operates Essenburg's Grocery on W. Garfield-st., rang up hefty pluralities in all three wards. The vote in the First Ward was 128 to 70, in the Second Ward 222 to 33 and in the Third Ward 226 to 36. In addition, Essenburg had 39 absentee votes and Fochtman 26.

There were scattered votes for Richard Fochtman, the ex-mayor's brother, who was not a candidate.

When the results were tabulated, Essenburg said he would call a special meeting of the City Council "as soon as possible"–probably Tuesday or Wednesday–to launch his administration. The next regularly scheduled council meeting is April 12.

Essenburg ran on a clean-sweep ticket, promising Charlevoix a new city attorney and an ordinance which would prohibit city officials from doing business with the city.

A total of 825 votes were cast, out of 1,716 registered voters.

Elsewhere on the ballot, Clerk Ida A. Heise received 726 votes, including 182 in the First Ward, 233 in the Second Ward, 240 in the Third Ward and 39 absentee votes.

Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham received 741 votes, including 189 in the First Ward, 236 in the Second Ward, 246 in the Third Ward and 70 absentee votes.

In the First Ward, Howard Otis received 214 votes as supervisor and Roger Westenbroek received 211 votes as alderman.

In the Second Ward, Robert Somerville received 252 votes as supervisor and Robert L. Gill 244 votes as alderman. There were two write-in votes for Robert Wise as alderman.

In the Third Ward, supervisor candidate Theodore Browe received 250 votes and alderman candidate Clifton Sundberg received 256 votes.

Medusa Workers OK Pace-Setting Contract

A pace-setting two-year contract between the Medusa Portland Cement Co. and the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union was ratified Sunday by members of Medusa Local 480 in Charlevoix.

The contract, which calls for general wage increases of 35 cents an hour in 1971 and 24 cents an hour in 1972, will be used a model for other cement industry contracts throughout the country, according to Local President Howard Horton.

Medusa's present contract expires May 1.

Horton said the ratification vote marked the first time a contract settlement with a major cement manufacturer had been reached so far ahead of the deadline.

Contract negotiations took place in Chicago last week in March and included representatives from Medusa plants in Dixon, Ill., Toledo, Ohio, and Manitowoc, Wisc. as well as Charlevoix.

In addition to the wage increase, employes will receive a 10th paid holiday each year (In Charlevoix, workers agreed to take their birthdays), and substantial improvements in the insurance program, the pension plan, suplemental unemployment benefits and termination benefits.

The contract also provides for an additional week's vacation for employes with more than 30 years service, from five to six weeks, and shortens the probationary period from seven weeks to 30 days.

Negotiating for the Charlevoix employes were Horton and Jack Zoulek, recording secretary.

Medusa was represented at the bargaining table by Charlevoix Fred Cohrs, Charlevoix Plant Manager; Charles Howlett, vice president-manufacturing; William Troutman, corporation secretary; and Peter Geis, director of industrial relations.

Horton said the negotiations throughout were "quite affable."

"The important thing is that we did all this without a work stoppage," he added.

The general wage increase means that the base rate will increase from $3.42 in 1970 to $3.77, effective May 1, 1971, and to $4.01 effective May 1, 1972.

In the upper wage bracket (control operator), the rate will increase from $5.01 to $5.57 this May 1 and to $6.01 next May 1.

Two Elections On Monday

Two elections are on tap for Monday, April 12.

Voters throughout the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will be asked to approve a one-mill levy to provide funds for vocational education.

At Ellsworth, voters will be asked to approve a five-mill levy for five years to provide school operating funds.

Union Services Set For Good Friday

Most Charlevoix business places plan to close Good Friday, April 9, from noon until 3 p.m. to allow employes to take part in religious services commemorating Christ's suffering on the cross.

The Charlevoix Ministerial Association will conduct Union Good Friday services from 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. at the Community Church of God, 204 W. Hurlbut-st.

Pastors taking part will be the Rev. Robert H. Moore, First Baptist Church; Rev. Thomas Rash, Church of the Nazarene; Rev. Lawrence Tenhopen, Congregational Church; Rev. Robert Rutledge, Assembly of God; Rev. Elmer Faust, First Methodist Church; Rev. William H. Harmon, Ironton Congregational Church; And Rev. Albert F. Mansen, Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

Separate services are scheduled at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Rev. E. Francis Densy officiating. At Christ Episcopal Church, Tenebrae and evening prayer will be held at 8 p.m., the Rev. Hewitt Johnston, officiating. Bethany Lutheran Church, Rev. Duane Imig, pastor, will hold its Good Friday service

People vs People: City's Big Problem

"People fighting people" appears to be one of the main problems in generating change in Charlevoix, an expert in urban planning told the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission last week.

Paul Jones, who is largely responsible for the changes that have taken place in downtown Grand Rapids in recent years, was invited to the meeting by Larry Miller, the commission's contact man with Williams and Works, planning consultants.

Jones asked every member of the commission to list the things he felt were the major problems facing the Charlevoix downtown section and in the area as a whole.

After listening to the commission, Jones said he found two common denominators: a lack of adequate parking in the downtown area and a lack of organization or people fighting people.

The commission asked assistance from Williams and Works on implementing its master plan for the Charlevoix area. The plan has been completed for several months, but very little interest has been shown by the community.

Jones told the commission to present its plan as something "so bold, so scarey" that the people react.

Some of the commission members were particularly critical of the city council which they feel has not sought the commission's advice on zoning and other problems.

"It's there, if you only look for it," he said.

Jones said the downtown parking situation may not be at the critical stage yet, but said additional off-street parking is mandatory if Charlevoix is to retain its downtown business district.

Cancer Crusade Starts in County

Charlevoix County Board of Directors of the American Cancer Society met at the Weathervane Inn Restaurant recently to formulate plans for fighting America's number two killer disease.

Main order of business was the annual Cancer Crusade to be held in April when funds are raised to aid present and future cancer patients and to provide funds for research toward prevention and cure of the disease.

Theme for the 1971 Crusade: "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

Mike Taylor, Cadillac, attended the meeting as area representative from the American Cancer Society.

Directors of the Charlevoix County Board include Mrs. Roy Sorenson, Boyne City, president; Mrs. Gregg Boswell, East Jordan, secretary; Mrs. Maurice Dixon, Charlevoix, treasurer; Dr. Harry Custer, Charlevoix, medical chairman; Mrs. Harry Tomkins, Boyne City, service chairman; Mrs. Harvey Varnum, Boyne City, crusade chairman; Mrs. Jay Hite, East Jordan, assistant crusade chairman.

Newly appointed directors are Mrs. Albert Seger, Charlevoix crusade chairman; Robert Hoffman, Charlevoix, and Mrs. Jay Schuring, Boyne City, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Seger is chairman of this year's campaign, assisted by Mrs. Leroy Buchanan.

Section captains are Mrs. James Lugibihl, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mrs. Conrad Klooster, Mrs. Walter Hufford, Mrs. Roger Westenbroek, Mrs. Wayne Olinghouse, Mrs. Robert Timms, Mrs. James Stoneham, Mrs. Joseph Baillargeon jr., Mrs. Robert Potter, Mrs. Lee Schnackenberg, Mrs. Steve LaBlance, Mrs. James Bishaw, Mrs. Edward Lewand, Mrs. Ralph Green, Mrs. William Crowe, Mrs. Gerald Ohrner, Mrs. Tim McArt, Mrs. Keith Mort, Mrs. Jack Mort and Mrs. Ken Archamboult.

Directors accepted a quota of $6,125 for this year's crusade, a raise of almost $2,000 over the 1970 quota. This increase is necessary because nationwide research has been stepped up greatly. One half of the funds raised in this county will go mainly towards research and the other half will remain here for aiding present and future cancer patients.

Mrs. Sorenson reports, "Fifteen cancer patients in Charlevoix County have received financial help in the past year; anyone needing assistance should call the American Cancer Society, listed in the phone book."

Mrs. Dorothy Amesbury, a cured cancer patient from Boyne City, attended the 1971 Michigan Division Crusade Kick-off and Cured Cancer Assembly in Detroit on Sunday, March 28, where each county in Michigan brought a cured cancer patient.

These are patients who have been free of cancer for five years; there are 1,500,000 such people in the U.S.

Charlevoix County directors, Mrs. Dixon and Mrs Sorenson accompanied Mrs Amesbury to the assembly.

SIXTEEN MEMBERS of the Ellsworth School senior class paid a visit to Michigan's Capitol on March 23rd. Waiting to greet them was Representative Richard Friske (R-106th), who accompanied the group on a tour of Michigan's historic state house. Following the tour the students attended the afternoon session of the House of Representatives where they were introduced to the members. Representative Friske and Senator Robert Davis (R-37th) addressed the group and answered questions concerning the governmental process. Miss Judy Friske, daughter of Representative Friske, made arrangements for the tour. Also making the trip was Jack Gebott, instructor. Melvin Essenberg was the driver. At right above are Gebott, Davis and Friske.

Ambitious Friske Tries To Abolish Income Tax

State Rep. Richard Friske (R-Charlevoix) has introduced a resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States to amend the Constitution of the United States to prohibit the government from engaging "in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution."

The so-called "Liberty Amendment" would also call for repeal of the sixteenth article of the amendments of the Constitution. That amendment allows for the collection by the federal government of the graduated personal income tax.

"The total purpose for this proposed amendment is to reinforce the concept of constitutional government as it was created nearly 200 years ago. We have allowed our constitution to be over-interpreted and liberally interpreted until in all too many cases our constitution is working against us instead of for us," Rep. Friske said.

Friske listed the federal business activities alluded to in the amendment as "over 700 federal agencies including the areas of insurance, electric generation, railroads and so forth. These federal agencies are competing with private enterprise without the constitutional authority to do so."

The total amendment proposed by Rep. Friske reads as follows:

1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

2. The Constitution or laws of any state, or the laws of the United States shall not be subject to the terms of any foreign or domestic agreement which would abrogate this amendment.

3. The activities of the United States Government which violate the intent and purposes of this amendment shall, within a period of three years from the date of ratification of this amendment, be liquidated and the properties and facilities affected shall be sold.

4. Three years after the ratification of this amendment the sixteenth article of the amendments to the Constitution of the United States shall stand repealed and there after Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estate and or gifts.

"In my opinion this amendment contains a solution for many of our present ills as a state and as a nation. To those who say that this amendment will leave the federal government without funds to operate, let me say that other federal taxes such as the corporate, excise and import taxes are sufficient to pay for all constitutionally-authorized functions of our government," Friske said.

"This is the crux of the amendment. To bring the functions of our constitution back to its proper position, which in turn will strengthen it and our country.

"I submit that this amendment will strengthen our defense program. It will save us money by allowing private enterprise to provide services now unconstitutionally provided for by government. In so doing, private enterprise will operate these services more efficiently and will provide better service.

"Nearly 200 years ago our forefathers created a constitution to live by. A set of rules, if you will, that have proven effective even in the fact of constant chipping away of its real meaning. A constitution that supports a government of, by and for the people. I submit that that constitution has been eroded to the point that it is not serving that function. The time to change that erosion is now. The vehicle is the Liberty Amendment," he concluded.

Rep. Friske said the success or failure of this Liberty Amendment Resolution is public support and urged citizens to write to members of the legislature urging their support and urging them to vote for passage of the L.A. Resolution.

Small Town Folks Eligible for Loans

Residents of rural towns in the population range of 5,500 to 10,000 are now eligible to apply for Rural Housing loans from the Farmers Home Administration, State Director Alfred O. LaPorte said today.

This greatly broadens the eligibility possibility for rural families who do not have decent or adequate housing and need the assistance made possible through the Farmers Home Administration.

LaPorte announced also that families living in areas of population between 10,000 to 50,000 may be considered for loans to acquire adequate housing in the rural areas of 10,000 population or less.

The 2,400 families in Michigan who obtained adequate, improved housing through the Rural Housing assistance program during calendar year 1970 used 33 million dollars. State Director LaPorte says that Michigan has been allotted 25 million dollars for the first two quarters of the 1971 calendar year.

County Supervisor Ernest C. Schuette, who is head of the local office located at 110 Grove St. Bellaire, reports that he has assisted families during the 1970 calendar year in the amount of $700,000. The office is busy processing applications submitted by individual families as well as those submitted by realtors, builders, and others as a packaged docket. Schuette's office is open every day for consultation or inquiries.

Local Vo-Ed Funds at Work

Voters in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will go to the polls Monday, April 12, to vote on a proposed one-mill levy to help finance vocational education throughout the district.

Although Charlevoix already has an embryo vocational education program under way, Vo-Ed Director Robert Cook is firmly behind the millage on grounds that the extra money not only will help Charlevoix add to its present program but also will permit more students to take additional vo-ed courses offered in Petoskey by providing tuition and transportation funds.

Charlevoix presently offers courses in business machines, consumer education, vocational drafting and building trades and conducts a co-operative education program in cooperation with local businesses.

Cook would like to offer courses in distributive education and auto mechanics next year.

In addition to helping the local program, the new Intermediate District funds would make it possible for more Ellsworth students to take part in Charlevoix's vo-ed courses. This year, eight Ellsworth youngsters are learning trades in Charlevoix on a tuition basis.

BUILDING TRADES Instructor John Mills (left) and Vocational Education Director Robert Cook examine home in Hampton Village constructed by Charlevoix building trades students during the present school year. It should be completed, inside and out, by the end of May. It will be sold for between $25,000 and $30,000, Cook says.

Pros and Cons of Vocational Education Millage

Donaldson Says District Should Go-It-Alone

Letter to the Editor,
Charlevoix Courier

There has been a virtual flood of publicity from the Intermediate School District during the past few days about the virtues of the one mill for vocational education which voters will be asked to vote on on April 12, 1971.

I would like to have the public hear another side of the story.

I personally am not in favor of the one mill request for the following reasons:

1. When first presented it was indicated that the one mill would raise $209,000. Now it is stated that it will bring in $295,000. With this great increase in revenue it would seem like the Intermediate District should reduce their request from one mill to perhaps 3/4 mill. But they haven't done this.

2. The Intermediate School District has devised a way (the one mill) to raise $295,000 without even presenting a detailed budget to the public for approval. In other words, they are saying: "You (the voters) give us $295,000 and then we will figure out a way on how to spend it!" I think we all realize that the local school districts have not been able to raise tax money this way... so why should the Intermediate District be able to?

3. It has been said at public meetings that the money raised by the one mill will be returned to the students of the local districts from where it was received... in other words, Charlevoix School District voters will contribute $44,000 to the Intermediate District which will in turn return this money in the form of voc-ed to Charlevoix students. Somebody has to be kidding here! I am sure that not every local district will get back the same amount that they contribute. Some districts may get more money while many other districts will get less. This it is possible that Charlevoix students might receive only $10,000 in instruction while the taxpayers here will have paid $44,000. This would mean that Charlevoix taxpayers would be footing the bill to educate the children of some other nearby communities. Tax money for schools is hard enough to raise here, so why give it away?

4. If the one mill passes then you can expect the Intermediate District to hire additional office and management personnel to administer the funds. This would reduce the amount of money available for instruction.

5. Every time tax money is collected from a lower level and then forwarded to a higher level for distribution, some of it seems to stick at the higher level and is never returned. Also, the money is not necessarily returned in the same manner as it was collected. Charlevoix could once again pay more than its share.

6. One mill is forever. Once you give them this money, your hands are tied.

7. As property values are increased (and the state is now, or will be, working in Charlevoix County to up-grade values this spring), the one mill will bring in much more than the $295,000. Otsego County values were recently increased by well over 40 percent. An increase such as that in this area could have the one mill raising over $400,000. This is too much money.

8. The Intermediate staff is trying to be all things to all people while moving around the area trying to sell this one mill program. While in Charlevoix they say that the Twin Valley area is first choice for the voc-ed center with Charlevoix also to be given some consideration. While in Boyne City, they say the center will be located in Twin Valley, while in East Jordan they do say that Charlevoix could be a "sub-station." Let's not kid ourselves. If the millage passes, they want the center in Boyne City.

9. If the millage passes and the center is located in Boyne City, Charlevoix will have to transport their students to Boyne and pay the freight. Why should we do this when we can educate our students right here in Charlevoix and save the bus costs?

10. It is going to be hard enough to raise money for schools this spring and with the current recession and unemployment conditions being what they are in this area, I don't think we should be raising extra money for a new program at the Intermediate level.

In summary, I state that local districts such as Charlevoix would be "better off" if they were to raise their own funds and spend them on voc-ed, rather than to let the Intermediate District have the money. With local control over the funds we can have a good program for less money.

I am strongly in favor of voc-ed. In Charlevoix this year we have added building trades, data processing and vocational drafting. Next year we would like to add auto mechanics. This is on a local level, without the Intermediate District!

In closing I would like to quote a Charlevoix Courier editorial of 12-20-67, as follows:

LET'S WATCH THIS

"The intermediate School District is now considering building its own office space for Supt. Charles Robinson and his burgeoning staff. At last month's Intermediate school board meeting a committee was named to study whether an office building should be built.

"There's no denying Robinson's offices in the Charlevoix County Building are crowded. The district's second office, across the street in the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. building, also appears crowded.

"Five years ago Robinson got by with one small corner of the second floor of the county building. Now he uses nearly half the upper floor of the county building and the huge office across the street.

"His staff has grown from three to a dozen in five years. That's an increase of 400 percent. (According to the 1971 director, this staff now contains 27 people. Donaldson's note.)

"What bothers us is the possibility that if the Intermediate district has unlimited space it might quadruple again in the next five years. Maybe keeping it confined in the space now available is the taxpayer's only way to check this."

So vote "no" on the one millage issue. Don't let the fact that it is only one mill fool you. Remember, one mill represents $295,000.

Sincerely,
Richard Donaldson

The letter from Charlevoix School Board Member Richard Donaldson which appears elsewhere on this page relative to the April 12 vocational millage election was received too late to allow for a response from the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District before the election. In an effort to be fair to all parties, the Courier showed a copy of Donaldson's letter to Intermediate School District Superintendent Charles A. Robinson and Vocational Education Consultant Jim Shepard for a response. Their answer appears elsewhere on this page.

Intermediate Office Tells Why Millage is Needed

To the Editor:

1. The best estimates for 1971-72 preliminary budget: $209,230 – one mill tax levy on current S.E.V., plus $86,140 in federal and state monies for total estimates revenues of $295,370.

2. A detailed budget will be submitted to the tax allocation board the same way that the local schools do. The intermediate district must justify its proposed expenditures in exactly the same way the local school does. The $295,000 is budgeted to provide vocational education programs for approximately 800 students.

3. No intermediate district representative has stated that each district will get the exact amount it contributes. Collectively the districts will get back much more. More important, they will provide programs that none could provide alone.

4. The Intermediate District will not hire additional personnel to administer the vocational program. Because of the increased state and federal aid which will result from the area vocational program, considerably more money will be available for vocational education instruction for Charlevoix students than is now available.

5. Charlevoix will receive its share along with a much expanded vocational program. The Intermediate District plan includes a minimum of 18 vocational programs. Charlevoix presently offers five programs locally and transports a dozen students to Petoskey.

6. One mill is not forever. This has been stated publicly both verbally and in print. The one mill can be rescinded by a vote of the people.

7. This money can be used only to support area vocational programs. And, the tax levy must be limited to the budgetary needs of the area centers in any given year. The tax levy may be less than one mill but cannot be more than one mill.

8. The intermediate staff has pointed out, on a number of occasions, that a second area center should be established in a central location with easy access to surrounding schools. An advisory group of representatives from all of the school districts has agreed to this. This central location should be in the central or southern portion of the Twin Valley District. Should the Twin Valley District fail to support the establishment of an area center, we would hope that the Charlevoix Board of Education would provide this support and establish a second center in the Charlevoix District. In either case, the five or six basic vocational courses should be offered in Charlevoix and would be paid for by the one mill.

9. Lets not kid ourselves. A local school district cannot afford to offer a wide variety of vocational classes by themselves efficiently and economically. They can afford to offer the basic five or six programs and Charlevoix is doing this now and should continue to do so, thus limiting the transportation of students. The one mill will cover the cost of operation of those programs which are operating locally and will provide tuition free admission to 12 or more courses which cannot be offered efficiently locally.

Businessmen, industrial groups and farmers have, for years, cooperated and have worked together to produce more efficiently. Why shouldn't the schools be expected to do the same.

To establish, and operate skills training programs of this size without the help of federal and state support would cost Charlevoix taxpayers four mills, not the one mill proposed by the intermediate district.

10. RE: Staff Growth: Increased services resulted from the cooperative efforts of local schools and the intermediate school district to provide, together, programs that cannot be provided by any single district. Those services are supported from special education funds to serve children who, heretofore, have had no appropriate educational program.

Vo-ed Millage: A New Emphasis

Monday, April 12, voters in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will go to the polls to determine the fate of a proposed one-mill levy for vocational-technical education.

Although extra money is hard to come by in this year of inflation and high unemployment, we hope that voters throughout the district will give the so-called vo-ed millage the attention it deserves.

With every passing year, it becomes increasingly apparent that our tradition-bound school systems are not giving a fair shake to students who do not intend to go on to college.

After 13 years in the public schools, too many of our young people find out upon graduation that they have learned very few things in school that will help them earn a living.

And these youngsters are in the majority in Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix School District has made notable strides during the past year in offering students the beginnings of a vocational education program, but there is still much to be done.

School Board Member Richard Donaldson believes that Charlevoix can continue to build on its vocational educaton program without added monies from the Intermediate District.

But Robert Cook, the district's own vocational education director, firmly believes that the new money will not only help subsidize Charlevoix's present program but also will enable youngsters from Ellsworth and other nearby communities to make use of our facilities -- spurring the growth of the entire program.

Although the Courier has objected to the cost of a special election for vocational education millage, we can't help but believe that new money, earmarked specifically for vocational education, is needed if our school districts are ever to meet the bread-and-butter needs of our students.

A vo-ed program financed entirely by Charlevoix School District taxpayers sounds fine in theory. But we are afraid that the cost of some vo-ed courses is so high that they may never be offered unless it is on an area-wide basis.

We are also afraid that unless funds are specifically earmarked for vocational education, that vo-ed programs will be the first to go when normal school operating millage runs low.

If you would like to see more emphasis on vocational education in northern Michigan, vote "Yes" April 12.

This Week in Lansing

By Rep. Richard Friske
106th District

One of the most important measure before the Legislature this year is the plan developed by Governor Milliken to revise the method for distributing state funds to local government units.

While this proposal is normally referred to as "state revenue sharing" it is not to be confused with President Nixon's federal revenue sharing plan. Unlike the federal proposal, this is not a new program, but a suggested new formula for the existing one. Under it the state shares tax revenue from such sources as the income tax, sales tax and intangibles tax.

Governor Milliken has proposed that the distribution of income and intangibles tax funds to local units be keyed to their relative taxing effort. The more a community tries to help itself through local taxes, the more it would receive from the state.

Presently all funds are distributed evenly on a population basis. A local unit receives a certain amount of money from the state for each person within its boundaries.

The population, or per capita, rule would continue to apply under the Milliken plan for distribution of sales tax revenues. The sales tax amounts to about two-thirds of the money scheduled for "no-strings" distribution to local government.

For the upcoming 1971-72 fiscal year, it is estimated that the existing formula would provide an average of $17.95 per person to local governments throughout the state. The Governor's proposal, judging all communities by the average state taxing effort, would provide more than $17.95 per person in units with higher-than-average local taxes. Governmental units which have lower-than-average taxing effort would receive less than $17.95 per person. However, a special clause in the plan would guarantee all local governments at least $15.63 per person in state-shared revenues. The $15.63 figure is the estimated average allocation to local units during the 1970-71 budget year. This provision is designed to assure that communities would not suffer an actual dollar loss because of the plan. This portion of the program would be financed by special appropriations to bolster the grants to low-tax areas.

Obviously this will be most beneficial to the larger cities, especially those with a local income tax, and most particularly the City of Detroit.

The fact that it is so heavily weighted, to favor cities will probably be questioned during legislative consideration. The question will be are we penalizing one governmental unit at the expense of aiding another? Despite the "no loss" clause, the plan may nonetheless accentuate the existing disparity between the ability of city and county governments to finance solutions to the problems they face. Counties, with less taxing authority than cities, would be limited in their ability to qualify for additional funds under the program. And townships, which are even more severely restricted in tax revenue than counties, would find themselves in a position of accelerating disadvantage.

It has also been suggested that governmental units with the highest tax rates aren't necessarily the ones which are most efficient in the use of their funds. It's conceivable that one area may get by with lower taxes because its funds are more carefully administered and more efficiently used.

Another basic question will be aired in discussions on this proposal. That is the concept of providing a "the more you tax, the more you get" formula in this area of government financing. Such a plan discourages attempts to hold taxes down. It would, in fact, tend to encourage tax increased at the local level. Such increases would necessitate a corresponding increase in state funds to local units. And that could trigger a further increase in state taxes. I certainly don't need to dwell on the current rate of taxation, and how it is already putting a considerable strain on the people of Michigan.

Takes Issue With Cooper On Chamber

Mr. Bob Clock
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Bob:

I would like to make a few comments on a letter from Bill Cooper that appeared on the front page of your last week's Courier. I was not only disturbed at the contents of the letter, but also of the fact that you published it on the front page. This, as far as I am concerned, is a letter to the editor and belongs on the editorial page, just as this one does.

As far as the contents of the letter is concerned, I believe Bill has misinterpreted the intent of the Chamber of Commerce. He says that the Chamber is involving itself in private enterprise with reference to the operation of the docks. Our only concern was to persuade and work with the City in adding more dockage to Round Lake. We feel that they are badly needed and offered to manage it simply to prove that we felt it was a worthwhile project.

He also mentions that he does not agree with some of the new ideas that the Chamber has come up with. I am not certain just what he is referring to, but my personal opinion, after working on the Chamber's Board of Directors for four years, is that we are working on more worthwhile projects this year than the last three years combined.

He also disagrees with the change of the Board of Directors from 9 to 12. Being one of those 12, I think it is a good idea. We now have more people to assign to different projects and, therefore, devote more time to worthwhile projects, and more important, provide the members with more representation.

In closing, I hope those involved in breaking away from the Chamber along with Mr. Cooper will come to our next meeting to discuss their ideas with us. The Charlevoix business community cannot afford two separate organizations.

We hold our meeting on the first Tuesday of every month at the First State Bank and the door is open to anyone that may be interested.

Sincerely,
T.L. Acton

'Geddie' Attacks Sharing

Charlevoix, Mich.
3-31-71

Mr. Bob Clock,
The Charlevoix Courier.

Dear Mr. Clock:

Some top Democrats are in favor of the Administration's proposal for 'Revenue Sharing'. It is reported they feel this concept should be called 'Fiscal Relief', probably to give them credit for some origginality.

All citizens should be wary of this semantic issue. When opposing politicians board the same bandwagon it bodes ill for those who pay. The rarefied air that arises from their discussions should come under the heading of pollution but unfortunately, it will affect pocketbooks more than ecology.

A tax buck on leaving it's source is subjected to continual erosion. All hands grab for chunks as it passes Washington, retaining some substance to trickle back to the place from whence it came, requires childlike faith.

Mark Twain once wrote of the tribulations of Innocents Aboard. What a tale he could write today of Innocents at Home.

With only normal faith,
Geddie.

Enclosed is a open letter I wrote to Dr. Dena Cederquist. In that her views were made public on WJML. I would appreciate your printing of her open letters. It reads as follows:

Dr. Dena Cederquist
Human Nutrition and Foods
Human Ecology Building
MSU, East Lansing, Michigan 48823

Dear Doctor:

Your identity and address was given to me by the Extension Home Economist, Mary Luttinen. She identified you as the person interviewed on WJML on the subject of nutrition.

I would like to bring to your attention that, in making blanket condemnations of persons who write books which defend natural foods including fertile eggs and raw milk, and in considering them "quacks", you are getting some very well qualified people into that grouping.

I'm not necessarily blaming you for your attitude because I'm aware of the chemically minded experts who have been not only brain-washed by, but subsidized by, drug interests and the refined food processing interests these long many years.

What I want you to do is to get a copy of Adelle Davis' latest book, "Let's Get Well (Harcourt Brace & World, Inc.), open up the back fly and read her qualifications. Then study her book. One cannot be intellectually honest and disagree with her concepts.

It seems to me that our whole concept of ecology is in need of a total view of man and his environment. We are pouring chemicals into our land which not only destroy the vitamins and minerals to an alarming degree, but reduce the protein content as well. Then on top of this our depleted foods and saturated with allowable toxins some of which "build" up in us and some of which are considered to be carcinogens.

Sincerely for good nutrition,
Mrs. Rosalie Ottinger

The Calley Affair

Ever since the Army first hinted that it might put Lt. William Calley on trial for the massacre at My Lai, I have had a bad case of stomach nerves.

If Calley were found guilty of murder, then a good many of my friends who have served in every war of this century also would be guilty of murder.

And if you carry a verdict against to Calley to its logical conclusion, every American who has endorsed or contributed to our various war efforts has been guilty of the same offense to some degree.

However, since Calley was to be tried in a military court, I felt sure that his fellow officers certainly would understand that many innocent civilians are killed and injured in wars – particularly a war like the one in progress in Vietnam where the ubiquitous enemy cannot be identified by uniform, age or even sex.

Furthermore, the enemy is everywhere, particularly where you least expect him. There are no "front lines" in Vietnam.

To survive in Southeast Asia, American soldiers must be particularly wary of everyone – from runny-nosed kids to dottering grandmothers.

The officers who sat on Calley's court-martial let us all down by finding him guilty of murder, a verdict which touched off the most startling expression of public opinion in American history.

I, for one, thought most Americans would be sufficiently aghast at the shocking events at My Lai that they would settle for nothing less than a verdict of guilty.

But I was wrong.

Instead, the public rose up as one and told the President and the Congress that Calley did not receive a fair shake.

Draft boards resigned en masse.

Hawks and doves joined hands for the first time in objecting to the verdict.

Gung-ho veterans organizations which usually can be trusted to side with the administration were among the most vigorous protesters.

Even President Nixon, sniffing the hot winds of military and civil insurrection, yanked Calley out of the stockade and put him under house arrest until the situation cools.

All of which is heartening news. If the American people understand Calley's predicament, they also understand the war in Vietnam and why we must get out of it post haste.

From here, it appears that the verdict of guilty against Calley was dictated by the State Department, which is ever anxious to spread the gospel abroad that Americans, at heart, are a very honest, moral and God-fearing people. And admittedly, our friends around the world might have been impressed if the United States had emerged from the Calley affair swathed in robes of righteous indignation at the atrocities being committed by GI's to save South Vietnam from the godless Communists.

But it didn't turn out that way. The response to Calley's conviction shows that as a people we know exactly what is happening in Vietnam and why it must be stopped.

If the massive outpouring of sympathy toward Calley at home has cast a shadow across our national image, so be it. For the first time in my lifetime, the United States has dropped its holier-than-thou position in world affairs and the change is refreshing.

We know that Calley did wrong. But by defending him, we are telling the world that there is also something wrong with a political system that sends its young men to the far corners of the world to shoot women and children in an irrigation ditches.

It is now up to us to change the system.

It is difficult to admit that the United States has become the most warlike nation in the world today. Our great adversary, Russia, has not been involved in a single major conflict since World War II. Yet we, in the past 21 years, have sent hundreds of thousands of our young men to be killed and wounded on the battlefields of Korea and Vietnam.

As regrettable as the Calley incident is, we fervently hope it marks a turning point in American history.

If the American people can continue to exert the same pressure they have exhibited in the past few days in defending Calley, they just might be able to effect a withdrawal of our troops from Vietnam and let that beleagured little country settle her own affairs.

Then, hopefully, the United States will turn her vast resources to the task of setting her own house in order.

'But Is It Art?'

Michael Heizer reminds me that about 35 years ago I built the most beautiful airplane in the world simply by digging a hole.

If you have any culture, you know who Heizer is. He's the artist who recently created an earth sculpture on the lawn of the Detroit Institute of Arts. He did it by directing traffic for two giant bulldozers as they dragged a 35-ton block of granite through the grass and dirt.

Heizer ended up with a can't see the beauty in Heizer's pile of dirt. They think it looks like a gas pipe exploded under a sidewalk. They say Heizer is some kind of a nut who is insulting their intelligence.

I had the same sort of trouble with my airplane.

This was in the days of the open cockpit when the pilot's head stuck out of the plane. He was a glamorous figure. He wore goggles and a leather helmet that buttoned under his chin. Also a white scarf that blew behind him like a kite tail. Remember Jimmie Allen on the radio for Hi-Speed gasoline? Or remember Jimmy Cagney in such movies as Ceiling Zero? Cagney would always knock out Spencer Tracy and stuff him in a locker and then take Tracy's place in the cockpit and fly the mail through the worst blizzard in the history of the world. But Cagney wouldn't quite make it because Tracy was incapacitated and unable to stick his chewing gum on the plane's wing for good luck.

You get the picture. Any nine-year-old kid would want to be a pilot. So I used to put on my goggles and scarf and squat in a neck-high hole in the backyard. That was my cockpit. A couple of boards on either side were the wings. A stick in the ground was the propeller, spinning so fast you actually couldn't see it move. Another stick, this one stuck in the cockpit floor, gave me control of this magnificent machine.

I would stick a huge wad of chewing gum on a wing, not too near an ant hill because I planned to return to chew it again. I'd climb aboard, holler CONTACT, and then take off in a great roar which I produced by closing my mouth as tight as possible and then trying to blow it open.

Well, there were a lot of unsophisticated slobs in my neighborhood, mostly my big sister and her stupid friends. They laughed and hollered at the dumb little kid in goggles, peeking out of the hole and making strange noises.

That's the same sort of rude treatment artist Heizer is receiving today. And he is handling it with class. He refuses to explain his pile. He says it must speak for itself. That's it; don't bug him. In fact, he flew off to New York as soon as his pile was done.

Boy, I wish I'd had that kind of class 35 years ago.

I told my sister and her stupid friends the truth—that my hole was an airplane and I was flying a rare serum from Port Huron to Smiths Creek to save an infant's life. Which made them laugh all the harder.

They couldn't see the airplane at all. They didn't care if that baby died.

So I got mad and there was the usual fight with the usual result—I lost.

I should have reacted like Heizer. I should have coolly ignored my critics and simply flown off into the sunset.

I could always have landed on the lawn of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Landowners Threaten Appalachian Trail

Walking the 2,025-mile length of the Appalachian Trail, while scenically rewarding, has never been easy.

It could become impossible, unless landowners relent.

Hiking clubs and conservationists complain property owners are fencing off sections of the footpath that wanders from Maine to Georgia. Landowners contend they are forced to put up fences to protect their property from motorcyclists and litterbugs.

BARBED WIRE

In one of the chapters of "Vacationland U.S.A.," published last year by the National Geographic Society, contributing author Charles W. Ebersole described encounters with barbed wire barriers during the five months he, his son, and their dog hiked the trail.

Father and son climbed the fences and the dog crawled under. But the wire showed the growing efforts to close parts of the trail.

The National Park Service has mapped the trail from the air, preparatory to designating its route officially as part of the new National Trail System.

COMMENTS SOUGHT

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton in February invited individuals whose land would be affected to submit comments before the 14 states the trail traverses are empowered to acquire the right of way.

Some landowners object that by following the high ridges the trail cuts through the most attractive section of their property. They want it detoured to the lowlands.

This has happened at some points, and there are areas where the trail now runs alongside paved highways.

Many persons want greater efforts to police the historic pathway, including a ban on motorcycles. Some 50 hiking clubs and scores of volunteers presently help the National Park Service maintain the trail's markers, shelters, and camping grounds.

the Appalachian Trail was proposed in 1921 by a New England forester, Benton MacKaye, the National Geographic Society says.

The first mile was laid out the following year in Palisades Interstate Park, New York. The last section of the nature trail was marked in 1935.

Called "one of the seven wonders of the outdoorsman's world," the trail goes from 3,782-foot Springer Mountain in Georgia's Chattahoochee National Forest to the top of 5,267-foot Mount Katahdin in Baxter State Park, Maine.

Passing close enough to cities to make it accessible to nearly half the population of the United States, the trail climbs from sea level where it crosses the Hudson River to 6,643 feet at Clingman's Dome on the Tennessee-North Carolina border.

It crosses eight national forests and two national parks as it follows the Appalachians, a chain whose massive links include the Blue Ridge Mountains, the Great Smokies, the Allegheny and Cumberland Mountains, and the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

The first man on record to walk the trail's full length was Earl Shaffer of Pennsylvania, in 1948. A 69-year-old grandmother hiked the distance in 1957 —for her second time.

"There were some things I didn't see the first time," she explained.

We have learned that three Michigan Youths are among winners of Michigan State Alumni distinguished scholarships given to ten outstanding high school seniors from throughout the nation.

The full four-year scholarships financed by the MSU alumni development fund are valued at about $10,000 dollars each. More than 1,000 high school seniors competed for the scholarships.

We were pleased to know that David Bowen of Harbor Beach High School was one of the winners. He is the son of Harvey Bowen, who graduated from the Charlevoix High School in 1943 and lived south with his parents and sister, past Kemps corner. The children used to walk each morning to meet the school bus at Birds corner and back home at night, regardless of the weather, during the winter. I remember we all admired their determination to get an education and their friends take this opportunity to congratulate the Bowens.

Paul Kroll has returned to school after an absence of two weeks as a patient in the Charlevoix Hospital.

Our community is extending congratulations to Linda Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hammond and Clifford Gillespie who were married this last week in Boyne City.

Several parents and grandparents attended the School Band Concert in Charlevoix Tuesday evening and we were proud of each and everyone who took part in the most enjoyable evening.

Plans are being made for a reunion of all graduates from the Charlevoix County Normal to be held at Whiting Park Aug. 11. Any Information about graduates and their addresses can be sent to Mrs. Ruth Hair, Charlevoix, Route 2, or Mrs. Ross Alexander, Ironton.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cross have returned home after spending six weeks with relatives and friends in Arizona and California.

The Weekly Club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William Crowe.

Don Bennett left Wednesday and will be sailing on the Limestone Carrier B.F. White from Rogers City to Chicago and Gary, Ind., this spring and summer.

With the warm sunshine for several days and the rain we are having this Thursday afternoon and evening our snow is disappearing quite fast but leaving water on the surface that may result in trouble for some basements and drains. But the spring plants are beginning to show in our gardens and the pusseywillows are out, which is a most welcome sign of spring.

Board to Buy 'Porta-Potti' For Town Hall

Members of the Charlevoix Township board saw a demonstration of a "Porta-potti"–a pinch-hit commode–at their meeting Monday night at the VFW hall.

After the demonstration, they agreed to have one installed in the refurbished township hall on Norwood-rd. at a cost of about $65.

The township board has met in the VFW hall for several years, but has decided to remodel the old town hall, which lacks sanitary facilities, and running water.

A gas line is being laid to the building and arrangements will be made to have water piped in from the city. The present line ends at the ballpark on Carpenter-st.

Mrs. Virginia Cunningham, clerk, says the building should be ready for occupancy in June.

First State Alters Hours

Changes in banking hours, effective immediately, have been announced by Jerrald H. Redeker, president of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Redeker says the bank will be open from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Fridays.

The drive-up window will be open from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Fridays.

Redeker said the change was made to accommodate customers who apparently prefer to do their banking early in the morning rather than late in the afternoon.

Vet Fund Meeting April 19

Harold L. Price, chairman of the Charlevoix County Veterans' Trust Fund Committee, reports that the group's annual meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 19, at the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Other members of the committee are Ed Shanahan of Charlevoix and Thomas Galmore of East Jordan.

The committee is responsible for the allocation of state trust fund monies to Charlevoix County veterans.

Shanahan says the county's allocation is usually about $1,000 which is used to assist needy veterans.

The money is derived from a $50 million trust fund established by the state from surplus funds at the close of World War II.

Price said the meeting will mark the 25th anniversary of the founding of the trust fund, with similar meetings scheduled throughout the state.

Emphasis will be on changes in administrative practices and policies, with special attention to "jobs for veterans."

The meeting is open to the public and anyone interested in veterans' affairs is welcome to attend.

Rev. Pierce will report on his talks with peace negotiators in Paris this winter.

COACH JIM BOWMAN

AF Coach Bowman Is Banquet Speaker

Jim Bowman, head freshman football coach at the U.S. Air Force Academy, will return to his alma mater, the Charlevoix High School, as guest speaker at the annual All-Sports banquet Saturday, April 24, Ken Wojan, president of the Sports Boosters, sponsors of the event, has announced.

Bowman, a 1951 graduate of the Charlevoix High School, is beginning his eighth year as freshman coach and his 14th with the coaching staff at the Academy.

He will be the second Rayder athlete to return as speaker at a Rayder All-Sports banquet. In 1967 Chuck Fairbanks, head coach at the University of Oklahoma, was accorded the honor. They were former teammates here.

Bowman will bring with him the films of the 1971 Sugar Bowl game featuring the U.S. Air Force and Tennessee.

At the Academy, Bowman served as head coach of the junior varsity for four seasons before becoming freshman coach. His 11-year record as junior varsity and frosh coach is 42 wins, 23 losses and one tie. In 1963 his junior varsity team was undefeated in seven games.

He has made three post-season bowl trips as a member of the Falcon coaching staff, the Cotton Bowl in 1959, the Gator Bowl in '63 and the Sugar Bowl earlier this year.

Bowman also is assistant athletic director for candidate counseling and is in charge of all recruiting for the 19-sport varsity program at the Academy.

Bowman received his early coaching here under Ray Kipke and Del Terrill. As a high school athlete here, Bowman won All-Conference honors and earned All-State mention as a center in 1950. The Rayders were undefeated during his four years here.

Vocational Millage Loses Two To One

39 Pct. Turnout At Polls

A district-wide vote on vocational education millage went down to an astonishing defeat of better than two-to-one in balloting throughout the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Monday.

The final unofficial tally was 1,505 "yes" to 3,257 "no" on a proposed one-mill charter levy.

The defeat means a substantial set back to plans to construct a vocational education center somewhere in the southern end of the district similar to the center already in operation in Petoskey.

The new money would have provided funds to operate the center and would have subsidized local vo-ed programs.

In Charlevoix School District, the millage was defeated by almost three to one, with a final count of 200 "yes" votes to 576 "no" votes.

In Petoskey, voters turned it down by a vote of 223 to 1,099.

Only two of the 11 districts voting approved the millage. In Twin Valley (Boyne City and East Jordan) the vote was 633 "yes" to 607 "no." On Beaver Island it was approved by a vote of 25 to 14.

In Twin Valley, Boyne City voters actually turned down the millage 359 to 327, but the defeat was more than offset by a vote of 306 "yes" to 248 "no" in East Jordan.

Intermediate Superintendent Charles A. Robinson and Vo-ed Consultant Jim Shepard were discouraged by the results of the election, but are confident vocational education is on the move

ANDREW ESSENBURG JR. takes oath of office as mayor at Monday night's council meeting from City Attorney John Michael. Essenburg was elected April 5.

Essenburg Sworn in As Mayor

Andrew Essenburg jr., Charlevoix's first new mayor in five years, took the oath of office Monday night from City Attorney John Michael before calling his first council meeting to order.

Almost 40 spectators jammed the council chamber for the swearing-in ceremony, most of them staying for the duration of the short business meeting.

Before Essenburg raised his hand to take the oath, Michael swore in City Clerk Ida Heise and Aldermen Clifton Sundberg (Third Ward), Robert Gill (Second Ward) and Roger Westenbroek (First Ward) who were elected with Essenburg in balloting April 5.

Essenburg's first act as mayor was to proclaim the week of May 16-22 as Small Business Week in Charlevoix, on a proposal by the Small Business Administration.

The council also:

–Approved the transfer of Grey Gables liquor license from Mrs. Florence Dundas and Clark Nehis to David R. Phillips and Elizabeth A. Pierce.

–Heard reports by City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna and Michael on the status of the waste water

CHS Grad Named Head Ferris Coach

Former Michigan State University athlete and coach David G. Smith was named Ferris State College's head football coach here Tuesday.

Smith, former resident of Charlevoix, replaces recently-resigned Bob Leach. He signed his contract with the college moments before a special on-campus press conference where the announcement was formally made public by Ferris President Dr. Robert L. Ewigleben.

Smith, an assistant under MSU's Duffy Daugherty the past four seasons, will begin immediate work to prepare the Bulldogs for spring training drills which conclude May 15 with Ferris' annual intra-squad spring game. Indoor conditioning workouts began Monday.

The new Ferris coach comes with impressive credentials. A native of Detroit, the 40-year-old mentor was an athletic standout at Charlevoix High School before entering Michigan State in 1952. He starred at end for the Spartans for three years and played in both the 1954 and 1956 Rose Bowl games.

After completing his distinguished academic and athletic career at Charlevoix, Smith enlisted in the U.S. Army for four years as a member of special services prior to entering Michigan State. He was graduated with honors in 1956.

Smith was responsible for coaching Spartan receivers last fall after handling linebackers the two previous seasons. His first season with State was as a backfield coach.

Following his graduation from State, Smith entered coaching at Walled Lake High School where he compiled an 11-year 76-15 record and won nine Inter-Lakes Conference championships. He was named Michigan's Class B High School Coach-of-the-Year in 1956 and duplicated that honor for Class A in 1963.

Smith will head a six-man coaching staff at Ferris with line coach Jack Hinkle, backfield coach Roger Elford, end coach Dean Davenport, also from Charlevoix and freshman coaches Tom Kerns and Corey Bouyer.

Smith's family includes his wife Earline, sons Steve, 17, and Craig, 14, and a daughter Kim 13.

Leach left Ferris last month after a four-year 17-15-2 mark to become defensive line coach for the National Football League's St. Louis Cardinals.

Record Budget for Schools

The Charlevoix board of education, at its regular meeting Monday night, approved a tentative budget of $1,331,000 for the 1971-72 school year.

At the same meeting the board heard a report that Charlevoix High School has been approved by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools with no violations.

In other action by the board, it was decided to advertise for bids on two 66-passenger buses; to make a partial payment on a State Aid note; to give its approval to a Type A Special Education program for the high school and to a crisis room for the Elementary School. It also heard representatives of Daverman Associates, Inc., of Grand Rapids present information on the consulting service the firm was prepared to give.

The tentative budget approved by the board before it is to be presented to the Charlevoix County Tax Allocation Board was discussed at length before it was approved. The budget is $86,000 more than the budget for the current school year.

Kids Pick Up Litter Along U.S. 31 North

Several Charlevoix youngsters have taken it upon themselves to do something about highway litter.

They're picking it up.

Matt Doan, Steve Berlage and Buck Bradley, all 12, and Gerard Doan, 8, spent most of last Thursday "policing up" an area of U.S. 31 north from the Boyne City-rd. to the Consumers Power Co. plant.

They collected five large garbage cans full of bottles and trash, which were picked up by state highway crews.

Ralph Doan, father of the Doan boys, reports that only 10 deposit bottles were included in the vast number of throw-away containers collected by the boys.

Doan thinks it's a good argument in favor of returnable bottles.

New Flap Threatens Waste Water Plant

If Charlevoix's proposed waste water treatment plant ever becomes a reality, we should hire a band and hold a street dance.

We can't recall another civic undertaking that has run up against more brick walls.

The latest imbroglio was initiated by Shaw-Henderson, Inc., of Cheboygan which feels it should have been awarded the general construction contract over Clark Construction of Lansing. Clark Construction was low bidder, but Shaw-Henderson was only $255 higher -- which in itself is quite a coincidence on a million-dollar-plus contract.

Shaw-Henderson, via its attorney in Chicago, has charged Clark with "pirating" one of Shaw-Henderson's subcontractors (Wares & Son of Traverse City) after Clark's subcontractor (Axtel Hardy of Traverse City) allegedly discovered a $70,000 error in its bid quotation and withdrew.

Until the issue is resolved, all state and federal money for the project is being held up and the May 15 deadline for wrapping up the financial details is drawing painfully close.

The project has been beset with problems from the start. First there was the question of what kind of plant to build. One school wanted a spray-irrigation system which would not return any waste water to Lake Michigan. The council, however, abided by the recommendation of its consulting engineers, McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor, and went for a tertiary treatment plant -- one which returns water virtually free of pollutants to the lake.

Then there was a hassle over the site. Boulder Park residents certainly didn't want the plant in their "backyards" -- but that was the site selected as most appropriate by the engineers.

Then there was the problem of acquiring the land, which was owned by Medusa Portland Cement Co. A land swap, involving the Department of Natural Resources, was proposed but fell through. Medusa finally agreed to sell, with the understanding that the city will try to replace the land with comparable adjoining property if possible.

Then the first bids were opened and turned out to be 25 percent over the engineers' estimate. New bids were asked, and the council was pins and needles for weeks waiting for the state to grant an extension on the awarding of contracts. It finally did.

Now the Shaw-Henderson-Clark Construction ruckus is unfolding.

That's why we should hire a band and hold a street dance if and when the plant is ever built.

And it might be appropriate to decorate the bandstand with red tape.

Ohio Electricians Generate Good News

There's good news from suburban Cleveland, according to United Press International.

Union electricians in two northern Ohio Counties have agreed to cut their wages more than 50 percent in a move to boost the residential construction business.

Electricians in Lake and Geauga Counties agreed to work for $4 an hour—instead of $8.50 an hour -- on one-and-two family homes.

The savings per home should result in the neighborhood of $200 to $400, which will be passed on to the customer.

The electricians, in turn, will profit by the move because they expect to find themselves back at work. Many of them have been idle since the economic slump dried up their jobs.

To its credit, Local 675 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the National Electrical Contractors Association have agreed to the cut.

Like so many other unionized skilled tradesmen, the Cleveland electricians apparently have discovered that they had priced themselves right out of business.

Their action not only will provide jobs for themselves, but should start the ball rolling again in Cleveland's home construction business, which, in turn, should spur other segments of the economy.

Undoubtedly the electricians are worthy of any and all accolades which may be heaped upon them because of their voluntary action.

But we imagine there are plenty of them who are so fed up with sitting around the house that they would be happy to get back to work regardless of monetary considerations.

Finds Putrefaction In Parochiaid Issue

March 29, 1971

Dear Editor:

Article I, Section 4 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan, second sentence, "No person shall be compelled to attend, or, against his consent, to contribute to the erection or support of any place of religious worship, or to pay tithes, taxes or other rates for the support of any minister of the gospel or teacher of religion."

There was much pressure through the State to provide state monies for the support of non-public schools, so the Governor proposed legislation to give 22 million dollars to non-public schools to pay teachers who taught non-religious subjects, and to finance other non-religious expenses. The Legislature passed the legislation, and the Supreme Court ruled that it was constitutional.

Shakespeare has one of his characters say, "The devil can quote Scripture for his purpose." However, let us say, perhaps no one bothered to read the next sentence of Article I, Section 4 which says; "No money shall be appropriated or drawn from the treasury for the BENEFIT of any religious sect or society, etc. etc. -". One of the definitions in Webster's dictionary for sect is "a religious denomination." The school operated by any religious denomination certainly is a part of that denomination, and a part of a religious sect. That fact cannot be altered by any rationalizing or wishful thinking.

That word benefit is important. Has the Governor, the Legislature of the Court explained why or how 22 million dollars would not benefit the recipient? Question, if that money is of no benefit to them, why are many schools planning to close?

There are those who hope and rather expect that the Supreme Court will "bail" them out again. A Superintendent of a school planning to close was quoted in the paper as saying, that if the Supreme Court found that Proposal C was invalid, their decision would be reevaluated. So are we waiting to receive, what News and Review calls, another of the Supreme Court's "queer" decisions?

Certainly it is not necessary to go to Denmark to find putrefaction.

Yours truly,

Jesse E. Kilpatrick

Regrets Beach Litter

April 5, 1971

Charlevoix Courier
To the Editor

Dear Mr. Clock:

For many years we have been able to walk a lovely, clean sand beach out to Fisherman's Island. We knew it belonged to a private individual somewhere, but were grateful for being able to enjoy it as long as we would.

Now it makes us sad to know that we will probably not be able to do this any more. But our present sadness isn't near as accute as our sadness last summer was when the public in general had found this lovely beach and all along its length were strewn cans and bottles and the usual litter that our citizens seem to feel is their right.

We can hardly blame the owners for selling it. We love our beaches and always take our litter home with us, leaving the beach exactly as we found it. Do you have any theories on why so many people are litter-bugs?

Sincerely,
Mrs. Carl M. Gunn

(Editor's note: We have a few theories. The no-deposit beverage container has contributed greatly to the problem. If folks had to pay a nickel or even two cents for every pop and beer bottle, they'd probably take better care of them. Secondly, there is more litter to throw away today than there used to be, what with modern packaging methods. Just check the amount of paper and plastic wrappings you must dispose of every week. Thirdly, our permissive society is all too willing to slough off responsibility on "the other guy." And lastly, how can we expect people who take no pride in their homes and personal appearance to give a hoot about parks, roadways and beaches? There's no way.)

Says C of C Is Qualified To Run Docks

Palatka, Fla., Apr. 6, 1971

Dear Bob–

As a resident of Charlevoix-the-Beautiful, I feel someone should take issue with Mr. Cooper's unfounded attack against the Chamber of Commerce. His allegations are in error from the start. The city dock operation is NOT private enterprise. It is wholely within the sphere of the chamber's activities and they are to be commended for undertaking this always difficult and demanding service to visiting boatmen. I can think of no organization better suited to supervise and operate this most important feature of our beautiful city. If Mr. Cooper must cast stones, he should select another target.

Why Not Bikes?

By Bob Clock

I am going to make one more pitch for the bicycle – and then let the subject drop unless someone else would like to pick up the cudgel and help me carry it.

I don't know who invented the bicycle, but it doesn't really matter. The bicycle is one of the most economical, practical means of transportation available today in communities the size of Charlevoix – yet it is virtually ignored by the adult population.

The Regional Planning Commission is gravely concerned over a lack of parking spaces in downtown Charlevoix during the summer months.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce says that merchants and their employes are cutting their own throats by parking their mile-long limousines in front of their business places during shopping hours. Members point out that they are taking up parking spaces which could well be used by their best customers.

An answer to the problem – at least a temporary, seasonal answer–seems to lie in the bicycle.

If everyone who works downtown suddenly came to his senses and starting riding a bicycle to work, Charlevoix's parking problems would vanish overnight.

Furthermore, I think that a lot of us have forgotten that there was a time in the not-too-distant past when the bicycle was one of the principal means of transportation.

One September in the late 1940's I was hitchhiking from Sault Ste. Marie to Little Current, Ont., when I suddenly found myself stranded late at night in the sleepy little town of Espanola. I stopped at the bus station in hopes of catching a bus, but learned that all southbound service had been cancelled.

So I walked to the outskirts of town to a little all-night restaurant and there I spent the night, sipping coffee and talking to the counter man. Occasionally I walked out to the highway to look for cars, but there weren't any.

Finally, just before dawn I bid goodbye to the counterman and lodged myself on a log beside the road in hopes of flagging down the first southbound car.

While I was meditating on my plight, I suddenly heard a sound I couldn't identify. It was a faint whirring somewhere down the road. I strained my eyes to see what was coming, but couldn't make out a thing in the darkness.

But the sound kept growing louder and louder, and somehow seemed to be mixed with the sound of voices and laughter.

Suddenly, out of the pre-dawn darkness emerged a pack of about 50 bicycles, all pedaled by men. They were laughing and talking in French and English and their honey-can lunch pails sparkled as they passed in front of the glow from the restaurant. A few of the riders waved to me and I waved back.

After they passed, I ran back to the restaurant and confronted the counterman:

"Did you see them?" I demanded.

"See who?"

"All those guys on bicycles. There must have been 50 of them. What is it, some kind of bicycle club?"

The counterman threw back his head and laughed.

"No it isn't a club," he answered. "They all work at the pulp mill in town, but they live too far to walk. They come by every morning on their bikes.

I went back to the highway to wait for my ride, still puzzled by what I had seen.

I don't suppose many of the same workers today are still pedaling bikes to work, but I bet they would if they lived in Charlevoix in the summertime and had to jockey for parking spaces with cars, trucks, campers and house trailers.

Aside from practical considerations, it is fun to ride a bicycle – in case you've forgotten. I get more of a kick coasting down the south hill on my two-wheeled steed than I do driving 80 miles per hour on an expressway.

Furthermore, the bicycle doesn't pollute the atomosphere with noxious fumes and it doesn't deafen your ears everytime you accelerate.

Probably most important of all is the fact that bicycling is a fine form of exercise for normally healthy people. It's a good way to tone up sagging muscles and drop unwanted pounds – and have fun in the process.

So there you have it – my bicycle pitch for 1971. I promise I won't say another word, unless...

The Hair Issue

By Jim Fitzgerald

A lot of cocktail-hour liberals parade their broad minds by praising Martin Luther King and then adding: "I don't mind long hair, either, if it's clean."

Heck, give me an extra cocktail :I don't mind if the hair is a bit dirty. Cleanliness is greatly overrated in this country anyway. I don't think it's next to Godliness. Judging by the TV soap commercials, cleanliness is next to absurdity. That many nutty women, ecstatic over enzymes, can't be right. No matter what Proctor & Gamble say, grime is no crime. This great country was built by dirty-handed men, covered with honest sweat, long before you wished everyone else used Dial.

(Please notice that I called the country great, and the sweat honest. I insert such adjectives regularly to confuse investigators from the FBI, CIA and Army Surplus).

The sheriff of my favorite county might well think I'm subsersive. He has a Vietnam war hero, two silver star medals) locked up in his jail for smoking pot. The hero wore his hair long because that's the way he likes it. But his jailers insisted he get a haircut or serve his six months in solitary confinement. The hero finally gave in to the shearing because "I was lonely".

Short haircuts are a jail requirement for health reasons, the sheriff explained. He's afraid of lice and apparently he prefers to prevent them with scissors rather than soap.

"But what about women prisoners?" I asked the sheriff. "Do they also get a mandatory mowing?"

"We don't get many women prisoners," he answered, if you can call that an answer.

You might think the sheriff isn't properly concerned about lice on female heads. Not me. I think he is overly concerned with something that's really none of his business - how another man wears his hair.

But the longhairs shouldn't stage a protest march around the jail. Their problem is much bigger than that. The sheriff pretty much reflects the thinking of the people who elect him, which is what he's supposed to do. I'll swear the Middle American, the guy in my boat, has developed a king-size mania concerning young men's hair.

I have friends who turn red and nasty at the sight of a boy with long hair. I've seen fat, ugly men in shorts insult boys whose only sin was to appear in public with hair covering their ears. One woman wrote that a Vietnam veteran had no right to expect fellow Americans until "you get your hair cut and look like a man."

Geez. I am ashamed for my contemporaries. There are a lot of grave problems making a mess of this world. Long hair is not one of them. What the hell do I care how some kid I don't even know wears his hair? Who should anyone else care? It's his hair.

It's time Middle America dropped the nonsense and began worrying about important things. Like, for instance, the other day I saw a Rotarian wearing bell-bottom pants!

Of course, I really don't care as long as they're clean.

If Abortion Murder, What About Vietnam?

Dear Mr. Clock:

When a politician who views abortion as murder also advocates a military victory in Vietnam, and Communist nations generally, is challenged on the consistency of his views on murder, it is a poor analogy for the politician to equate Communism with Nazism and declare that if Hitler had won the war Americans would have been destoyed as the Jews were in Germany.

The politician was fighting for Hitler and his policies at the time.

Hitler attempted to gain a military victory over Communism and succeeded in achieving the military destruction of Germany.

Given the weapons that now exist, if the United States seeks a complete military victory over Communist nations now, the likely result is the military destruction of Vietnam, China, the Soviet Union, and the United States as well.

If the rest of the nations of the world would be lucky enough to avoid the conflict and survived, then West Germany and East Germany would be free to reunite as the strongest nation left in the west, and leave Japan as the strongest nation left in the east.

Further speculation on this irony would be futile.

Duckbill Dinosaur Stood 2-Stories High

The bones of a giant water monster 73 million years old have been uncovered in Baja California.

Identified as the remains of a duckbill dinosaur, the fossils were dug from fine siltstone sediment near the little Mexican farming and fishing village of El Rosario, about 200 miles south of the border.

The humerus, or arm bone, of the creature measures 39 inches long and weighs about 250 pounds. It is longer than the previous record duckbill humerus – 26 inches – found in Baja in 1965.

70 FEET LONG

"I presume that the associated skeleton would be about 70 feet long. This would truly be the largest duckbill ever found or for that matter imagined," reports Dr. William J. Morris, research associate at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History and Professor of Geology at Occidental College.

The duckbill stood some 25 feet, about as tall as a two-story house. Sharp spines extended from a long neck to a tail five and one-half feet wide and 10 feet long.

Dr. Morris, whose work is supported by the National Geographic Society, has spent the last six summers in Baja directing the painstaking search for dinosaur remains. He has worked in cooperation with the University of Mexico's Institute of Geology.

ANCIENT FOREST

The dinosaur find reinforced Dr. Morris's conviction that Mexico's arid peninsula must have been a thick forest region in prehistoric times.

While searching for the huge reptiles, his team of scientists uncovered what may have been the world's oldest horse and remnants of small possumlike animals that probably lived in harmony with the dinosaurs.

Propelled by their tails and webbed feet, the duckbills swam and waded through the swamps of North America, perhaps 80 million years ago. Their curious duckbill mouths were ideal for scooping up vegetation and clams from their watery habitat.

RANGED AFAR

Similar dinosaurs roamed much of the North American continent. Scientists have uncovered fossils, including complete skeletons, in locations all the way from Alberta, Canada, to New Mexico. None, however, has approached the size of Dr. Morris's find.

Despite the large number of skeletal elements assignable to the Baja duckbill, a skull has not been found in Mexico," Dr. Morris said. "The skull is most critical in the diagnosis of hadrosaurian dinosaurs. We are hopeful that one will be found."

The pieces of bone that still appear at the El Rosario site – a prehistoric lagoon or pond–suggest that Dr. Morris may be rewarded. He hopes to resume his search this summer.

It won't be an easy task. At least 200 to 300 tons of rock will have to be chipped away by jackhammer and pick ax to reach promising skull sites.

'Let Calley Go,' Friske Asks Nixon

April 1, 1971

The Honorable Richard M. Nixon
President of the United States
Capitol Building
Washington, D.C.

Dear President Nixon:

I and many of my constituents protest most vehemently the recent conviction of Lt. William Calley. It is my opinion that it will do more toward the destruction of the morale of our military and the faith of the people in it than any defeat, however massive, this country could suffer. I am sure the eyes of the world are focused on our system of justice in disbelief and repugnance.

I would submit that war is war - a condition which licenses a man to kill his enemy. We were not discriminate in the bombing of Hiroshima in 1945. An estimated 60,000 civilians fleeing pursuit by the communists were slaughtered by our bombs in Dresden, Germany, either late in 1944 or early in 1945.

Why, Sir, are we judging our military for supposedly committing murder in time of war?

Not only would I request that you use your influence and the power of your office to lessen the sentence of Lt. Calley, but would pray that this judgment be rescinded, and the lieutenant's honor fully restored.

Sincerely,

RICHARD FRISKE
State Representative

Physicians' Aides Are Sought

In response to a need for physician's assistants, largely in the Veterans Administration, the Civil Service Commission is inviting applications from those who possess the required qualifications.

It is anticipated that about 500 persons will be appointed.

Physician's Assistants will work under a doctor's direct supervision, performing diagnostic and therapeutic duties such as taking medical histories, applying and removing casts, and suturing minor lacerations.

The appointment of Physician's Assistants is expected to help bridge the medical care gap in two ways: It will give people who have badly needed medical skills the opportunity to work at the height of their abilities, and it will free doctors from the more routine task involved in medical care, allowing themvo concentrate their unique talents where they are most needed. This program is largely experimental at this time.

Candidates most likely to qualify as Physician's Assistants are expected to be those who have performed independent duty as medical corpsmen, and nurses.

Standards are high, requiring both a broad background of medical knowledge and completion of an acceptable course of study of at least 12 months' duration designed specifioally for the training of Physician's Assistants. Qualifications will be evaluated by a panel of medical doctors.

There is no written test.

Jobs are located in hospitals and clinics of the Veterans Administration throughout the country, in medical facilities of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and in the District of Columbia Government.

Complete information, including all necessary application forms, is contained in Announcement No. 428 which can be obtained from any Civil Service Commission Area Office, most large Post Offices, college placement offices, or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, 1900 E. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20415.

ANDREW ESSENBURG, JR.
MAYOR

LARRY FORD of Charlevoix, a teacher in the Pellston School District, won the Howard "Bud" Marquardt Honor Handicap Trapshooting Championship at Sturgis, Mich., March 21, in a field of 46 competitors from Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. The meet was sponsored by the St. Joseph County Conservation and Sportsman Club. Ford, who coordinates Charlevoix's summer baseball program, shot 94, 92 and 91.

10 Teams Sign Up In Slowpitch League

The first organizational meeting of the City Softball League was held last week.

Recreation Director Deano Davenport reported that a record 10 teams have shown an interest in entering the popular Slowpitch League for men.

Indications are that defending champion Andy's along with American Mold, Townhouse, Portside, the Argonne, Topside Bar, Freedman Artcraft, Boyne City, Medusa, and the Airport Bar will have teams for this summer's program.

There is some question about whether there will be enough fast pitch teams entering to have a Fastpitch League. Only one team, Novaks, reported that they had enough players to fill out their roster. County State Bank indicated that they had about half a team while defending champion American Mold was not represented at the meeting at all.

Ellsworth appeared to be interested although representatives weren't in attendance either.

There will be one more meeting in May to determine if there is enough interest to continue a Fastpitch league.

The meetings for the various other leagues will be announced at a later date.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Judge Harold E. Hunsburger of Traverse City. Judge Hunsburger filled in for Judge W. Richard Smith.

Andrew Brockway, 19; Clinton Bates, 22; and Harry Gasco, 20, all of the Vanderbilt area, were bound over to the April term of Circuit Court after examination on a charge of breaking and entering at Walloon Hills ski lodge. Bond in the amount of $5,000 for Brockway and Bates and $2,500 for Gasco was not posted and they were returned to the Charlevoix County Jail.

Homer J. Perry, 34, Sacramento, Calif., was bound over to the April term of Circuit Court after examination on a charge of breaking and entering at the Thunder Mountain ski lodge. Bond in the amount of $5,000 was not furnished.

Albert Anderson, 26, Elk Rapids, was assessed $45 (suspended) and sentenced to five days in the County Jail on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Openhouse Honors Pair

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boss will be honored on Saturday, April 17, from 3 until 8 p.m. at the fellowship hall in the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix at a belated 25th wedding anniversary openhouse hosted by their daughters, Beth Ann and Janet and son Wilson.

Boss and the former Jeanette DeYoung were married April 14, 1945, at the Atwood Reformed Church. They have lived in Barnard on the Boss homestead all their married life.

They are active workers in the Community Reformed Church and in other community activities.

City Rec Program Offers Pay, Credit

The City Recreation Department is taking applications from local college students who are interested in earning college credit and a salary by working in the Summer Recreation Program.

Students may earn as much as 10 hours of upper division college credit or as little as three by working with Director Deano Davenport.

The credit is earned through Central Michigan University and is transferrable to any college or university in the state.

In the past students have earned credit while working in the swimming program and in the vast City Softball League.

Applicants may apply at the city hall with city Superintendent Thomas Hanna.

Additional information may be secured by contacting Dean Davenport at Ferris State College in Big Rapids.

Petoskey C-C Offers Shrubs To Residents

The Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an area-wide beautification program again this year through the sale of flowering trees and shrubs.

William Blanchard, chairman of the Arbor Day promotion, says the chamber has purchased 1,130 flowering crab trees, lilac bushes, forsythia and other flowering decorative shrubs to be resold to area residents.

In the past four years, more than 4,500 trees and shrubs have been planted and each springtime finds the area more colorful, Blanchard says.

The Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Walloon Lake chambers of commerce are cooperating in the program to assure a complete sell-out, Blanchard reports.

Orders may be placed throughout April by calling the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Distribution will be made on Arbor Day, Saturday, May 1, at the Parker Motor Freight Terminal, 126 Fulton-st., Petoskey.

Orders may be placed by telephoning the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce at 347-3968.

Magistrate's Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix recently by Magistrate John Connolly:

Harold Havens, 22, Boyne City, was assessed $30 for speeding.

Robert Devlin, 47, Traverse City, was assessed $26 for speeding.

Charles L. Manker, 45, Petoskey, was assessed $15 for speeding.

Donald Leech, 22, East Jordan, was assessed $10 for driving without a valid operator's license.

Ford says he would like to have at least 30 boys on the roster before tryouts begin the middle of May.

Candidates should contact either Ford or Dick Oestrike, owner of Portside Sports.

Already signed up are Ron Bindi, Bruce W. Meggison, Bob Cudd, Roger Crain, Alan Avery, Jerry Wheat, Enos Bacon, Randy Woods, Randy DeYoung, Howard Otis, Ron Himebauch, Ken Bergmann, Clarence Russell, Mark Merrit, Charley Borths, George Anderson, Jeff Lachman, Ned Henley and Tim Carey.

Library Notes

This is a column "For Men Only" unless there are members of the Woman's Lib who want to don blue jeans and become grease monkeys, exploring the underparts of automobiles.

The library has a new group of "How-To" books, and we think our patrons will be pleased to hear the titles which range from factual and self-help information about cars, to small boats and even mini bikes.

"Inboard Motor Installations in Small Boats" by Glenn L. Witt is self-explanatory. It is well illustrated with pictures and diagrams.

"Automotive Fuel and Ignition Systems" is a comprehensive manual, well-illustrated and diagramed. "Disc and Drum Brake Service" is a large paperback handbook with numerous illustrations—at least one on each page. "Know Your Car" by Willar A. Allen is a slim volumn, now in its second edition, which deals with everything under the sun connected with driving a car, from the most common tools to preventive maintenance. "Automotive Maintenance and Trouble Shooting" is well known to all mechanics and will be a fine discovery for the private car owner and the young teenager.

"Automotive Engines, Maintenance and Repair," like the above title, is informative, concise and reliable. Both of these books are now in their third edition. Both authors, Ernest Benk and Walter E. Billiet are experts in the field. Venk is assistant dean emeritus, Technical Division, Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn, Michigan. Billiet is coordinator of technical education, Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn.

"How to Build Boat Trailers" is a new book which offers a step-by-step illustrated lesson as to just exactly how a novice can start from scratch and end up with a satisfying finished product.

Sincere's "Bicycle Service Book" should interest our young patrons. It is a slim volume with factual, commonsense information. It reminds us of the explicit instructions which are included with complicated toys which Daddy has to put together on Christmas morning. Well illustrated with all instructions listed numerically.

"How to Build a Ferro-Cement Boat" by John Samson and Geoff Wellens, sounds hazardous, but these two authors know what they are talking about. John Samson is the pioneer of ferro-cement boat building on the North American continent. He is a professional boat building by trade and a widely experienced ocean sailor. A professional writer, Geoff Wellsons realized the importance of Samson's early work. An amateur boatbuilder himself and avid sailing buff, he helped fan interest in the new medium into a roaring blaze. The book is marvelously illustrated with some color photographs. This is a book which will be of interest to all boat owners and sailors.

FHA Financing Study Of Sewage, Water Needs

The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture is financing the planning of water supply and sewage disposal facilities for all communities with a population of 5500 or less in the counties of Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford.

The Northwest Michigan Regional Planning Commission is the receiving agency for the federal funds. The commission has contracted for planning services with the Northwest Michigan Economic Development District.

County Clerk Clarence Rabach of Charlevoix Township and County Commissioner and Harry Griffin of Melrose Township represent Charlevoix County on the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning Commission.

Charlevoix and Emmet counties already have individual planning programs underway. The eight county plan developed under the FHA grant will, however, serve to coordinate goals and policies for these two counties into a ten-county plan.

With most of the communities being sparsely populated and having limited financial resources, the commission will be looking for new ideas that will make the provision of costly water supply and sewage disposal feasible. In addition to technological innovations, the commission will also be exploring innovations with respect to financing, administration, and system areas.

Water management planning is broad based and covers meaningful areas in both back ground studies and in proposals for the future. This planning will serve as an initiator of projects which are especially needed for smaller areas and communities.

The plan will include numerous alternatives with respect to overall economic development which affects water management patterns of urban and rural development.

It will also include alternative physical plans, that is, general layouts showing the location of the treatment or supply plants and the main lines and alternative methods of implementing the plan or parts of it.

Certain alternatives will also be recommended for certain types or sizes of communities. But it is the local decision--makers--mayors, councilmen, commissioners, supervisors, and local citizens—who will have to make the choices. The commission will present the alternatives with pros and cons and other explanatory material to aid them.

The plan is both for the immediate future—what is needed now—and the long range—what may be needed within the next 20 years or what needs to be thought ahead about.

Quite a few communities will not be able to wait for the district water management plan as their problem is acute now. The State Water Resources Commission has cited many of these "immediate action needed" communities for water pollution and has ordered more or better treatment for varying dates in 1971 and 1972.

At present, the Northwest Regional Planning Commission is having its staff prepare a preliminary report for FHA. This report summarizes the present situation in the district to regard to water management needs and development possibilities.

The final water management plan for the eight-county Northwest Michigan District is scheduled for completion in July 1972.

Tribe's Growth

The Navaho, largest Indian tribe in the United States, is growing at a rapid rate. In 1868, there were not more than 12,000; the current Navaho populations about 90,000.

Island to Host CMU Meet

A cooperative effort to solve some of the mutual problems of biology instructors at two-year colleges and four-year universities will be launched by Central Michigan University this spring as a result of a $45,279 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF).

The grant will support a two-year program involving CMU and the biology staffs of seven community colleges belonging to the North Central Michigan College Biology Teachers Association.

The NSF grant, announced this week by Dr. James E. Hayes, vice provost for research at CMU, will support a program involving CMU, Alpena Community College, Delta College, Kirtland Community College (Roscommon), Mid-Michigan Community College (Harrison), North Central Michigan College (Petoskey), Northwestern Michigan College (Traverse City), and West Shore Community College (Scottville).

Dr. Carl A. Scheel, professor of biology at CMU, is project director and Andrew H. Gibson, associate professor in Delta College's Science Division, is co-director.

The project will open with a two-week session at CMU June 7-18 and will include a second two-week conference at CMU's biological station on Beaver Island next August plus a series of monthly meetings at each of the schools throughout the 1971-72 and 1972-73 academic years.

Scheel says that a major goal of the project is to coordinate biology offerings at the community colleges with lower division courses at four-year institutions.

"New staff members, changing curricular requirements and the ever-increasing fund of available knowledge are creating greater need for cooperation among the academic departments of the two and four-year schools," Scheel notes.

Meetings last year involving the biology faculty of the community colleges and CMU biology staff members led to the formation of the North Central Michigan College Biology Teachers Association and, eventually, the grant proposal.

At the two-week conference at CMU this June, Association members will analyze courses taught at all schools. Materials and data will be exchanged on the teaching staffs, subject matter context, depth of presentation, text materials used and other matters.

"These materials will be exchanged so that members can better understand the nature and development of each school's program and personnel," Scheel explains. "They will be useful in determining strengths and weaknesses for future planning, such as the consideration of innovative programs in general studies, honors colloquia, independent research and other matters. They will be especially valuable to individual staff planning to update their own training."

Included in the Association are 27 community college biology teachers and 23 members of CMU's Biology Department.

At the monthly meetings next year, members will become familiar with the various communities, school facilities and teaching techniques.

"Each participating school has a unique development and immediate environment that all members should come to know more about if they are to do better counseling of future students," Scheel says.

At the two-week conference at CMU's Beaver Island biological station in August, the emphasis will be on developing a specific environmental quality control study for each school.

"We hope to set up aquatic and terrestrial studies that best fit the interests and training of the two-year college staff member at his particular school," Scheel explains. He adds that the program will encourage the participation of students in the projects to give them early experience in research work.

Members of the Steering Committee of the Association are Scheel, Gibson, Wallace A. Strom of Alpena, William S. Swift of Kirtland, Walter A. Matulis of Mid-Michigan, Robert A. Ross of North Central, Arlo F. Moss of Northwestern and David L. Rondell of West Shore.

On the host staff with Scheel are CMU biology faculty members Dr. Matthew Hohn, Dr. Nicholas Cuthbert, Dr. Ellis R. Brockman and Dr. Herbert Lenon.

Obituary

Mrs. Craig

Word has been received of the death of Lena Stevenson Craig, a former Charlevoix schoolteacher, in East Lansing on March 22.

Funeral was held in East Lansing March 25 and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix, later this spring. Date of the graveside service will be announced.

Mrs. Craig taught school in Charlevoix for four years during World War I. She was married to Stewart L. Stevenson of Charlevoix, who died in March of 1944. The Stevensons operated a hardware business in Lansing for 22 years.

In September, 1958, she was married to H.C. Craig who died in August, 1961. Mr. Craig was a banker and a member of the Board of Directors of Charlevoix Hospital.

Mr. Sears

Funeral for Franklin Sears, 77, will be held Wednesday, April 14, at 11 a.m. at the Hibbard Funeral Home in Traverse City, with graveside services between 1 and 1:30 p.m. at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Sears, who formerly operated a steam ferry between Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City, died Sunday at the Solen Nursing Home in Traverse City where he had been a patient for several weeks.

He was born in Saginaw April 15, 1894, the son of Franklin N. and Ida Sears. The family moved to Charlevoix before 1900 and Mr. Sears attended Charlevoix schools.

In addition to running the steam ferry, Mr. Sears was a marine contractor all of his life, leaving Charlevoix to establish a business in Traverse City in 1936.

During World War I, Mr. Sears served with the U.S. Army in France as a steam tug operator and was active for many years in veterans' affairs.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Marian Glassford and one brother, William Sears, both of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Questionnaires

Chamber of Commerce Manager Thomas Merta urges businessmen to fill out and return their Chamber of Commerce questionnaires as soon as possible to help him plan activities.

At last week's Chamber meeting, Merta presented a concise budget for 1971 calling for expenditures of $18,356. Revenue for the year could amount to as much as $23,610, depending on memberships and the success of such Chamber projects at the autumn ball, the color cruise, the Venetian Festival, Waterfront Fair Hobbycraft and other events.

treatment plant.

Michael said the federal Water Quality Office has scheduled a pre-award conference in Ann Arbor Wednesday with representatives of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, city engineers, and the Clark Construction Co. of Lansing, low bidder on the general construction portion of the waste water plant.

The scheduling of the meeting was interpreted as a sign that controversy over awarding of the contract may be resolved shortly. Shaw-Henderson Inc. of Cheboygan, second low bidder, has objected to Clark's receiving the contract because of alleged irregularities in Clark's bid, holding up federal and state money temporarily.

There was no action taken on appointments, although Mayor Essenburg passed out to the council resumes on members of the law firm Oliver, Dinan and Schenden. The firm is represented in Charlevoix by Stephen Graham. Essenburg said appointments will be made at the next meeting, April 26, effective in May.

Board OK's Budget

It was decided to initiate a Type A special education program into the high school, if financial conditions permit. The program already is in operation in the Elementary and Middle schools. It is felt that there is a definite need for the continuation of the program on the high school level. The program is funded and would be available to students from the Central Lake and Ellsworth schools as well as the local school.

The same decision was made regarding a crisis room for the Elementary School which also would be made available to students in the same three schools. It, too, would be funded. A crisis room is described as one for emotionally disturbed children. These children could be assigned to a regular classroom and would utilize this special room only at times of crisis or might be assigned to the room at all time. Like the special education room, it requires a specially trained teacher.

Richard Wiggens and Dr. Leon Alger, representing Daverman Associates, Inc., of Grand Rapids, appeared before the board to outline the consulting service their company was prepared to offer in the field of long term planning. This is the second firm to appear before the board.

"If we don't provide it ourselves, the state will step in and see that it is provided," Shepard said.

Sunnyside-Up

By TOM MERTA,
Chamber of Commerce Manager

Very interesting...that's the way I see my new job as Chamber of Commerce Manager.

In an effort to obtain better member and community communications, I will be writing this column to inform Charlevoix of what is happening in the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber has been very busy this past month. We have had a gigantic-upsurge in requests for summer housing and rentals. We would appreciate it, if you have a house or cottage you would like to rent this summer, to call or drop a note to us describing your place, price required, and when it will be available.

We are changing our wording, as far as memberships are concerned. Words like...support, contributions, fees, etc., will now be replaced with the words, investors and investments. In this way we drop the "old connotation" of the Chamber of Commerce being a charitable organization. We are a business representing the community of Charlevoix.

The Charlevoix Courier has agreed to put out a newspaper type, non-dated piece of informative literature. We need such a magazine desperately...to represent Charlevoix at: Highway Information Centers, AAA Officer, Chamber of Commerce offices throughout the state, for people who want information on Charlevoix, and of course—the perfect "pass out" for the planned attendance of the ski, boat, and travel shows.

I urge every business in Charlevoix to participate, in the form of advertising, in this publication. The bigger the publication the better showing we can make.

PTO Careers Night Is April 14

Career Vocational Night, sponsored by the Charlevoix Parent-Teacher Organization, will be held tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at the High School.

The program is designed to give parents and students a chance to meet with various resource people from throughout the community to learn what job opportunities are available both locally and in other areas.

The program will be geared specifically for young men and women who do not intend to go on to college, or to take only a minimal amount of college education.

Among the resource people already lined up are Charlevoix City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna, city government; Trudy Miller, dental hygiene; Mrs. James Marshall, secretarial; Jerrald Redeker, banking; and Robert Miller, the florist business.

Area businesses expected to have representatives on hand are Consumers Power, Medusa, LexaLite, Freedmans, American Mold Engineering and Hess Furniture (carpeting and interior decoration.)

Also represented will be the Fire Department, law enforcement agencies, tool and die work, the food industry, merchandising, tourism, cosmetics, real estate, insurance, auto merchandising, mechanics and body work and building trades.

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will have its new mobile career guidance van on the premises to demonstrate guidance materials now available.

1 Win, 1 Loss On Millage

One area school district approved operating millage in balloting Monday and another rejected it.

In Boyne Falls, a proposal to renew 16 mills passed by two votes, 82 to 80.

In Ellsworth, a proposal for five mills was defeated 223 to 124.

Kindergarten Kids Register May 6-7

The afternoons of May 6 and 7, Thursday and Friday, have been designated as enrollment days for children of the Charlevoix School District who will enter the kindergarten in September, 1971.

Parents of children whose surname (last name) begins with any letter from "A" through "K" are asked to register the pre-schooler between 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 6.

Parents of children whose surname begins with any letter from "L" through "Z" should register their children between 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Friday, May 7.

Parents are requested to bring to school only the child to be registered and the birth certificate for that child.

Mrs. Jeanne Miles, school and community nurse, will be present to confer with each parent and begin the school health record. At this time an explanation will be given as to the requirements of the State of Michigan relating to the health records of each child. A date will be given in August when parents can bring this information back to the school to qualify their child's entrance into the kindergarten.

To be eligible for kindergarten in the fall a child must be five years of age by Dec. 1, 1971.

Current kindergartners will not attend school these two afternoons of May 6 and 7, according to Glenn B. Snider, principal.

Drew Going To Vietnam

PFC Larry G. Drew, who has been stationed at Ft. Hood, Texas, with the Army, left April 7 after spending a 30-day furlough in Charlevoix.

He was to report to Ft. Lewis, Wash., where he will leave on a tour of duty in Vietnam.

PFC Drew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond C. Drew of R-2, Charlevoix.

Leaf Pickup Is Part of Earth Week

Students at Charlevoix High School are marking Earth Week, April 18 to 24, with a number of projects, including a leaf-pickup Wednesday and Thursday.

The leaf-pickup is designed to discourage residents from burning leaves raked from their yards, according to student Shelly Szudzik.

She points out that the burning of leaves releases ash, carbon particles, carbon dioxide, sulfur monoxide and deadly carbon monixide and sulfur dioxide and in general creates an environmental nuisance.

Students will pick up leaves on the south side of Charlevoix Wednesday, April 21, and on the north side of town Thursday, April 22.

Miss Szudzik suggests that residents not wishing to have their leaves picked up should either bury them or use them as fertilizer.

The students also plan to pick up cans and broken bottles from city beaches.

County Board Adopts Record Budget for '72

Asks 1 Mill More To Meet Expenses

The County Board of Commissioners last week approved a record county budget for 1972 of $886,625, some $185,829 more than the 1971 budget of $700,796.

The bulk of the money, $664,964, will come from property taxes and the remainder from other sources of income, fees, fines and charges.

Based on State Equalized Valuation of $99,100,465, the Finance Committee has asked for a tax rate of 6.71 mills, a 1.01 increase over the 5.7 mills received this year.

The money will come from the county allocated 15 mills which is used to support schools, townships and the Intermediate School District as well as the county.

If the Tax Allocation Board approves the county increase, the allocation for other governing units will have to be reduced from 1971 levels.

Aside from an overall increase in the cost of operations, the county commissioners have asked for three special appropriations in 1972, including a one-half mill levy ($49,500) to buy equipment for the Road Commission.

The County Commission also has earmarked $20,000 in airport planning funds, contingent upon contributions of $5,000 each by the cities of Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan and the townships of Peaine and St. James on Beaver Island.

Another sizeable addition to the 1972 budget is $10,000 for equalization assessors for townships and cities which will not have a state-qualified assessor on the job next year, as required by state law.

Other major expenditures are $43,474 for the Board of Commissioners, $75,532 for courts, $252,002 for county government, $99,295 for public safety (law enforcement), $50,000 for health, $9,200 for veterans affairs, $500 for the County Library Board and $20,000 for capital outlay.

Earmarked for special funds is Child Care, $20,000; Department of Social Services, $65,000; District Health, $55,082; Ironton Ferry, $7,350; Law Library, $1,200; Marine Law, $10,140; Record Copy, $2,500; and Parks and Recreation, $12,000.

The remainder is accounted for in such activities as advertising, employes retirement, the Jordan River Watershed, insurance, bonds and other routine expenditures.

The Board of Commissioners also received a report by County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard showing a total equalized valuation of $99,100,465 for 1971.

Among municipalities, Charlevoix's valuation was listed as $12,340,950, Boyne City $8,168,550 and East Jordan $6,611,900, for a total of $27,121,400.

The townships were listed as follows:

Bay, $3,604,300; Boyne Valley, $4,582,400; Chandler, $945,735; Charlevoix, $16,133,250; Evangeline, $2,897,900; Eveline, $10,524,850; Hayes, $11,506,650; Hudson, $2,680,000; Marion, $2,086,250; Melrose, $6,108,550; Norwood, $1,209,900; Peaine, $1,074,855; St. James, $1,774,400; South Arm, 14,684,600; and Wilson, $2,165,395, for a total township valuation of $71,979,065.

In other business at the spring meeting, the commissioners agreed to advertise for a new sheriff's

First Tanker Arrives; Coal Boat Hits Pier

The first lake carrier of the season—the Mobile Chicago—arrived in Charlevoix about 2:30 a.m. Sunday with a cargo of petroleum products.

Monday evening, the Fred Manske, a self-unloading coal boat, had trouble negotiating the entrance to Pine River Channel from Round Lake.

On her first attempt to enter the channel, the stern of the huge vessel swung too far south, tilting a nest of pilings at the city dock.

The Manske backed off and tried again, this time successfully.

The U.S. 31 drawbridge was open more than 20 minutes while the Manske negotiated the channel, backing up dinner-hour traffic for blocks on both sides.

A number of motorists left their cars to join residents on the banks to cheer the vessel through the narrow passage.

FIRE destroyed a two-story frame house on the Marion Center-rd. Saturday evening, burning most of the belongings of the Alva Noirot family.

Fire Damages Noirot Home On Saturday

Fire of undetermined origin gutted the Alva Noirot home on Marion Center-rd. Saturday evening, leaving the family of nine with only the clothes they were wearing.

The building was ablaze when Charlevoix firemen reached the scene about one mile south of the city. No one was at home at the time of the fire.

The two story frame dwelling is owned by Richard M. Moss of the Belvedere Club and St. Louis, Mo., who rented it to the Noirots. The Noirots belongings were not insured.

For the time being, the family is staying with Mrs. Noirot's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Russell.

Mrs. Russell said the family is attempting to salvage what it can, but that clothing is needed and that new furnishings and bedding will be required when the family finds a new home.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Noirot, the family consists of Brian, three; Tim, four;

SN Bogner Is Cited for Vietnam Role

SN Kenneth Bogner, assigned to the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station, received a unit citation Friday from Chief Bobby D. Rose for meritorious service off the coast of Vietnam from July, 1968, to June, 1969.

The reading of the citation took place in formal full-dress ceremonies at the station.

Bogner, who was a member of Division 12, Coast Guard Squadron 1, was cited for "exceptionally meritorious service while participating in combat operations in Southeast Asia."

"The division "skillfully and effectively carried out its duties of coastal surveillance, visit and search, and psychological operations," the citation read.

As a member of the unit, Bogner received a Navy Unit Commendation citation, with ribbon bar, and personal letters from John A. Chaffee, Secretary of the Navy, and Rear Adm. W.A. Jenkins, U.S.C.G.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bogner of North Muskegon, Bogner spent 11½ months in Vietnam waters, chiefly in the Danang area. He will complete four years of service this summer. He has been stationed at Charlevoix since October, 1969.

Residents Warned About Tenderizer

The district health officer has warned residents to refrain from using a meat tenderizer labeled "Spice of Life" or "Country Tavern" because some jars and cans of the product contain pure sodium nitrite, a deadly poison at high levels in foods.

Robert S. Libke, M.D., director of District Health Department No. 3 which includes Charlevoix County, said the product has been distributed in Virginia, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Kansas, Minesota and Michigan.

The product is packaged in one and one-quarter pound jars and two and one-quarter ounce tins. The jars are labeled "Spice of Life Meat Tenderizer" and are sold primarily to restaurants and bars. The smaller containers, intended for retail marketing, are labeled "Country Tavern Meat Tenderizer."

The warning follows the March 14, 1971, death of a Maryland resident who ate garlic-flavored toast at a Washington, D. C. restaurant on which some of the mislabeled product had been sprinkled.

A "Spice of-Life" jar taken from the restaurant was found to contain 100 percent of the potentially deadly chemical.

The mislabeling problem was first brought to the Food and Drug Administration's attention last November following a complaint by a Virginia restaurant owner that meat on which the product was used turned green.

After the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce confirmed the presence of sodium nitrite in containers, the FDA issued a public warning Nov. 19, 1971. At that time, the Mutual Spice Co., division of HyGrade Food Products, North Bergen, N.J., repacker of the product, initiated a voluntary recall from the retail level of the two meat tenderized brands.

2 From Area Get Degrees

Two Charlevoix area young people received diplomas April 17 in exercises at Read Field House on the Western Michigan University campus in Kalamazoo.

They are Linda Diane Boss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Boss, 107 Eaton-ave., and Steve George Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Smith, Boyne City-rd.

SN KENNETH BOGNER, assigned to the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station, receives unit citation from Station Chief Bobby D. Rose in ceremonies Friday at the station. Bogner's unit was cited for meritorious service off the coast of Vietnam from July, 1968, to June, 1969.

What Is Breakthrough?

By Bernlee Wexstaff

Among Charlevoix youth the thought might best be expressed in four words: Break out—of the bondage of drugs and break in to the freedom of life in Christ!

The turmoil of our times has catapulted old and young alike into a search for life's real meaning. Some have been taken in by the Occult; some by "Isms" that have appeared on the surface to have the answer for the establishment of peace and tranquility in our time; — still others have researched and found to their joy that the Christ of the New Testament is the ultimate answer for all times.

Like heroes of the past who have brought blessings onto the human scene, there must be present day leaders with vision and courage to lead. Ray Bruce, son of Dewey Bruce and the late Hildabelle Thorpe Bruce, who grew up in Charlevoix, seems to have the qualities of understanding and sympathy essential to inspire his contemporaries.

Perhaps the basic reason for Bruce's ability lies in the fact that he kicked the drug habit through his own commitment to Christ following a general dissatisfaction with life and a sense of futility, not without Biblical precedent: Saul the persecutor became Paul the evangelist for Christ.

Bruce was eager to cooperate with Dr. Joseph Baillargeon and Mrs. Baillargeon when they proposed that he join in the youth program of their church. The outcome is the present Christian Coffee Shop and Youth Center housed in the Hogan Building at the corner of Park avenue and Bridge street. The group has adopted the name Breakthrough.

The breakthrough Youth program began in August 1970 with 35 young people in attendance. At this meeting by-laws were formulated to insure legality and consecration of purpose. Section 1. Breakthrough, Inc., states that the group is organized for the purpose of encouraging young persons to live a meaningful, useful life and to make known the teachings of Christ and to give encouragement in the application of those teachings in daily living. The group aims to provide a place for fellowship, learning, entertainment and recreation.

Finances are handled by the governing body of elected officers composed of a
